UN FORCES CLAIM TWO VICTORIES

Senate Group Okays UMST, 18-Year Draft

26-Month Service Terms Approved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—A draft of 18-year-olds plus extension of all service terms to 26 months was approved unanimously by the Senate Armed Services Com...ittee today.

Those are the immediately controversial sections of a long-term program of universal military training and service which the committee recommended to the Senate 13 to 0.

The measure is essentially the same as the plan rewritten from Defense Department proposals by a Preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex).

Fighting Not Over Yet

When the Senate will act was not immediately sure. Present plans are to hold it up until the troops for —Europe controversy is out of the way. The most optomistic guess on when that may come up for action is a week from today.

The fighting is by no means over yet, even in the Senate, and the House Armed Services Committee is showing signs of presentin~ its own different version of the plan to meet immediate manpower needs and provide guards for the country's future.

The central feature of the Senate committee's plan, as it concerns the lowering of draft age limit from the present 19 years, is a priority schedule for inductions. It puts the 18-year-olds at the bottom of the list, to be taken only if needed after all non-veteran men without children—including those qualified only for limited service—have been taken from the present 19 through 25 age bracket.

"No Major Changes" Made

When the draft cuts below 19 those nearest that birthday must go first.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.), in announcing the committee's action, said "no major changes" were made in two lengthy closed-door sessions today.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore.), who voted alone against the plan in the subcommittee, continued his fight for changes today but lost. He said he will try again in the Senate itself but went along on the vote to report the measure out for Senate action.

The battling in the committee today was over the lowering of the draft age and the extension of service beyond the presently required 21 months.

Committee OKs Naval Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee stamped approval on the Navy's multi-billion dollar construction program today and sent it swiftly along toward final passage.

Calling for a $2,740,092,000 build-up in the Navy's fighting power, the bill provides for a large fleet of submarines and surface ships, including a new type of aircraft carrier big enough to handle atomic bombers.

While the Armed Services Committee gave unanimous support to the program, the Senate-House Atomic Committee met secretly to learn about the Navy's progress toward an atomic powered submarine.

The committee's chairman, Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) did not disclose details of the report, but he was obviously pleased with it. He told reporters the atomic submarine would be the main forerunner of peacetime uses of atomic energy.

House Unit To Review Tax Problem; Republicans Say "Quickie" Boost Ruled Out

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee decided today to review the entire tax problem before voting any increases—a move which Republicans said rules out any "quickie" tax boost.

The committee action was an apparent rebuff to the administration. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder had urged a fast $10,000,000,000 boost, followed by "second bite" increase of perhaps $6,500,000,000 later in the year.

In addition, Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee had advocated a single tax increase, instead of the two-phase revenue-raising approach asked by Snyder. It was known that the House committee believed the Senate committee might turn any bill approved by the House into a "single package" tax raiser.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House committee said Secretary Snyder will be welcomed back any time he desires to outline his views on additional tax sources. Snyder has suggested only means of raising his suggested $10,000,000,000 first bill tax boost.

"It is the intention of the committee," Doughton said, "to complete the hearings on all suggestions for raising additional revenue before reaching any decision whether to proceed with a one-package or two-package tax program."

The committee acted after hearing Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and Price Administrator Michael DiSalle testify that higher taxes are needed to help the government curb the rising cost of living.

Johnston particularly stressed that "tough and steep" new taxes are needed fast. He expressed preference for the two-package tax raising method suggested by Secretary Snyder, saying that a quick tax bill would help drain off excess purchasing power.

The new taxes, he said, should be retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Warning that delay would hinder the government't effort to curb inflation, Johnston told the lawmakers:

"There's no mistaking that the days ahead are going to be tough and rough for all of us. We're all going to take a cut."

But Johnston said he believes the present controls on wages, prices and production can be lifted in two or three years, "barring a full-scale attack."

Army Completes Its Preparations To Hang 7 Nazis

Awaiting Outcome Of 11th-Hour Plea

LANDSBERG, Germany, Thursday, Feb. 115 (AP)—American officials said early today they are awaiting the outcome of a last-minute legal action in Washington before they give the signal for sending seven condemned German war criminals to the gallows.

If the U. S. Solicitor General confirms that the seven have lost their last legal chance for life, American officials said, the hangings will take place probably late tonight or early Friday.

In Washington, Attorney Warren Magree, acting upon a request of the West German consul-general, sought late yesterday to delay the executions by an appeal to the Federal District Court. His appeal was from a decision denying a writ of habeas corpus.

The Army has completed preparations to execute the condemned men. Last night U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy rejected an eleventh-hour appeal by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer for postponement of the executions.

Wives of the doomed seven came away from tearful and tense "final visits" in death row and said carpenters were preparing the gallows. A warrant officer from the Augsburg military post arrived to direct the executions.

Mattresses and shoes of the condemned men had been removed to prevent suicide attempts.

The seven were convicted by U. S. war crimes courts of slaughtering thousands of civilians in concentration camps and conquered territories.

Expenditures For Vets Reach $65.6 Billions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Federal expenditures for veterans of all U. S. wars have reached a total of $65,670,000,000, the Veterans Administration reported today.

That is the total sum laid out through June 30, 1950 by VA and its predecessors—the former Veterans Bureau, the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers and the Pension Bureau.

House Enters Policy Debate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The House jumped into the debate on foreign policy today, with Rep. Laurence H. Smith (R-Wis) accusing the Truman administration of "conjuring up another war."

From Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass) came the assertion that much of the criticism of the President's policy was caused by political jealousy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The exchange was touched off by the introduction of a "declaration of policy" backed by a large group of House Republicans. It demanded full partnership for Congress in a complete overhaul of U. S. foreign policy. Present policy, it claimed, "in large part has been a costly failure."

And in the Senate, the combined Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees squared off for a battle starting tomorrow on the question of committing more American ground forces to the Western European defense army to be set up under Gen. Eisenhower.

The main features of the policy substitute proposed in the House would be concentration of home and hemisphere defense, and withholding of any aid to Western Europe until America is convinced the nations there are doing their full share in raising barriers against Communist aggression.

Strikebound Schools Reopen In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14 (AP) — Students trooped back to Minneapolis' 94 public schools today as doors swung open after a three-week strike of teachers and janitors. There were doubts, however, that underlying causes of the walkout had been resolved.

A compromise wage offer, hammered out after two days of conferences conducted by Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl, brought resumption of classes. A further effort to brighten the troubled school picture will be made at a meeting Monday.

Arrow Kills Cyclist

MOMBASA, Kenya Colony, Africa, Feb. 14 (AP)—An African was sentenced today to five years hard labor on charges of manslaughter.

He objected so strongly to cyclists passing his house that he shot arrows at them. One arrow caught a cyclist in the stomach and the man died.

Commercial Building Loan Terms Curbed

50 Per Cent Down Payments Ordered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — The government today ordered 50 per cent cash down payments on a vast range of non-residential construction in a new credit-tightening move to combat inflation.

Simultaneously, the administration threw out a broad hint that it will soon attempt to stabilize food prices.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization director, told the House Ways and Means Committee that legislation will be submitted to Congress to "equalize and stabilize" farm prices and industrial wages.

Johnston's disclosure capped a series of protests from labor leaders, housewives and others against soaring food prices.

Applies To Repair Jobs

The stiff new credit terms for construction were set forth in an order issued by the Federal Reserve Board, effective tomorrow.

It calls for half cash down payments on construction of new stores, offices, hotels, banks, warehouses, garages, auto service stations, restaurants, theaters, clubs and "other new structures used for non-residential purposes."

The same requirement applies to repair jobs, enlargement, alteration and reconstruction on existing commercial buildings if the cost of the improvement exceeds 15 per cent of the building's appraised value.

The order also requires that loans must be paid up in 25 years, with the principal paid off in installments rather than left for a lump sum payment at the end of 25 years.

Exemptions are provided in the case of schools, hospitals, churches, public utilities and "property constructed for use by the government or any political subdivision."

"Tough" Tax Program Urged

On Capitol Hill, Stabilization Director Johnston withheld details of the Administration's proposals for "equalizing" farm prices, but said they will be "equitable and fair."

Johnston made the comment while testifying in favor of higher taxes to curb inflation. He urged a "tough" taxation program to help him stabilize the economy by midsummer.

Asked by Rep. Granger (D-Utah) whether the proposed legislation would involve any change in the farm "parity" program, Johnston replied:

"I didn't say that. The farmer is certainly entitled to his parity. The laboring man is entitled to his parity, too, for as the cost of food goes up, the cost of living goes up."

Reapportionment Bill Introduced In House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—A reappointment bill with teeth in it was introduced today to guarantee the "fairest practical" representation of all citizens in the House of Representatives.

Sponsored by the administration, the bill was offered in the house by Rep. Celler (D-NY).

If it becomes law, not only will the 435 House seats be reapportioned among the states every 10 years, but each state will be required to redistrict according to its population changes. Present laws do not make such redistricting mandatory.

Valentines Pour In For Jacquelyn

Jacquelyn Marre, cancer-stricken little girl who wanted to be your Valentine, is bewildered by the mountain of mail at her Atlanta home. In the last three days, the little 12-year-old girl has received 216,000 pieces of mail after her plea for Valentines was made through the press. Doctors say the cancer is incurable.

Acheson Calls For Red Revolt Against Moscow

Warns Soviet Bloc Not To Attack Tito

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson called today for an international revolt of Communist parties against the domination of Moscow.

He advised all foreign Communists who have the interest of their country at heart to follow the example of Italians and break away from the Kremlin's control.

At his news conference, the Secretary of State also renewed a warning that any Communist attack on Yugoslavia might strain the fabric of world peace to the breaking point. Yugoslavia already has declared its independence of the Soviet Union.

Acheson said recent developments in Italy, where a number of Communist leaders have decided to put their country ahead of their party, are a matter of great interest to the United States. He observed it is encouraging when the fact finally dawns on Communists outside Russia that they are agents of a foreign power.

In telling aggressors to keep their hands off Yugoslavia, the Secretary of State said this country already has demonstrated its attitude toward aggression in Korea and in the United Nations. He added that it was this government's broad policy, as stated by President Truman, that "new recourse to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

Mr. Truman said that in his message to Congress last July 19 after fighting in Korea had begun.

SANTA ROSE, Calif., Feb. 14 (AP) —Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Valentine got a nine-pound, nine-ounce present today, and they named the baby girl Valerie Valentine.

Senate Joins House In Overriding Gov. McKeldin's First Two Vetoes

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14 (AP) — Republican Gov. McKeldin's first vetoes got no defense today from his party senators and five even joined the majority Democrats to override them.

Sen. Kimble of Allegany, the GOP floor leader, was among the five voting with 17 Democrats to enact the two vetoed measures, nine Republicans voted to sustain the Governor.

The bills, which will take away the Chief Executive's choice in filling vacancies on county commissions, will become law June 1 without his signatures. The House of Delegates passed them over the vetoes on Monday night by an 86-17 vote.

In another action marked by complete absence of oratory, the Senate moved to final reading the hitherto controversial and unsuccessful repealer of the state's "Jim Crow" law.

The only voice raised in praise of Gov. McKeldin's vetoes came from a Democrat, Sen. Melnicove of Baltimore's Fourth District.

While not agreeing with his action and voting to override, Sen. Melnicove commended Gov. McKeldin "for his forthright, honest and courageous stand" in doing so while the General Assembly adjournment, forestalling legislative action.

The "Jim Crow" repealer passed second reading in the Senate on a deathlike silent "voice" vote. Sen. Shehan (D-Talbot) later moved for reconsideration so the votes could be recorded, but lost his motion 20 to 9.

In the House, the delegates resoundingly rejected a favorable committee report to establish a Maryland youth commission. The bill was killed after Delegate Whitworth (R-Allegany) said that while it makes no appropriation it could cost the state $30,000 a year.

The commissioners would get no salaries but the bill provided for hiring other employes and expenses. The same arguments were raised by Sen. Kimble on the bill introduced by Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th), before it passed in that chamber.

Reindeer Offered Meat-Shy London With Few Takers

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Unrationed reindeer went on sale for the first time in meat-shy London today, but housewives were doubtful about its taste and shocked at its price.

A small consignment of Swedish reindeer carcasses reached distributors during the past few days.

Said one butcher: "Women are suspicious obout it and I think the price is too high for them. Possibly their prejudice will be overcome when they try it."

Retail prices ranged from one shilling sixpence (21 cents) for the cheapest cuts to four shillings sixpence (63 cents) a pound.

Lie Calls On U. N. To Keep Working For A-Bomb Ban

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie called on the United Nations today to keep on working for prohibition of atomic weapons and regulation of armaments in spite of world tension. He said efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments should go hand in hand.

"In the present state of tension in the world, with rearmament proceeding at a rapid pace on all sides, it may seem academic and even utopian to proceed with serious discussion and planning on the regulation and reduction of armaments," Lie said. "I do not agree with this view. I believe the work of this committee should be looked upon as one of the vital undertakings of the United Nations."

"I have expressed the belief," Lie continued, "that progress of any kind toward agreement on the regulation and reduction of armaments would help to reduce political tensions and that efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments should go hand in hand. x x x Clearly today member governments must provide for adequate defense, but we should not for one moment lose sight of the ultimate goal."

Lie spoke at the opening meeting of a 12-member United Nations committee set up by the General Assembly last Dec. 13 to study ways of merging the work of the Atomic Energy Committee and the Commission for Conventional Armaments.

'Operation Waterlift' Bogs Down In Mud

COLUMBIA, Pa., Feb. 14 (AP)—The water shortage in this river town of 12,000, flooded by an ice jam nearly a week ago, remained so critical today that officials hunted for new sources of supply.

The flood waters were backed up by a huge ice jam on the Susquehanna River. The inundation paralyzed the municipal waterworks and residents were left without sufficient supplies of water.

For a while Columbia's "Operation Waterlift" relieved the situation. The lift had been delivering some 1,250,000 gallons via tank trucks between Columbia and nearby towns.

But today the operation bogged down in mud on the soft road leading to the unloading station.

Troops-For-Europe Hearings Open Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee said tonight that Russia is estimated to have an armed force of more than 4,000,000 men organized into about 175 divisions.

With all its European satellites, the committee reported, Moscow could boast another 1,000,000 men under arms, making the total more than 5,000,000. This does not include Communist China's armed forces.

Against this strength, the Atlantic pact nations, including the United States and Canada, had about 4,500,000 men under arms as of December, 1950, the committee said.

Comparisons Difficult

But comparisons were difficult. The figure for the 11 Atlantic pact countries included the army, navy and air forces. It did not include the estimated 2,700,000 men in organized reserves.

It was not clear from the committee's report whether Communist air and naval forces were included in the iron curtain figures, but it was believed they were not. Geographical distribution of the strength was another factor which made comparisons uncertain.

The figures were issued in advance of hearings starting tomorrow on the controversial troops-for-Europe issue. Defense Secretary Marshall will be the first witness.

"Basic Facts" For Committee

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations group said the report was issued so committeemen would have "certain basic facts" before them in considering the question of sending American soldiers across the Atlantic.

The committee has befor it a resolution by Senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska which would forbid the deployment of any U. S. ground forces to Western Europe under the North Atlantic treaty until Congress has determined the nation's policy.

Connally has announced that he intends to offer a substitute for the Wherry resolution. He wants to let the administration go ahead with a troops program with no strings attached.

Allies Wreck 4 Red Divisions In Holding Line

Critical Moment Of Battle Is Past

TOKYO, Thursday, Feb. 15 (AP)—A hard-fighting Allied division today claimed victory "as of this moment" over elements of nine Chinese divisions which tried to break through the Central Korean front.

The Allies, after shattering four enemy shock divisions, still held firmly to Chipyong and Wonju and the 20 miles of mountain line between them, a field dispatch reported.

Another Allied victory—on a smaller scale—was claimed on the western front against a North Korean division which had hoped to smash the Han River line around Seoul.

Ground action along the entire Korean front Wednesday inflicted 10,593 Red casualties, a U. S. Eighth Army officer said today. This brought the total to 96,894 since Allied forces jumped off Jan. 25 in a limited offensive. Wednesday's bag of dead, wounded and captured was the biggest for one day since that drive started.

Critical Moment Past

A high staff officer of the U. S. division on the central front told AP Correspondent John Randolph this morning:

"As of this moment, we have a victory. It remains now to consolidate it and we hope to do it today."

"We are still holding our main positions and we have our freedom of movement," said the division's commander.

"If the enemy makes another try, he will have to raise the stakes."

Randolph said the critical moment of the three-day-old central front battle was safely passed Wednesday when two Chinese divisions were knocked out by Allied artillery while trying to slip past the left flank of the Wonju perimeter.

At the same time South Korean marines Wednesday staged a spectacular commando-type raid on Wonsan, east coast port 90 air miles north of the 38th parallel.

Occupy Two Islands

The Republic of Korean (ROK) marines occupied two islands off the Communist supply port and drove to the Wonsan city limits under the protective fire of Allied cruisers and destroyers.

On the western front, U. S. infantrymen, including Puerto Ricans, killed 1,152 North Korean Reds who infiltrated United Nations lines south of Seoul. Some 250 more Reds were captured in a wild melee that brought cooks and colonels alike into action.

AP Correspondent William J. Waugh on the central front reported that fighting was still in progress at midnight Wednesday.

Waugh said the Chinese launched a big new attack late Wednesday toward Wonju, key to vital road networks to South Korea. A U. N. counterattack lashed back at the Reds, inflicting heavy losses.

In the Chipyong sector, 20 miles northwest of Wonju, a Communist probing night attack was followed within an hour by another Chinese assault on surrounded American and French forces.

Puerto Rican Revolt Leader Is Convicted

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 14 (AP) — Pedro Albizu Campos, a Harvard-educated revolutionary with a fanatical hatred of the United States, was convicted today of attempted murder. The charge stemmed from an abortive revolt here that claimed 33 lives and involved an attempt on the life of President Truman.

The conviction came at the end of a week-long trial of the 63-year-old leader of the Nationalist Party. He is liable to a sentence of one to 15 years, to be pronounced Friday.

Police Silence Barricaded Prowler After 5-Hour Fight

WALLACE, Idaho, Feb. 14 (AP) — A frenzied prowler, apparently a stranger in town, terrorized Main Street for almost five hours today with rifle fire from a hardware store that killed one man and wounded two others.

Police machine gun bullets and tear gas bombs from a building across the street finally silenced him.

Then officers crept inside and found him lying on the floor, overcome but not hurt. When he made a sudden move, the police fired and he died an hour later without giving a motive.

Papers on his body carried the name John Stoddard, 48, and indicated he once lived in Oakland, Calif. Aside from that, nobody seemed to know anything about him.

The shooting stopped business in this mining town of 3,200, about 85 miles east of Spokane. Spectators —some 250 of them—stood behind barricades on both ends of the street for a look.

Bronx Couple Held In Plot To Assassinate President

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secret Service agents today arrested a Bronx couple in whose home the government charges the abortive plot to assassinate President Truman last Nov. 1 was hatched.

The couple, John Correa, 43, and his wife, Mary, were charged with obstruction of justice.

A sealed indictment naming them was opened by Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld, who was told by Assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick Block that two weeks before the attempted assassination a dinner meeting was held in the Correa home.

Among those at that meeting, Weinfeld said, was Oscar Collazo, one of the two men involved in the Blair House assassination attempt and who is under indictment for murder in Washington, D. C., for the killing of one of the White House guards.

Others at the dinner, Block said, were Julio Pinto Gandia, president of the New York branch of the Nationalist Party of Puerto Rico; Juan Bernardo Lebrun, past president; Juan Francisco Medina, secretary, and Antonio S. Blanco, described by the government as active in the Nationalist Party movement.

Strikebound Schools Reopen In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14 (AP) — Students trooped back to Minneapolis' 94 public schools today as doors swung open after a three-week strike of teachers and janitors. There were doubts, however, that underlying causes of the walkout had been resolved.

A compromise wage offer, hammered out after two days of conferences conducted by Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl, brought resumption of classes. A further effort to brighten the troubled school picture will be made at a meeting Monday.

Arrow Kills Cyclist

MOMBASA, Kenya Colony, Africa, Feb. 14 (AP)—An African was sentenced today to five years hard labor on charges of manslaughter.

He objected so strongly to cyclists passing his house that he shot arrows at them. One arrow caught a cyclist in the stomach and the man died.

Commercial Building Loan Terms Curbed

50 Per Cent Down Payments Ordered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — The government today ordered 50 per cent cash down payments on a vast range of non-residential construction in a new credit-tightening move to combat inflation.

Simultaneously, the administration threw out a broad hint that it will soon attempt to stabilize food prices.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization director, told the House Ways and Means Committee that legislation will be submitted to Congress to "equalize and stabilize" farm prices and industrial wages.

Johnston's disclosure capped a series of protests from labor leaders, housewives and others against soaring food prices.

Applies To Repair Jobs

The stiff new credit terms for construction were set forth in an order issued by the Federal Reserve Board, effective tomorrow.

It calls for half cash down payments on construction of new stores, offices, hotels, banks, warehouses, garages, auto service stations, restaurants, theaters, clubs and "other new structures used for non-residential purposes."

The same requirement applies to repair jobs, enlargement, alteration and reconstruction on existing commercial buildings if the cost of the improvement exceeds 15 per cent of the building's appraised value.

The order also requires that loans must be paid up in 25 years, with the principal paid off in installments rather than left for a lump sum payment at the end of 25 years.

Exemptions are provided in the case of schools, hospitals, churches, public utilities and "property constructed for use by the government or any political subdivision."

"Tough" Tax Program Urged

On Capitol Hill, Stabilization Director Johnston withheld details of the Administration's proposals for "equalizing" farm prices, but said they will be "equitable and fair."

Johnston made the comment whilte testifying in favor of higher taxes to curb inflation. He urged a "tough" taxation program to help him stabilize the economy by midsummer.

Asked by Rep. Granger (D-Utah) whether the proposed legislation would involve any change in the farm "parity" program, Johnston replied:

"I didn't say that. The farmer is certainly entitled to his parity. The laboring man is entitled to his parity, too, for as the cost of food goes up, the cost of living goes up."

Reapportionment Bill Introduced In House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—A reappointment bill with teeth in it was introduced today to guarantee the "fairest practical" representation of all citizens in the House of Representatives.

Sponsored by the administration, the bill was offered in the house by Rep. Celler (D-NY).

If it becomes law, not only will the 435 House seats be reapportioned among the states every 10 years, but each state will be required to redistrict according to its population changes. Present laws do not make such redistricting mandatory.

Valentines Pour In For Jacquelyn

Jacquelyn Marre, cancer-stricken little girl who wanted to be your Valentine, is bewildered by the mountain of mail at her Atlanta home. In the last three days, the little 12-year-old girl has received 216,000 pieces of mail after her plea for Valentines was made through the press. Doctors say the cancer is incurable.

Acheson Calls For Red Revolt Against Moscow

Warns Soviet Bloc Not To Attack Tito

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson called today for an international revolt of Communist parties against the domination of Moscow.

He advised all foreign Communists who have the interest of their country at heart to follow the example of Italians and break away from the Kremlin's control.

At his news conference, the Secretary of State also renewed a warning that any Communist attack on Yugoslavia might strain the fabric of world peace to the breaking point. Yugoslavia already has declared its independence of the Soviet Union.

Acheson said recent developments in Italy, where a number of Communist leaders have decided to put their country ahead of their party, are a matter of great interest to the United States. He observed it is encouraging when the fact finally dawns on Communists outside Russia that they are agents of a foreign power.

In telling aggressors to keep their hands off Yugoslavia, the Secretary of State said this country already has demonstrated its attitude toward aggression in Korea and in the United Nations. He added that it was this government's broad policy, as stated by President Truman, that "new recourse to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

Mr. Truman said that in his message to Congress last July 19 after fighting in Korea had begun.

SANTA ROSE, Calif., Feb. 14 (AP) —Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Valentine got a nine-pound, nine-ounce present today, and they named the baby girl Valerie Valentine.

Senate Joins House In Overriding Gov. McKeldin's First Two Vetoes

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14 (AP) — Republican Gov. McKeldin's first vetoes got no defense today from his party senators and five even joined the majority Democrats to override them.

Sen. Kimble of Allegany, the GOP floor leader, was among the five voting with 17 Democrats to enact the two vetoed measures, nine Republicans voted to sustain the Governor.

The bills, which will take away the Chief Executive's choice in filling vacancies on county commissions, will become law June 1 without his signatures. The House of Delegates passed them over the vetoes on Monday night by an 86-17 vote.

In another action marked by complete absence of oratory, the Senate moved to final reading the hitherto controversial and unsuccessful repealer of the state's "Jim Crow" law.

The only voice raised in praise of Gov. McKeldin's vetoes came from a Democrat, Sen. Melnicove of Baltimore's Fourth District.

While not agreeing with his action and voting to override, Sen. Melnicove commended Gov. McKeldin "for his forthright, honest and courageous stand" in doing so while the General Assembly adjournment, forestalling legislative action.

The "Jim Crow" repealer passed second reading in the Senate on a deathlike silent "voice" vote. Sen. Shehan (D-Talbot) later moved for reconsideration so the votes could be recorded, but lost his motion 20 to 9.

In the House, the delegates resoundingly rejected a favorable committee report to establish a Maryland youth commission. The bill was killed after Delegate Whitworth (R-Allegany) said that while it makes no appropriation it could cost the state $30,000 a year.

The commissioners would get no salaries but the bill provided for hiring other employes and expenses. The same arguments were raised by Sen. Kimble on the bill introduced by Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th), before it passed in that chamber.

Reindeer Offered Meat-Shy London With Few Takers

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Unrationed reindeer went on sale for the first time in meat-shy London today, but housewives were doubtful about its taste and shocked at its price.

A small consignment of Swedish reindeer carcasses reached distributors during the past few days.

Said one butcher: "Women are suspicious obout it and I think the price is too high for them. Possibly their prejudice will be overcome when they try it."

Retail prices ranged from one shilling sixpence (21 cents) for the cheapest cuts to four shillings sixpence (63 cents) a pound.

Lie Calls On U. N. To Keep Working For A-Bomb Ban

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie called on the United Nations today to keep on working for prohibition of atomic weapons and regulation of armaments in spite of world tension. He said efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments should go hand in hand.

"In the present state of tension in the world, with rearmament proceeding at a rapid pace on all sides, it may seem academic and even utopian to proceed with serious discussion and planning on the regulation and reduction of armaments," Lie said. "I do not agree with this view. I believe the work of this committee should be looked upon as one of the vital undertakings of the United Nations."

"I have expressed the belief," Lie continued, "that progress of any kind toward agreement on the regulation and reduction of armaments would help to reduce political tensions and that efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments should go hand in hand. x x x Clearly today member governments must provide for adequate defense, but we should not for one moment lose sight of the ultimate goal."

Lie spoke at the opening meeting of a 12-member United Nations committee set up by the General Assembly last Dec. 13 to study ways of merging the work of the Atomic Energy Committee and the Commission for Conventional Armaments.

'Operation Waterlift' Bogs Down In Mud

COLUMBIA, Pa., Feb. 14 (AP)—The water shortage in this river town of 12,000, flooded by an ice jam nearly a week ago, remained so critical today that officials hunted for new sources of supply.

The flood waters were backed up by a huge ice jam on the Susquehanna River. The inundation paralyzed the municipal waterworks and residents were left without sufficient supplies of water.

For a while Columbia's "Operation Waterlift" relieved the situation. The lift had been delivering some 1,250,000 gallons via tank trucks between Columbia and nearby towns.

But today the operation bogged down in mud on the soft road leading to the unloading station.

Troops-For-Europe Hearings Open Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee said tonight that Russia is estimated to have an armed force of more than 4,000,000 men organized into about 175 divisions.

With all its European satellites, the committee reported, Moscow could boast another 1,000,000 men under arms, making the total more than 5,000,000. This does not include Communist China's armed forces.

Against this strength, the Atlantic pact nations, including the United States and Canada, had about 4,500,000 men under arms as of December, 1950, the committee said.

Comparisons Difficult

But comparisons were difficult. The figure for the 11 Atlantic pact countries included the army, navy and air forces. It did not include the estimated 2,700,000 men in organized reserves.

It was not clear from the committee's report whether Communist air and naval forces were included in the iron curtain figures, but it was believed they were not. Geographical distribution of the strength was another factor which made comparisons uncertain.

The figures were issued in advance of hearings starting tomorrow on the controversial troops-for-Europe issue. Defense Secretary Marshall will be the first witness

"Basic Facts" For Committee

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations group said the report was issued so committeemen would have "certain basic facts" before them in considering the question of sending American soldiers across the Atlantic.

The committee has befor it a resolution by Senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska which would forbid the deployment of any U. S. ground forces to Western Europe under the North Atlantic treaty until Congress has determined the nation's policy.

Connally has announced that he intends to offer a substitute for the Wherry resolution. He wants to let the administration go ahead with a troops program with no strings attached.

Allies Wreck 4 Red Divisions In Holding Line

Critical Moment Of Battle Is Past

TOKYO, Thursday, Feb. 15 (AP)—A hard-fighting Allied division today claimed victory "as of this moment" over elements of nine Chinese divisions which tried to break through the Central Korean front.

The Allies, after shattering four enemy shock divisions, still held firmly to Chipyong and Wonju and the 20 miles of mountain line between them, a field dispatch reported.

Another Allied victory—on a smaller scale—was claimed on the western front against a North Korean division which had hoped to smash the Han River line around Seoul.

Ground action along the entire Korean front Wednesday inflicted 10,593 Red casualties, a U. S. Eighth Army officer said today. This brought the total to 96,894 since Allied forces jumped off Jan. 25 in a limited offensive. Wednesday's bag of dead, wounded and captured was the biggest for one day since that drive started.

Critical Moment Past

A high staff officer of the U. S. division on the central front told AP Correspondent John Randolph this morning:

"As of this moment, we have a victory. It remains now to consolidate it and we hope to do it today."

"We are still holding our main positions and we have our freedom of movement," said the division's commander.

"If the enemy makes another try, he will have to raise the stakes."

Randolph said the critical moment of the three-day-old central front battle was safely passed Wednesday when two Chinese divisions were knocked out by Allied artillery while trying to slip past the left flank of the Wonju perimeter.

At the same time South Korean marines Wednesday staged a spectacular commando-type raid on Wonsan, east coast port 90 air miles north of the 38th parallel.

Occupy Two Islands

The Republic of Korean (ROK) marines occupied two islands off the Communist supply port and drove to the Wonsan city limits under the protective fire of Allied cruisers and destroyers.

On the western front, U. S. infantrymen, including Puerto Ricans, killed 1,152 North Korean Reds who infiltrated United Nations lines south of Seoul. Some 250 more Reds were captured in a wild melee that brought cooks and colonels alike into action.

AP Correspondent William J. Waugh on the central front reported that fighting was still in progress at midnight Wednesday.

Waugh said the Chinese launched a big new attack late Wednesday toward Wonju, key to vital road networks to South Korea. A U. N. counterattack lashed back at the Reds, inflicting heavy losses.

In the Chipyong sector, 20 miles northwest of Wonju, a Communist probing night attack was followed within an hour by another Chinese assault on surrounded American and French forces.

Puerto Rican Revolt Leader Is Convicted

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 14 (AP) — Pedro Albizu Campos, a Harvard-educated revolutionary with a fanatical hatred of the United States, was convicted today of attempted murder. The charge stemmed from an abortive revolt here that claimed 33 lives and involved an attempt on the life of President Truman.

The conviction came at the end of a week-long trial of the 63-year-old leader of the Nationalist Party. He is liable to a sentence of one to 15 years, to be pronounced Friday.

Police Silence Barricaded Prowler After 5-Hour Fight

WALLACE, Idaho, Feb. 14 (AP) — A frenzied prowler, apparently a stranger in town, terrorized Main Street for almost five hours today with rifle fire from a hardware store that killed one man and wounded two others.

Police machine gun bullets and tear gas bombs from a building across the street finally silenced him.

Then officers crept inside and found him lying on the floor, overcome but not hurt. When he made a sudden move, the police fired and he died an hour later without giving a motive.

Papers on his body carried the name John Stoddard, 48, and indicated he once lived in Oakland, Calif. Aside from that, nobody seemed to know anything about him.

The shooting stopped business in this mining town of 3,200, about 85 miles east of Spokane. Spectators —some 250 of them—stood behind barricades on both ends of the street for a look.

Bronx Couple Held In Plot To Assassinate President

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secret Service agents today arrested a Bronx couple in whose home the government charges the abortive plot to assassinate President Truman last Nov. 1 was hatched.

The couple, John Correa, 43, and his wife, Mary, were charged with obstruction of justice.

A sealed indictment naming them was opened by Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld, who was told by Assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick Block that two weeks before the attempted assassination a dinner meeting was held in the Correa home.

Among those at that meeting, Weinfeld said, was Oscar Collazo, one of the two men involved in the Blair House assassination attempt and who is under indictment for murder in Washington, D. C., for the killing of one of the White House guards.

Others at the dinner, Block said, were Julio Pinto Gandia, president of the New York branch of the Nationalist Party of Puerto Rico; Juan Bernardo Lebrun, past president; Juan Francisco Medina, secretary, and Antonio S. Blanco, described by the government as active in the Nationalist Party movement.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—Joseph P. Robles, one of Florida's two surviving Confederate veterans, spent his 104th birthday today trying to get accustomed to this "new fangled electricity."

Since his last birthday, Robles has thrown out his kerosene lamps and had his modest little home wired with electricity.

This little item of eleectricity is the biggest thing that has happened to Robles since his 100th birthday when he received a battery radio set.

Of Electricity he says "I just can't see it. I don't like it."

Government Acquires British Steel Industry

LONDON, Thursday, Feb. 15 (AP)—The British steel industry became government property today. It was the last and most elusive piece in a pattern of socialism for the nation's basic industries. A prompt boost in steel prices is in prospect.

Private owenrship of the British plants ended at midnight.

It was a triumphant moment for Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government. With the acquisition of steel, the government owns all the nation's basic industrial production. Twenty per cent of the country's economic life now is socialized.

The subway stations of New York City are lined with enough tile to cover more than 80,000 bathrooms of average size.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation keeps more than 109 million sets of fingerprints in Washington.

Income Tax Primer

Don't Let 1040 Throw You! Take One Step At A Time

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — If you make your tax return on long form 1040, fill it in very carefully one step at a time.

Two classes of taxpayers must file their returns on the long form:

1. Persons with income in 1950 of $5,000 or more.

2. Persons, who regardless of income, want to itemize non-business deductions instead of taking the standard allowance of 10 per cent of income.

Before starting to make out your return, write the following information on work sheets in this order:

1. Income in 1950 — Amount of wages and other income received.

2. Deductible expenses—Expenses necessary to your work or business. In case of expenses of your job, divide them into two groups. In the first group put "out-of-town" travel expenses and "reimbursed expenses" if latter are reported as part of your income. In the second group put all other job expenses.

3. Deductions — Certain kinds of taxes, interest payments, losses (not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise from theft, storm, fire and other casualties, contributions and medical expenses. You can deduct medical expenses which exceed five per cent of your income.

These deductions are listed on page 3, form 1040. If you decide to take the standard 10 per cent allowance for non-business deductions you don't list them.

4. Income tax already paid — Amount of tax withheld from your 1950 wages and amount paid in accordance with tax estimates made during the past year.

Read carefully the government's pamphlet of instructions on "How To Prepare Your Income Tax Return." If you didn't receive this pamphlet and form 1040, you can obtain them at a collector's office or at a post office or bank, or possibly from your employer.

With your work sheets as a guide, fill out your return.

Remember, one step at a time is the easiest way.

Follow the numbered directions on the return.

Don't worry about the next step until you get to it.

If the direction doesn't apply to you, don't pay any attention to it. But be sure to follow the directions very carefully in the tax computing section on page 3.

If you are making a joint return, don't pay any attention to lines 6, 7 and 8 under tax computation. Those lines are for persons making a separate return.

When you do the joint return figuring in lines 9 to 13, be sure that you are following the directions exactly.

Triple check all your figures. If you are poor at arithmetic, have someone check them for you.

For most married couples using long form 1040 the tax on a joint return will be small or as small as on a separate return. A one-income couple can't lose by using the joint return.

Ifyou are a two-income couple and have exceptional investment losses or deductions for medical expenses or large contributions, figure both joint and separate returns to see which is cheaper. If it seems complicated get advice of a collector's office or other reputable tax authority.

Save a copy of your return. You may need it for future reference.

A joint return must be signed by both husband and wife.

Don't Let 1040 Throw You! Take One Step At A Time

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — If you make your tax return on long form 1040, fill it in very carefully one step at a time.

Two classes of taxpayers must file their returns on the long form:

1. Persons with income in 1950 of $5,000 or more.

2. Persons, who regardless of income, want to itemize non-business deductions instead of taking the standard allowance of 10 per cent of income.

Before starting to make out your return, write the following information on work sheets in this order:

1. Income in 1950 — Amount of wages and other income received.

2. Deductible expenses—Expenses necessary to your work or business. In case of expenses of your job, divide them into two groups. Land Reform In Asia

Poverty and low living standards among the peasant masses of Asia, resulting in large part from prevailing land tenure systems, have provided a fertile field for Communist exploitation and, by the same token, have turned the attention of American officials to the formidable problem of land reform in the Far and Middle East. It is recognized that progress toward solving that problem is essential to the success of efforts to stem the spread of Communist influence in this great area of the world.

Under the Point Four program, the United States stands ready to assist non-Communist countries in expanding their food production. But the issue of land tenure stands directly between Point Four and the attainment of its basic objective—"sound agricultural production on a democratic basis for the benefit of the people." A prospect of some direct material gain is necessary to induce those who work the land to improve present methods of land use. To provide that incentive, millions who are now tenants and hopelessly in debt to their landlords must be assisted to attain ownership of the land and instructed how to put it to the best use.

Promises to distribute land to the people and free them from the exactions of landlords are one of the most effective weapons in the arsenal of Communist propaganda in a region such as Asia, where eight out of ten persons are peasants and a high proportion do not own the land they cultivate. Twenty years ago, when Chinese Communists first came into position to fulfill such promises, they confiscated and redistributed all of the holdings of large landowners and nullified contracts of indebtedness in areas under their control. In succeeding years their land measures were alternately modified and tightened to suit changing political conditions. Now exercising power over all of China, the Communists are applying a complicated scheme of reform designed to reduce but not eliminate inequalities of land ownership while at the same time maintaining the volume of agricultural production. Similar reforms were carried out under Russian auspices in North Korea soon after the war ended.

In Communist strategy and theory land reform is a device for gaining peasant support in the struggle for power. But individual peasant ownership and management of land is considered acceptable only in backward countries and only while a Communist regime is consolidating its power. The ultimate goal is collectivization of agriculture. Already in China model state farms are being established and formation of farm cooperatives is being encouraged. Hence peasant gains under Communist agrarian reforms may be relatively short-lived, despite current disclaimers of any intention to socialize agriculture.

Some progress toward land reform on an enduring basis has been made since the war in non-Communist countries. Legislation to abolish traditional landlordism and redistribute land has been enacted in a number of the states of India. Drastic reforms carried out under American auspices in occupied Japan involved government purchase of more than nine million acres and their resale to tenants in such a way as to make 90 per cent of all cultivators the owners of land. Reform measures were instituted also in South Korea but were not completed before the Communist invasion.

Accomplishment elsewhere in non-Communist Asia has been limited. An extensive program of ECA aid to the Philippines is being used to prod the Manila government into taking action to redistribute land and assure minimum wages to farm workers, but the Philippine Congress has so far shown reluctance to fulfill such stipulations in the ECA agreement. Attaching conditions to American aid is nevertheless advocated as a means of applying effective pressure to bring about land reform in other countries seeking economic assistance from the United States.

The importance of land reform in non-Communist Asia was recently emphasized by Supreme Court Justice Douglas, who said in a magazine article last month: "Land reform would not only deprive the Soviets of their most powerful propaganda; it would make each peasant a capitalist. No greater political barrier to communism could be designed."

Where Lenin Was Right

Reports of outbreaks of "titoism" behind the Iron Curtain are in the category of rumors rather than of facts. If they turn out to be true, they may add up to one of the big news stories of 1951.

The disappearance of former Foreign Minister Clementis and the house arrest of President Gootwald of Czechoslovakia, the desertion of the party by important Communist officials of France and Italy, together with persistent indications of similar difficulties farther east, may be signs of an outbreak of "bourgeois deviationism" that could shake the bolshevik monolith to its foundations.

Lenin would have understood such a development. He warned the comrades: "We Russians have never been able to make anything but serfs of conquered people." And he once wrote a letter saying that Stalin, though a useful tool, was too ruthless and bloody a man to unite the cause of world communism.

Communist leaders like to be able to tell themselves that their tactics and principles will make their own countries better. Stalin clashes headon with such ingrained patriotic sentiments when he forces his lieutenants in other lands to put Russia first and the homeland second. This policy has already lost Yugoslavia to bolshevism, and Tito's example has inspired widespread envy in those lands where the Communists are strongest.

The United States probably cannot lend much direct aid to Communist deviationists. But time is on this country's side in this category, and may produce inside the Communist world splits such as few today dare hope for.

Another Hootenanny

Nobody seems to be sure what the flying saucers, if there really were any, were doing. And recently they don't seem to have been doing even that. Maybe they gave up because they couldn't find any flying cups.

Instead of flying saucers, people are now seeing flying telephone poles—and red for good measure. Plenty of folks said they saw one over Galena, Ill., the other night. It was about 10 times the length of an ordinary pole, though, and a brilliant red to boot. They said it moved silently and slowly. Many of these folks were "very reputable and responsible persons," too.

There were also reports from Wisconsin of a brilliant blue flash. But that was probably just an ordinary meteor.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Bursitis Of The Elbow

YOU NEED NOT be a tennis player to acquire tennis elbow. This painful condition is seen in individuals from all walks of life. It occurs more commonly, however, in certain athletes and in carpenters, street car motormen, press operators, pipefitters, leather workers, painters, butchers, and typists. In these occupations the arm and elbow are in constant use. Knitters develop the disorder occasionally.

The basic cause is mild but continuous injury to the joint on the outer side of the elbow. This often is produced by grasping or twisting the hand, especially when the elbow is extended. When this is done day after day over a period of years, the area about the joint is forced to undergo unusual strain. This may be the penalty we pay for using as many tools as we do today.

Pain is more noticeable over the outer aspect of the elbow opposite the "crazy bone" and over the joint formed by the larger bone of the upper arm (humerus) and the radium of the forearm. Distress may be so mild that it is noted only when performing certain maneuvers, or so severe that the victim has no choice but to carry the arm in a sling. The best test is a simple one in which the individual picks up a large telephone directory or Bible. He is able to do so in comfort with the palm up and the fingers below but winces when the palm is downward, above the book and the thumb bears the weight. Occasionally the physician also is able to elicit a tenderness over the protruding bony prominences along the outer aspect of the elbow.

Discomfort usually is so acute that the sufferer is positive he must have struck his elbow against a table or work bench. When asked for more details he is unable to recall the exact accident nor is he able to show a bruise, abrasion, or discoloration. X-ray generally is negative. It is believed that pain stems from a tear in the tendons in this area or from inflammation of the bursa that surrounds the joint.

Bursae are small sacs, or sheaths, placed by nature between moving parts. There are 26 in the body and the radiohumeral bursa in the elbow is one of the few that leads to trouble. When a tendon or muscle, for example, goes around a bend such as the shoulder it needs some cushioning to work efficiently. This is the bursa. The majority are filled with a small amount of lubricating fluid and when irritated the liquid increases in amount to such an extent that swelling is perceptible. This is most noticeable when the bursa about the knee is involved (housemaid's knee) or the tip of the elbow (miner's elbow). In tennis elbow, however, there is not much enlargement even when inflammation is acute.

Treatment is the same, regardless of cause. Mild cases often are helped by keeping the arm inactive, or at least avoiding movements that produce pain. Distress may be eased by soaking the elbow in hot water or using a heat lamp or an electric pad for half an hour two or three times daily. English physicians rely on deep massage and manipulation. "Needling" is advocated by many surgeons; in this procedure the area is anesthetized and the fluid withdrawn from the bursa via a sharp needle. One or more such treatments may be needed before the condition subsides. X-ray therapy also has been recommended and now and then it is necessary to remove the bursa to give relief.

TOMORROW: Cross-eye should be treated early for best results.

General Ridgway Profited By Past Korean Mistakes; Deserves Credit For Recent Victory; Acheson Should Be Two Men Instead Of One

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Some senators seem to believe that it is a criminal matter for a newspaper to criticize military mistakes. This is a view also shared by many brass hats—though not all.

However, mistakes are sometimes rectified chiefly through knowing about them, and a case in point is the magnificent manner in which Gen. Matthew Ridgeway has profited from the mistakes of General MacArthur in turning a tragic defeat into Korean victory.

While the very loyal MacArthur clique may argue that he is still supreme commander in Tokyo, and therefore deserves credit for the current victory, the indisputable facts are that General Ridgway was sent to Korea direct from Washington where he had been deputy chief of staff and as such was in close contact with the Pentagon's views of warfare. It also is an indisputable fact that Ridgway won his victory with no new fresh troops and facing a somewhat stronger enemy than MacArthur.

According to military observers who read the battle dispatches here is how Ridgway profited by mistakes and accomplished his remarkable feat:

CAREFUL INTELLIGENCE — MacArthur conducted only limited patrolling for three or four days before launching his attack. Then, after the attack boomeranged, the Eighth Army retreated so fast that it lost all contact with the enemy and for several weeks didn't know where the Communists were.

In contrast, Ridgway conducted aggressive patrolling for eight to ten days before kicking off his offensive. He sent heavy patrols deep into enemy territory in so-called "reconnaissance in force." His orders were to disrupt any Communist build-up, to inflict as many casualties as possible and to survey enemy position. The lack of patrolling by MacArthur failed to detect the Chinese Communist build-up that swept our armies back to the 38th parallel. However, Ridgway's troops knew exactly what to expect.

PUBLIC RELATIONS—MacArthur announced his offensive the same morning it was launched, predicting his troops would be "home by Christmas." Ridgway waited until his offensive had been rolling over 24 hours before announcing it.

POOR BATTLE LIAISON—MacArthur struck in all directions at once. His troops were fanned out from one end of North Korea to the other, in no position to head off a surprise counterattack. The Eighth Army and Tenth Corps also had no battle liaison, had to coordinate their actions through Tokyo.

In contrast, Ridgway opened his attack on the Western front, but didn't order his Eastern front to move until nine days later—after he was sure all was going well. He had the added advantage of being in full command in the field, and wasn't forced to direct two fronts by remote control from Tokyo.

CONTRAST IN CASUALTIES—MacArthur suffered devastating casualties after the Chinese hit, lost more than 15,000 casualties in two weeks. Later, the Marines, who broke out of the Chosin Reservoir trap, mowed down the Chinese at a ratio of 20 to one. However, Ridgway's losses during the first two weks of his offensive were the lightest of the Korean War. He suffered less than 1,500 casualties, at the same time taking a toll of 52,000 Communist casualties.

In fairness to MacArthur and in tribute to the Air Force, Ridgway has been meeting more scattered opposition. This is largely because the Air Force has raked enemy positions with devastating fire bombs and rocket fire. Ridgway's aggressive, armored patrols also killed and rooted out Communists along the path of the offensive. As a result, the main Chinese Communist force is reported to be digging in north of the 38th Parallel.

It should also be pointed out that MacArthur's supply lines in North Korea were stretched, whereas the Chinese Communists were then only a few miles from their supply bases. This situation has now been reversed.

Ridgway's advance patrolling and careful preparation, however, made the big difference between defeat and victory.

Both Hands And Feet

Sgt. Rolland McDonald of Fort Bliss, Texas, read in this column about a Marine colonel who endorsed his state pension check over to Pfc. Robert L. Smith, who lost both arms and both legs in Korea, then had his teeth kicked out by a Chinese Communist. Sergeant McDonald was so touched that he wrote a check for $25 and asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas to forward it to the quadruple amputee.

"It was impressed upon me," wrote Sergeant McDonald, "that the Pfc. maybe has a little something coming from most of us who haven't yet been sent to Korea. At any rate, here is my attempt to pay a little of the debt that the citizens of the country owe him."

Fame Is Fleeting

Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan, wartime boss of the cloak-and-dagger Office of Strategic Services, learned the other day how fleeting is fame.

The General returned to his old offices, now occupied by the successor outfit, Central Intelligence Agency, and was stopped by a conscientious guard. Then a receptionist politely asked him to fill out a card giving his full name, address and who he wanted to see.

Dutifully the man who once ruled supreme over this important office obeyed.

Explaining Foreign Policy

Secretary of State Dean Acheson got an education on the headaches of senators at a private luncheon for new members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Over the coffee cups, Sen. Guy Gillette, the white-haired solon from Iowa, turned to Acheson.

"Every congressman has been swamped with mail on foreign policy," he said. "I've had 6,000 letters on this topic since Christmas. People are confused and bewildered. They want to know what our policy is and why. The hostility toward the State Department can be traced right back to the bewilderment of the people."

"Well, what should we do about it?" Acheson inquired.

"Tell the story over and over again," was Gillette's advice. "Why are our boys fighting in Korea? Why do we need an army for the defense of Western Europe? Why must we raise taxes and impose controls and rationing for defense? Tell the story simply."

"We are doing all we can, Senator," said the Secretary of State. "Members of the department are speaking as never before."

"I made 22 speeches in the last 10 days," volunteered one of Acheson's aides.

Senator Gillette shook his head. "There are only two people who carry the weight to be listened to—the President and you, Mr. Secretary. You must stump the country, if need be, to explain and sell our foreign policy."

NOTE—Real fact is that a Secretary of State almost has to be two people—a politician, in order to sell foreign policy to the public and the Senate; and a student of foreign affairs, in order to decide what that policy should be. It is hard to find a man who can do both.

MATTER OF FACT

Truman's Evolution

WASHINGTON

ONE OF THE most encouraging developments in a discouraging period is a marked change in President Truman's approach to the problem of his Cabinet. Two months ago, even a month ago, the President responded with hostility and ridicule to all suggestions that a coalition Administration, including leading Republicans, would help to secure national unity for the perilous times ahead.

Within the past fortnight, in contrast, the President has discussed the coalition idea calmly and sympathetically with a number of the men who are closest to him. Nothing definite has been decided, and it would be very foolish to predict that eminent Republicans will be brought into the cabinet in the near future. But this has at least become a distinct possibility—which in itself is a considerable accomplishment for the numerous leading Democrats and White House advisors who have been urging coalition upon the President ever since the November election.

The President has not been shaken, on the other hand, in his determination not to touch the State Department. Some of those best qualified to judge are now inclined to think that the President would accept the resignation of Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson if it were spontaneously offered — which is also a change from the former Presidential attitude.

But the President none the less continues to repeat that Secretary Acheson is the very best man for his job; that any successor would run into the same trouble with Congress; and that the attacks upon Acheson are really attacks upon him, Truman.

Truman in fact seems to have acquired a rooted conviction that all criticism, however just, of any member of the White House circle, however high or low, is merely motivated by a desire to "get the President." Hence anyone who is publicly criticized, from the Secretary of State to the shabbiest little peddler of White House influence at the RFC, can be pretty sure of an angry defense from Truman. A cynic has remarked that the best way to keep a job, nowadays, is to get in a mess or to do wrong, and then get the fact in the papers.

In these circumstances, obviously, it is foolishly optimistic to look for the kind of immensely fruitful and effective coalition Administration that would be made possible if Secretary Acheson bowed out. Although he might conceivably accept his resignation, the President will not ask Acheson to resign. The Secretary shows no wish to do so. And thus he must be regarded, for a while longer at least, as a fixed star in the official firmament.

Hence if leading Republicans are

Circumstances Make Rail Dispute Mediation Hard

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The railroads and the labor unions are getting closer toward a peace treaty. But there are some mysterious circumstances being revealed which show why the task of mediation at the White House has been made doubly difficult.

A controversy has developed over the part played by John R. Steelman, special assistant to the President. For several days now efforts have been made from labor sources to discredit Mr. Steelman's role, and this has been done partly by the dissemination of a report that he had set himself up as a sort of "czar" or "three-year arbitrator."

This report is wholly untrue but the reason for spreading it would appear to be to try to weaken Mr. Steelman's influence at the President's side. Actually John Steelman is one of the ace mediators in the country. For seven years he was the head of the U.S. Conciliation Service, and was involved in the handling of more than 10,000 strikes or threatened strikes and more than 30,000 labor disputes of all types. Mr. Steelman is not assigned exclusively to labor matters at the White House but assists in general administrative tasks and gets into labor problems only when they are sufficiently acute to require the attention of the President himself.

Steelman's Record Good

In the face of the long and efficient record of Mr. Steelman as a mediator, it came as a surprise to find the unions charging that he had set himself up as a "three-year arbitrator." The facts with reference to Mr. Steelman's part in the recent negotiations are these:

1. Mr. Steelman was not assigned to the railroad dispute by the White House but became involved in it at the special request of the four union presidents. He agreed to call meetings but with the understanding that the Railway Mediation Board would participate in the discussions.

2. When, on December 21, a memorandum agreement was signed in full by the four presidents of the railroad unions as well as by the representatives of the railroads, the document set forth the understanding of both parties. It was not in legal language but it recited unequivocally the basic points of agreement in the form of a summary.

3. It was fully understood by both sides that the points in this memorandum would be put into legal language later. There was a provision which said that if the parties could not agree on the "details" before writing the actual agreement itself, John Steelman was to make the final decision.

4. This service to be rendered by Mr. Steelman was to end as soon as the agreement was drawn up in legal language and hence his part was to be temporary—probably for a few days.

5. There was an understanding at the time that a blank space was to be left on one of the points dealing with the price for coupling or uncoupling hose but, once the final agreement on this rule was reached, Mr. Steelman was no longer to arbitrate anything.

6. An understanding was reached also that after July 1, 1952, the parties would go to Mr. Steelman again in connection with wage stabilization but only to set in motion machinery whereby the President of the United States would appoint a referee to determine whether further wage increases were justified under government policy.

Attack Viewed As Unfair

The foregoing sets forth the actual connection of Mr. Steelman with the entire affair, and yet for some odd reason there has been an effort to make it appear that somehow the President's assistant was setting himself up for some special job of a permanent nature out of which presumably he was to derive a benefit.

This type of unfair attack could only have been started as a reprisal against Mr. Steelman because he stood his ground—and so did the President—in insisting that the original memorandum of points signed on December 21 was binding and that the four union presidents who signed it should in good faith have recommended it to their organization instead of backing down on it.

Mr. Steelman has been the center of controversy before when he settled the coal miner's dispute in 1941 as a special arbitrator appointed by the late President Roosevelt but he was attacked then as too friendly to the unions. Plainly the lot of a mediator is a hard, hard lot, but John Steelman's record for fairness isn't going to be tarnished by insidious propaganda from rail unions which played "sick" and recently caused hundreds of millions of dollars in losses to the American people.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Infantry In Front

THE Great Debate is to result in hearings before the Senate. A terrific array of brass is to be called—in uniform, bedecked and emblazoned. The principal witnesses will be doughboys—infantrymen, ground troops, Generals Marshall, Eisenhower and Bradley. The Navy had a tough time when Louis Johnson was Secretary of Defense; now it is the Navy and the Air Force who are silenced.

But infantry alone will not win a war. There are many effective, if not more effective functional groups: the Air Force, the Navy, artillery, cavalry (tanks), to say nothing of all the new scientific and psychological agencies.

Have you noticed how silent these branches have been? Have you noted that during the whole of the Great Debate General Hoyt Vandenberg of the Air Force, who used to be quite vocal, has been silent as though he did not exist? And what has become of Admiral Forrest Sherman? Have these services no views to pass on to the Congress and to the American people?

Well, I have been asking these questions and I was told that effective December 12, 1950, "no speeches or public announcements will be made by armed forces personnel until clearance has been obtained. Copies of future speeches, statements, or press releases concerning foreign or military policy must be submitted to this headquarters (Pentagon) for proper clearance.

"All personnel, particularly those overseas, will refrain from making public statements or communicating with news media on military or foreign policy without prior clearance with this headquarters. The purpose is not to curtail the flow of information to the American people but to insure that the information is accurate and in accord with the policies of the United States Government."

Such instructions have not been unusual in recent years, but that last sentence is political nonsense. The head of the Air Force or the Navy is accurate when he responsibly testifies before a congressional committee. Why should one assume that General Hoyt Vandenberg or Admiral Forrest Sherman, so testifying under oath, is less responsible and accurate than Generals George Marshall, Dwight Eisenhower or Omar Bradley? Does the infantry have a monopoly of the truth? There was a time when all military men sang together as perfectly as a Fred Waring glee club, but apparently those days are gone.

It has come to me, in an indirect manner, perhaps irresponsibly, that the following instructions were added to those of December 12:

"Officers may, upon their own responsibility and at their own discretion, make remarks concerning unclassified matters of foreign or military policies to selected groups for background purposes only and not for publication, without obtaining prior clearance, provided that their remarks are confined to the bounds of policies which have been publicly announced by the White House, State or Defense Departments."

In other words, what is permissible is that which has been politically cleared. While Congress gropes for the facts so that it may pass the legislation required to defend this country, high-ranking officers of our armed services have been gagged, by orders, requiring them to watch their politics.

Until these orders are withdrawn, these men may not speak truthfully if the truth contradicts policy. They are soldiers and are required by their profession to obey their superiors in a chain of command reaching upward to the President who, while a politician, is Commander-in-Chief.

Therefore, the Congress may never have the whole truth in open hearings. That does not mean that human nature, being what it is,

Fellowship Of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotional

SEEING THE CROWD WITH HIM

He had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd.

Mark 6:34 (R.S.V.).
Read Isaiah 40:1—11

There can be no abiding fellowship with Jesus if we are going to part company with him at the point where the crowd needs shepherding.

When Jesus stood there in the desert and looked about, "he saw a great throng." He had eyes for them, a heart of compassion towards them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd.

A shepherd is not a hireling. He risks his life for the sheep. He carries the lambs in his bosom and tenderly leads those that are with young. The sheep do not reason themselves into the thicket. They nibble at this little tuft of grass and that, slake their thirst at this little running stream, and so get way from the fold. A sheep is stupid.

Is the crowd anything but stupid? It blunders into sin. It makes a sorry spectacle of itself. Someone must always be going after it and bringing it back. Only those who abide in the fellowship of Jesus will see both the good and the evil, and will labor to make the good triumph.

Let Us Pray: May we never forget, our Father, that it is the multitude that needs our compassion. Give to those who follow thee minds that think thy thoughts after thee, and hearts that are filled with the compassionate love of Jesus. In his name we pray. Amen.

Land Reform In Asia

Poverty and low living standards among the peasant masses of Asia, resulting in large part from prevailing land tenure systems, have provided a fertile field for Communist exploitation and, by the same token, have turned the attention of American officials to the formidable problem of land reform in the Far and Middle East. It is recognized that progress toward solving that problem is essential to the success of efforts to stem the spread of Communist influence in this great area of the world.

Under the Point Four program, the United States stands ready to assist non-Communist countries in expanding their food production. But the issue of land tenure stands directly between Point Four and the attainment of its basic objective—"sound agricultural production on a democratic basis for the benefit of the people." A prospect of some direct material gain is necessary to induce those who work the land to improve present methods of land use. To provide that incentive, millions who are now tenants and hopelessly in debt to their landlords must be assisted to attain ownership of the land and instructed how to put it to the best use.

Promises to distribute land to the people and free them from the exactions of landlords are one of the most effective weapons in the arsenal of Communist propaganda in a region such as Asia, where eight out of ten persons are peasants and a high proportion do not own the land they cultivate. Twenty years ago, when Chinese Communists first came into position to fulfill such promises, they confiscated and redistributed all of the holdings of large landowners and nullified contracts of indebtedness in areas under their control. In succeeding years their land measures were alternately modified and tightened to suit changing political conditions. Now exercising power over all of China, the Communists are applying a complicated scheme of reform designed to reduce but not eliminate inequalities of land ownership while at the same time maintaining the volume of agricultural production. Similar reforms were carried out under Russian auspices in North Korea soon after the war ended.

In Communist strategy and theory land reform is a device for gaining peasant support in the struggle for power. But individual peasant ownership and management of land is considered acceptable only in backward countries and only while a Communist regime is consolidating its power. The ultimate goal is collectivization of agriculture. Already in China model state farms are being established and formation of farm cooperatives is being encouraged. Hence peasant gains under Communist agrarian reforms may be relatively short-lived, despite current disclaimers of any intention to socialize agriculture.

Some progress toward land reform on an enduring basis has been made since the war in non-Communist countries. Legislation to abolish traditional landlordism and redistribute land has been enacted in a number of the states of India. Drastic reforms carried out under American auspices in occupied Japan involved government purchase of more than nine million acres and their resale to tenants in such a way as to make 90 per cent of all cultivators the owners of land. Reform measures were instituted also in South Korea but were not completed before the Communist invasion.

Accomplishment elsewhere in non-Communist Asia has been limited. An extensive program of ECA aid to the Philippines is being used to prod the Manila government into taking action to redistribute land and assure minimum wages to farm workers, but the Philippine Congress has so far shown reluctance to fulfill such stipulations in the ECA agreement. Attaching conditions to American aid is nevertheless advocated as a means of applying effective pressure to bring about land reform in other countries seeking economic assistance from the United States.

The importance of land reform in non-Communist Asia was recently emphasized by Supreme Court Justice Douglas, who said in a magazine article last month: "Land reform would not only deprive the Soviets of their most powerful propaganda; it would make each peasant a capitalist. No greater political barrier to communism could be designed."

Where Lenin Was Right

Reports of outbreaks of "titoism" behind the Iron Curtain are in the category of rumors rather than of facts. If they turn out to be true, they may add up to one of the big news stories of 1951.

The disappearance of former Foreign Minister Clementis and the house arrest of President Gootwald of Czechoslovakia, the desertion of the party by important Communist officials of France and Italy, together with persistent indications of similar difficulties farther east, may be signs of an outbreak of "bourgeois deviationism" that could shake the bolshevik monolith to its foundations.

Lenin would have understood such a development. He warned the comrades: "We Russians have never been able to make anything but serfs of conquered people." And he once wrote a letter saying that Stalin, though a useful tool, was too ruthless and bloody a man to unite the cause of world communism.

Communist leaders like to be able to tell themselves that their tactics and principles will make their own countries better. Stalin clashes headon with such ingrained patriotic sentiments when he forces his lieutenants in other lands to put Russia first and the homeland second. This policy has already lost Yugoslavia to bolshevism, and Tito's example has inspired widespread envy in those lands where the Communists are strongest.

The United States probably cannot lend much direct aid to Communist deviationists. But time is on this country's side in this category, and may produce inside the Communist world splits such as few today dare hope for.

Another Hootenanny

Nobody seems to be sure what the flying saucers, if there really were any, were doing. And recently they don't seem to have been doing even that. Maybe they gave up because they couldn't find any flying cups.

Instead of flying saucers, people are now seeing flying telephone poles—and red for good measure. Plenty of folks said they saw one over Galena, Ill., the other night. It was about 10 times the length of an ordinary pole, though, and a brilliant red to boot. They said it moved silently and slowly. Many of these folks were "very reputable and responsible persons," too.

There were also reports from Wisconsin of a brilliant blue flash. But that was probably just an ordinary meteor.

Bursitis Of The Elbow

YOU NEED NOT be a tennis player to acquire tennis elbow. This painful condition is seen in individuals from all walks of life. It occurs more commonly, however, in certain athletes and in carpenters, street car motormen, press operators, pipefitters, leather workers, painters, butchers, and typists. In these occupations the arm and elbow are in constant use. Knitters develop the disorder occasionally.

The basic cause is mild but continuous injury to the joint on the outer side of the elbow. This often is produced by grasping or twisting the hand, especially when the elbow is extended. When this is done day after day over a period of years, the area about the joint is forced to undergo unusual strain. This may be the penalty we pay for using as many tools as we do today.

Pain is more noticeable over the outer aspect of the elbow opposite the "crazy bone" and over the joint formed by the larger bone of the upper arm (humerus) and the radium of the forearm. Distress may be so mild that it is noted only when performing certain maneuvers, or so severe that the victim has no choice but to carry the arm in a sling. The best test is a simple one in which the individual picks up a large telephone directory or Bible. He is able to do so in comfort with the palm up and the fingers below but winces when the palm is downward, above the book and the thumb bears the weight. Occasionally the physician also is able to elicit a tenderness over the protruding bony prominences along the outer aspect of the elbow.

Discomfort usually is so acute that the sufferer is positive he must have struck his elbow against a table or work bench. When asked for more details he is unable to recall the exact accident nor is he able to show a bruise, abrasion, or discoloration. X-ray generally is negative. It is believed that pain stems from a tear in the tendons in this area or from inflammation of the bursa that surrounds the joint.

Bursae are small sacs, or sheaths, placed by nature between moving parts. There are 26 in the body and the radiohumeral bursa in the elbow is one of the few that leads to trouble. When a tendon or muscle, for example, goes around a bend such as the shoulder it needs some cushioning to work efficiently. This is the bursa. The majority are filled with a small amount of lubricating fluid and when irritated the liquid increases in amount to such an extent that swelling is perceptible. This is most noticeable when the busa about the knee is involved (housemaid's knee) or the tip of the elbow (miner's elbow). In tennis elbow, however, there is not much enlargement even when inflammation is acute.

Treatment is the same, regardless of cause. Mild cases often are helped by keeping the arm inactive, or at least avoiding movements that produce pain. Distress may be eased by soaking the elbow in hot water or using a heat lamp or an electric pad for half an hour two or three times daily. English physicians rely on deep massage and manipulation. "Needling" is advocated by many surgeons; in this procedure the area is anesthetized and the fluid withdrawn from the bursa via a sharp needle. One or more such treatments may be needed before the condition subsides. X-ray therapy also has been recommended and now and then it is necessary to remove the bursa to give relief.

TOMORROW: Cross-eye should be treated early for best results.

General Ridgway Profited By Past Korean Mistakes; Deserves Credit For Recent Victory; Acheson Should Be Two Men Instead Of One

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Some senators seem to believe that it is a criminal matter for a newspaper to criticize military mistakes. This is a view also shared by many brass hats—though not all.

However, mistakes are sometimes rectified chiefly through knowing about them, and a case in point is the magnificent manner in which Gen. Matthew Ridgeway has profited from the mistakes of General MacArthur in turning a tragic defeat into Korean victory.

While the very loyal MacArthur clique may argue that he is still supreme commander in Tokyo, and therefore deserves credit for the current victory, the indisputable facts are that General Ridgway was sent to Korea direct from Washington where he had been deputy chief of staff and as such was in close contact with the Pentagon's views of warfare. It also is an indisputable fact that Ridgway won his victory with no new fresh troops and facing a somewhat stronger enemy than MacArthur.

According to military observers who read the battle dispatches here is how Ridgway profited by mistakes and accomplished his remarkable feat:

CAREFUL INTELLIGENCE — MacArthur conducted only limited patrolling for three or four days before launching his attack. Then, after the attack boomeranged, the Eighth Army retreated so fast that it lost all contact with the enemy and for several weeks didn't know where the Communists were.

In contrast, Ridgway conducted aggressive patrolling for eight to ten days before kicking off his offensive. He sent heavy patrols deep into enemy territory in so-called "reconnaissance in force." His orders were to disrupt any Communist build-up, to inflict as many casualties as possible and to survey enemy position. The lack of patrolling by MacArthur failed to detect the Chinese Communist build-up that swept our armies back to the 38th parallel. However, Ridgway's troops knew exactly what to expect.

PUBLIC RELATIONS—MacArthur announced his offensive the same morning it was launched, predicting his troops would be "home by Christmas." Ridgway waited until his offensive had been rolling over 24 hours before announcing it.

POOR BATTLE LIAISON—MacArthur struck in all directions at once. His troops were fanned out from one end of North Korea to the other, in no position to head off a surprise counterattack. The Eighth Army and Tenth Corps also had no battle liaison, had to coordinate their actions through Tokyo.

In contrast, Ridgway opened his attack on the Western front, but didn't order his Eastern front to move until nine days later—after he was sure all was going well. He had the added advantage of being in full command in the field, and wasn't forced to direct two fronts by remote control from Tokyo.

CONTRAST IN CASUALTIES—MacArthur suffered devastating casualties after the Chinese hit, lost more than 15,000 casualties in two weeks. Later, the Marines, who broke out of the Chosin Reservoir trap, mowed down the Chinese at a ratio of 20 to one. However, Ridgway's losses during the first two weks of his offensive were the lightest of the Korean War. He suffered less than 1,500 casualties, at the same time taking a toll of 52,000 Communist casualties.

In fairness to MacArthur and in tribute to the Air Force, Ridgway has been meeting more scattered opposition. This is largely because the Air Force has raked enemy positions with devastating fire bombs and rocket fire. Ridgway's aggressive, armored patrols also killed and rooted out Communists along the path of the offensive. As a result, the main Chinese Communist force is reported to be digging in north of the 38th Parallel.

It should also be pointed out that MacArthur's supply lines in North Korea were stretched, whereas the Chinese Communists were then only a few miles from their supply bases. This situation has now been reversed.

Ridgway's advance patrolling and careful preparation, however, made the big difference between defeat and victory.

Both Hands And Feet

Sgt. Rolland McDonald of Fort Bliss, Texas, read in this column about a Marine colonel who endorsed his state pension check over to Pfc. Robert L. Smith, who lost both arms and both legs in Korea, then had his teeth kicked out by a Chinese Communist. Sergeant McDonald was so touched that he wrote a check for $25 and asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas to forward it to the quadruple amputee.

"It was impressed upon me," wrote Sergeant McDonald, "that the Pfc. maybe has a little something coming from most of us who haven't yet been sent to Korea. At any rate, here is my attempt to pay a little of the debt that the citizens of the country owe him."

Fame Is Fleeting

Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan, wartime boss of the cloak-and-dagger Office of Strategic Services, learned the other day how fleeting is fame.

The General returned to his old offices, now occupied by the successor outfit, Central Intelligence Agency, and was stopped by a conscientious guard. Then a receptionist politely asked him to fill out a card giving his full name, address and who he wanted to see.

Dutifully the man who once ruled supreme over this important office obeyed.

Explaining Foreign Policy

Secretary of State Dean Acheson got an education on the headaches of senators at a private luncheon for new members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Over the coffee cups, Sen. Guy Gillette, the white-haired solon from Iowa, turned to Acheson.

"Every congressman has been swamped with mail on foreign policy," he said. "I've had 6,000 letters on this topic since Christmas. People are confused and bewildered. They want to know what our policy is and why. The hostility toward the State Department can be traced right back to the bewilderment of the people."

"Well, what should we do about it?" Acheson inquired.

"Tell the story over and over again," was Gillette's advice. "Why are our boys fighting in Korea? Why do we need an army for the defense of Western Europe? Why must we raise taxes and impose controls and rationing for defense? Tell the story simply."

"We are doing all we can, Senator," said the Secretary of State. "Members of the department are speaking as never before."

"I made 22 speeches in the last 10 days," volunteered one of Acheson's aides.

Senator Gillette shook his head. "There are only two people who carry the weight to be listened to—the President and you, Mr. Secretary. You must stump the country, if need be, to explain and sell our foreign policy."

NOTE—Real fact is that a Secretary of State almost has to be two people—a politician, in order to sell foreign policy to the public and the Senate; and a student of foreign affairs, in order to decide what that policy should be. It is hard to find a man who can do both.

Circumstances Make Rail Dispute Mediation Hard

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The railroads and the labor unions are getting closer toward a peace treaty. But there are some mysterious circumstances being revealed which show why the task of mediation at the White House has been made doubly difficult.

A controversy has developed over the part played by John R. Steelman, special assistant to the President. For several days now efforts have been made from labor sources to discredit Mr. Steelman's role, and this has been done partly by the dissemination of a report that he had set himself up as a sort of "czar" or "three-year arbitrator."

This report is wholly untrue but the reason for spreading it would appear to be to try to weaken Mr. Steelman's influence at the President's side. Actually John Steelman is one of the ace mediators in the country. For seven years he was the head of the U.S. Conciliation Service, and was involved in the handling of more than 10,000 strikes or threatened strikes and more than 80,000 labor disputes of all types. Mr. Steelman is not assigned exclusively to labor matters at the White House but assists in general administrative tasks and gets into labor problems only when they are sufficiently acute to require the attention of the President himself.

Steelman's Record Good

In the face of the long and efficient record of Mr. Steelman as a mediator, it came as a surprise to find the unions charging that he had set himself up as a "three-year arbitrator." The facts with reference to Mr. Steelman's part in the recent negotiations are these:

1. Mr. Steelman was not assigned to the railroad dispute by the White House but became involved in it at the special request of the four union presidents. He agreed to call meetings but with the understanding that the Railway Mediation Board would participate in the discussions.

2. When, on December 21, a memorandum agreement was signed in full by the four presidents of the railroad unions as well as by the representatives of the railroads, the document set forth the understanding of both parties. It was not in legal language but it recited unequivocally the basic points of agreement in the form of a summary.

3. It was fully understood by both sides that the points in this memorandum would be put into legal language later. There was a provision which said that if the parties could not agree on the "details" before writing the actual agreement itself, John Steelman was to make the final decision.

4. This service to be rendered by Mr. Steelman was to end as soon as the agreement was drawn up in legal language and hence his part was to be temporary—probably for a few days.

5. There was an understanding at the time that a blank space was to be left on one of the points dealing with the price for coupling or uncoupling hose but, once the final agreement on this rule was reached Mr. Steelman was no longer to arbitrate anything.

6. An understanding was reached also that after July 1, 1952, the parties would go to Mr. Steelman again in connection with wage stabilization but only to set in motion machinery whereby the President of the United States would appoint a referee to determine whether further wage increases were justified under government policy.

Attack Viewed As Unfair

The foregoing sets forth the actual connection of Mr. Steelman with the entire affair, and yet for some odd reason there has been an effort to make it appear that somehow the President's assistant was setting himself up for some special job of a permanent nature out of which presumably he was to derive a benefit.

This type of unfair attack could only have been started as a reprisal against Mr. Steelman because he stood his ground—and so did the President—in insisting that the original memorandum of points signed on December 21 was binding and that the four union presidents who signed it should in good faith have recommended it to their organization instead of backing down on it.

Mr. Steelman has been the center of controversy before when he settled the coal miner's dispute in 1941 as a special arbitrator appointed by the late President Roosevelt but he was attacked then as unfriendly to the unions. Plainly the lot of a mediator is a hard, hard lot, but John Steelman's record for fairness isn't going to be tarnished by insidious propaganda from rail unions which played "sick" and recently caused hundreds of millions of dollars in losses to the American people.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Infantry In Front

THE Great Debate is to result in hearings before the Senate. A terrific array of brass is to be called—in uniform, bedecked and emblazoned. The principal witnesses will be doughboys—infantrymen, ground troops. Generals Marshall, Eisenhower and Bradley. The Navy had a tough time when Louis Johnson was Secretary of Defense; now it is the Navy and the Air Force who are silenced.

But infantry alone will not win a war. There are many effective, if not more effective functional groups: the Air Force, the Navy, artillery, cavalry (tanks), to say nothing of all the new scientific and psychological agencies.

Have you noticed how silent these branches have been? Have you noted that during the whole of the Great Debate General Hoyt Vandenberg of the Air Force, who used to be quite vocal, has been silent as though he did not exist? And what has become of Admiral Forrest Sherman? Have these services no views to pass on to the Congress and to the American people?

Well, I have been asking these questions and I was told that effective December 12, 1950, "no speeches or public announcements will be made by armed forces personnel until clearance has been obtained. Copies of future speeches, statements, or press releases concerning foreign or military policy must be submitted to this headquarters (Pentagon) for proper clearance.

"All personnel, particularly those overseas, will refrain from making public statements or communicating with news media on military or foreign policy without prior clearance with this headquarters. The purpose is not to curtail the flow of information to the American people but to insure that the information is accurate and in accord with the policies of the United States Government."

Such instructions have not been unusual in recent years, but that last sentence is political nonsense. The head of the Air Force or the Navy is accurate when he responsibly testifies before a congressional committee. Why should one assume that General Hoyt Vandenberg or Admiral Forrest Sherman, so testifying under oath, is less responsible and accurate than Generals George Marshall, Dwight Eisenhower or Omar Bradley? Does the infantry have a monopoly of the truth? There was a time when all military men sang together as perfectly as a Fred Waring glee club, but apparently those days are gone.

It has come to me, in an indirect manner, perhaps irresponsibly, that the following instructions were added to those of December 12:

"Officers may, upon their own responsibility and at their own discretion, make remarks concerning unclassified matters of foreign or military policies to selected groups for background purposes only and not for publication, without obtaining prior clearance, provided that their remarks are confined to the bounds of policy which have been publicly announced by the White House, State or Defense Departments."

In other words, what is permissible is that which has been politically cleared. While Congress groped for the facts so that it may pass the legislation required to defend this country, high-ranking officers of our armed services have been gagged, by orders, requiring them to watch their politics.

Until these orders are withdrawn these men may not speak truthfully if the truth contradicts policy. They are soldiers and are required by their profession to obey the superiors in a chain of command reaching upward to the President who, while a politician, is Commander-in-Chief.

Therefore, the Congress may never have the whole truth in open hearings. That does not mean the human nature, being what it

Fellowship Of Prayer

SEEING THE CROWD WITH HIS

He had compassion on them because they were like sheep without a shepherd.

Mark 6:34 (R.S.V.).
Read Isaiah 40:1—11

There can be no abiding fellowship with Jesus if we are going to part company with him at the point where the crowd needs shepherding.

When Jesus stood there in the desert and looked about, "he saw a great throng." He had eyes for them, a heart of compassion towards them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd.

A shepherd is not a hireling. He risks his life for the sheep. He carries the lambs in his bosom and tenderly leads those that are with young. The sheep do not reason themselves into the thicket. They nibble at this little tuft of grass and that, slake their thirst at this little running stream, and so get wide from the fold. A sheep is stupid.

Is the crowd anything but stupid? It blunders into sin. It makes a sorry spectacle of itself. Someone must always be going after it and bringing it back. Only those who abide in the fellowship of Jesus will see both the good and the evil, and will labor to make the good triumph.

Let Us Pray: May we never forget, our Father, that it is the multitude that needs our compassion. Give to those who follow thee mind that think thy thoughts after them and hearts that are filled with the compassionate love of Jesus. In his name we pray. Amen.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

(By Representative J. Glenn Beall, Sixth Maryland District)

THE HOUSE last week approved a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act only after accepting amendments aimed at protecting American industry and barring future trade concessions to Russia and its satellites. Forty-six Democrats joined with Republicans in voting these amendments. The peril-point system, voted into the act by the 80th Congress and rescinded by the 81st Congress, was included in the amendments. This peril-point proviso requires the President to give Congress a full explanation any time he agrees to cut United States tariff rates below a "peril-point" established for a commodity by the tariff commission.

In addition to prohibiting tariff concessions in the future to Russia or any of her satellites, there is a completely new "escape clause" procedure, under which the Tariff Commission could investigate any tariff concession to another nation and determine whether it seriously injured an American industry and could recommend withdrawal or modification of such concession or creation of import quotas. All this is a step in the right direction to protect American industry against slave labor wages which has been flooding the American markets with imports below the cost of manufacturing the same products in this country. The bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

In order to induce the holders of savings of "E" war bonds, the House approved a bill which will permit holders of these bonds to continue to draw 2.9 per cent interest over a second 10-year period as well as for the first 10 years. Thus it is to the interest of holders of these bonds not to cash them. The Senate is expected to approve this bill.

Following the report of the Senate Banking Committee which asserted that members of the White House staff and the Democrat National Committee exerted undue influence in RFC loans, Senator Schoeppel of Kansas has urged a Federal grand jury investigation on political fixing and favoritism in granting millions of dollars of loans. Many members of Congress have been insisting upon such an investigation for some time after reports of unsound loans have come to their attention and have been in favor of the appointing of a competent director instead of the five-man board to direct the activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has introduced a change in its procedure for consideration of bills before that committee. It has decided to call in the authors of all bills referred to the committee and give them an opportunity to speak for 15 minutes on behalf of their proposals. This revised procedure should serve to give the committee a better understanding of the proposals and House members a better chance to participate effectively in the framing of legislation on foreign affairs.

UNDER THE DOME

I have requested the Postmaster General to consider the issuance of a stamp commemorating the one hundredth anniversary o. the ice-cream industry in America. The first operation of this kind was in Baltimore in 1851. The Maryland State Historial Society is sponsoring some of the centennial year program and all of the ice-cream industry—nation-wide—is very much interested in having such a stamp struck

Numerous letters are being received relative to the proposed closing of the Veterans Administration office in Hagerstown. I have protested the closing of this office because I feel that it is needed in that area and has served a good purpose.

The Surgeon General advised me the Outpatient Annex of the Marine Hospital in Baltimore will continue until June 30, 1951, at which time it is hoped that provisions will be made to further continue its operation.

It was my honor to act as master of ceremonies at the exercises held at the Lincoln Memorial on February 5. I introduced the various speakers and Governor McKeldin placed a wreath at the memorial.

Warehouse To Get Street Complaints

Public complaints on streets, alleys or other projects under the Street Department should be called to the warehouse and not the administrative office in City Hall, Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said today.

Mrs. Roeder, in a move to speed up action on complaints received, urged the public to cooperate in making requests by telephoning 1134 instead of to the downtown office.

By channeling complaints to the warehouse, Mrs. Roeder said, better use may be made of the department's facilities.

Time is lost when administrative employes at the City Hall must stop their work, take the complaint and then re-call the complaint to the warehouse.

February 22 is also the monthly Full Master Point Night.

A Special Winners Game will be held March 1. At the present time there are 44 players eligible to compete in this Winners Game, plus the winners in tonight and next Thursday night sessions.

The winning teams, both North and South, and East and West, will receive two Full Master Points.

All players who do not qualify for the Special Winners Game, will play in Section "B" in a Howell Movement and the winner in this section will qualify for the next winner game, which is to be held sometime in May.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

WORD'S around that the President must take a rest . . . The unparalleled Administration propaganda machine has gone to work . . . Word leaks out on the radio, in the press services, in columns and at cocktail parties that the President looks tired, that he's working too long and too hard . . . The only needed touch is a remark on recuperation from his personal physician, which may be expected at any time, when it appears that Truman can safely absent himself from Washington. So, like other unmistakable signs of spring, the President will take off early in March for Key West, or Guantanamo, Cuba, where the Atlantic Fleet bases in winter maneuvers . . . He has, of course, already declined all invitations to dinners and to-do's during the emergency . . . But a man needs some relaxation and, as a matter of fact, thanks to modern communications, he's almost as close to work on his train, plane or yacht as he would be in the Blair House . . . He has phones, radios, telegraph and not only gets reports but can talk to his officials frequently . . . Could get back by plane in a few hours.

AUSTINE

Hearts and Flowers—and Cupids shooting arrows—all the St. Valentine sentiment in the air started me asking some of the nationally-known couples who swim in this Fish Bowl, "How did you meet each other?" . . . The public often reads their speeches, and their press statements, or about their feuds, finances and social life, their new appointments, resignations or indignations . . . But you seldom read much about their big romances . . . Still, most of them are not too busy enjoying pleasant and successful lives together to stop and remember "how I met my mate:"

One couple whose name you read in the newspapers every day met in the U. S. Rubber Company—of all places . . . She was a secretary for the company and Mr. Cyrus Ching, now U. S. Wage Stabilizer, was director of public relations.

"When Cy's secretary left to get married he telephoned the man for whom I worked. Took him out to lunch, persuaded him to let me take over the job," says Mrs. Ching, a soft-eyed, intelligent brunette. "Cy didn't propose for a long time. One day after he had come to Washington he met me at the Pennsylvania Station. That's where it happened. I accepted, later on, of course," she laughed. "And he fired me. We've been married for eight years."

• — • — •

Another romance began when a fine soldier was invited to a dinner in Columbus, Georgia . . . The hostess had set the stage to introduce him to a former college chum of hers . . . The college chum turned out to be an attractive widow from Baltimore . . . The widow naturally was charmed by the eligible lieutenant colonel, then assistant commandant of the Infantry Training School at Fort Benning . . . But she let him take two years to win her, and make her Mrs. George Marshall, now Mrs. Secretary of Defense.

• — • — •

Mrs. Harry P. Cain met the man who would be her husband and the Senator from Washington State while he was directing a Little Theatre group in Takoma . . . "Harry came in with the man who was designing our sets. He was my leading man from the beginning. We were married ten days later."

Representative Eugene Cox from Georgia was invited to be an "extra man" at the house of a friend in Sylvester, Georgia . . . Two years later his dinner partner for that night became his wife, who says, "I fell in love with him when I first met him. And it keeps getting better and better as the years go by. He's such a sweet thing."

Sen. Langer of N. Dak. stood up on the floor of the Senate to tell about his heart throb . . . I quote from the Congressional Record:

"I met her while I was attending a philharmonic concert at Earle Hall (he was studying law at Columbia University). While I was at the concert a friend of mine, Robert Erskine, walked in with a very, very beautiful young lady. They took their seats in the sixth row, four seats in from the aisle (what a memory!). I arranged to send a fake telephone call to the rear of the hall and had Mr. Erskine paged. When Mr. Erskine left his seat, I went down and sat in his place. The young lady said, 'I beg your pardon, but there must be some mistake.' I liked the tone of her voice. I liked the way she acted. When she said 'This seat belongs to Mr. Erskine' I said she was mistaken and that the seat belonged to me. I kept possession of the seat. So I met the young lady and I made up my mind immediately the first time I saw her that if she would have me I would marry her."

• — • — •

President Truman's Air Force Aide, Gen. Bob Landry and his wife both come from New Orleans. "We've been married eighteen years. I can't remember any time when I did not know Bob. But I do remember he went to the same school with my brother and I used to go over to see my brother, supposedly. I went to see Bob some more after he went to West Point. And I'll never forget the time when I got there and he had already chosen a 'miniature.'"

Mrs. Landry still wears the tiny replica of her husband's West Point ring.

Even while you are shopping, you can give yourself the finest beauty treatment for your hands! / Try it!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Did you ever count the number of times a day that your hands are subjected to soap and water? Each time they are robbed of some of their surface oils, inviting the roughness and redness that steal their beauty.

Do you take every precaution to avoid this pilferage of your hands' loveliness? Even with myriad household chores, you can keep them soft and fair just by doing five things.

Protecting Hand Beauty

One, avoid excessive exposure of your hands by wearing waterproof gloves to perform as many soap-and-water or grimy tasks as possible. Or use one of the amazing new rub-on products that actually coat your hands against harm of all kinds and rinse off easily when the job is done.

Two, avoid washing your hands with soap and water more often than is necessary. Instead, "wash" them with a liquid hand lotion. All the good ones contain cleansing agents as well as beauty-restoring oils. Work lavishly with your hand lotion, just as you do with a lather of soap; then rince with cool water and pat dry. Apply a second but very sparing film of lotion to protect and smooth the skin.

Three, whenever possible, rub a little facial oil on the backs of your hands. You will be surprised at how many jobs you can do, (dusting for example) without smearing the oil on any object.

Hand Beauty Treatment

Four, give your hands a weekly treatment with a little facial oil and a smooth-fitting pair of old cotton gloves. Warm a corked bottle of facial oil in a bowl of hot water. Using a tablespoon of warmed oil, massage both hands gently, paying particular attention to the nail cuticle and the knuckles. Then pull on your gloves and go about your business for the next hour. You can shop, drive or even walk the dog while giving your hands this beauty-making treatment.

Five, never use the granulated soap found in public powder rooms. Carry soap leaves or a thin sliver of your own face soap wrapped in foil.

Six, investigate the new hand-cosmetics which beautify your hands the way a foundation does your face.

In the world of charm, never underestimate the power of well-cared-for hands!

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

WORD'S around that the President must take a rest . . . The unparalleled Administration propaganda machine has gone to work . . . Word leaks out on the radio, in the press services, in columns and at cocktail parties that the President looks tired, that he's working too long and too hard . . . The only needed touch is a remark on recuperation from his personal physician, which may be expected at any time, when it appears that Truman can safely absent himself from Washington. So, like other unmistakable signs of spring, the President will take off early in March for Key West, or Guantanamo, Cuba, where the Atlantic Fleet bases in winter maneuvers . . . He has, of course, already declined all invitations to dinners and to-do's during the emergency . . . But a man needs some relaxation and, as a matter of fact, thanks to modern communications, he's almost as close to work on his train, plane or yacht as he would be in the Blair House . . . He has phones, radios, telegraph and not only gets reports but can talk to his officials frequently . . . Could get back by plane in a few hours.

AUSTINE

Hearts and Flowers—and Cupids shooting arrows—all the St. Valentine sentiment in the air started me asking some of the nationally-known couples who swim in this Fish Bowl, "How did you meet each other?" . . . The public often reads their speeches, and their press statements, or about their feuds, finances and social life, their new appointments, resignations or indignations . . . But you seldom read much about their big romances . . . Still, most of them are not too busy enjoying pleasant and successful lives together to stop and remember "how I met my mate:"

One couple whose name you read in the newspapers every day met in the U. S. Rubber Company—of all places . . . She was a secretary for the company and Mr. Cyrus Ching, now U. S. Wage Stabilizer, was director of public relations.

"When Cy's secretary left to get married he telephoned the man for whom I worked. Took him out to lunch, persuaded him to let me take over the job," says Mrs. Ching, a soft-eyed, intelligent brunette. "Cy didn't propose for a long time. One day after he had come to Washington he met me at the Pennsylvania Station. That's where it happened. I accepted, later on, of course," she laughed. "And he fired me. We've been married for eight years."

Another romance began when a fine soldier was invited to a dinner in Columbus, Georgia . . . The hostess had set the stage to introduce him to a former college chum of hers . . . The college chum turned out to be an attractive widow from Baltimore . . . The widow naturally was charmed by the eligible lieutenant colonel, then assistant commandant of the Infantry Training School at Fort Benning . . . But she let him take two years to win her, and make her Mrs. George Marshall, now Mrs. Secretary of Defense.

Mrs. Harry P. Cain met the man who would be her husband and the Senator from Washington State while he was directing a Little Theatre group in Takoma . . . "Harry came in with the man who was designing our sets. He was my leading man from the beginning. We were married ten days later."

Representative Eugene Cox from Georgia was invited to be an "extra man" at the house of a friend in Sylvester, Georgia . . . Two years later his dinner partner for that night became his wife, who says, "I fell in love with him when I first met him. And it keeps getting better and better as the years go by. He's such a sweet thing."

Sen. Langer of N. Dak. stood up on the floor of the Senate to tell about his heart throb . . . I quote from the Congressional Record:

"I met her while I was attending a philharmonic concert at Earle Hall (he was studying law at Columbia University). While I was at the concert a friend of mine, Robert Erskine, walked in with a very, very beautiful young lady. They took their seats in the sixth row, four seats in from the aisle (what a memory!). I arranged to send a fake telephone call to the rear of the hall and had Mr. Erskine paged. When Mr. Erskine left his seat, I went down and sat in his place. The young lady said, 'I beg your pardon, but there must be some mistake.' I liked the tone of her voice. I liked the way she acted. When she said 'This seat belongs to Mr. Erskine' I said she was mistaken and that the seat belonged to me. I kept possession of the seat. So I met the young lady and I made up my mind immediately the first time I saw her that if she would have me I would marry her."

President Truman's Air Force Aide, Gen. Bob Landry and his wife both come from New Orleans. "We've been married eighteen years. I can't remember any time when I did not know Bob. But I do remember he went to the same school with my brother and I used to go over to see my brother, supposedly. I went to see Bob some more after he went to West Point. And I'll never forget the time when I got there and he had already chosen a 'miniature.'"

Mrs. Landry still wears the tiny replica of her husband's West Point ring.

Even while you are shopping, you can give yourself the finest beauty treatment for your hands! Try it!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Did you ever count the number of times a day that your hands are subjected to soap and water? Each time they are robbed of some of their surface oils, inviting the roughness and redness that steal their beauty.

Do you take every precaution to acoid this pilferage of your hands' loveliness? Even with myriad household chores, you can keep them soft and fair just by doing five things.

Protecting Hand Beauty

One, avoid excessive exposure of your hands by wearing waterproof gloves to perform as many soap-and-water or grimy tasks as possible. Or use one of the amazing new rub-on products that actually coat your hands against harm of all kinds and rinse off easily when the job is done.

Two, avoid washing your hands with soap and water more often than is necessary. Instead, "wash" them with a liquid hand lotion. All the good ones contain cleansing agents as well as beauty-restoring oils. Work lavishly with your hand lotion, just as you do with a lather of soap; then rince with cool water and pat dry. Apply a second but very sparing film of lotion to protect and smooth the skin.

Three, whenever possible, rub a little facial oil on the backs of your hands. You will be surprised at how many jobs you can do, (dusting for example) without smearing the oil on any object.

Hand Beauty Treatment

Four, give your hands a weekly treatment with a little facial oil and a smooth-fitting pair of old cotton gloves. Warm a corked bottle of facial oil in a bowl of hot water. Using a tablespoon of warmed oil, massage both hands gently, paying particular attention to the nail cuticle and the knuckles. Then pull on your gloves and go about your business for the next hour. You can shop, drive or even walk the dog while giving your hands this beauty-making treatment.

Five, never use the granulated soap found in public powder rooms. Carry soap leaves or a thin sliver of your own face soap wrapped in foil.

Six, investigate the new hand-cosmetics which beautify your hands the way a foundation does your face.

Fairgo Inn Gets Beer License

A remonstrance against the issuing of a beer and wine license to the Fairgo Inn owned by Henry Schoenadel, Route 5, was ordered dismissed by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board after a hearing in theCourt House. A license was granted.

The board, however, warned Schoenadel that the rules must be followed or he may have his license revoked.

At the same time, the board ordered Joseph F. Carnell, Class B beer and wine license holder at Fred's Friendly Tavern, 33 Front Street, to appear on February 27 at 10 a. m. in the Court House before the Board to show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Carnell was convicted on January 18, in Police Court on a charge of allowing a minor to loaf in his place. Trial Magistrate Frank A. Perdew fined him $100.

Carnell was arrested by City Police after a 17-year-old boy was picked up with a Wellersburg, Pa., man in a drunken condition. They had been in the Friendly Tavern, they informed police. The youth denied drinking whisky offered him by the man in the tavern, however.

The remonstrance against Schoenadel was signed by 58 residents of the Fairgo section who said the granting of the license would be detrimental to the area.

Appointment of Mrs. Holmes Cessna as co-chairman of the Women's Division of the 1951 Allegany County Red Cross campaign was announced yesterday by William C. Walsh, general chairman of the drive that will begin here Monday, March 5, with a goal of $26,796.

Mrs. Cessna, who lives with her husband on Union Grove Road, will work with Mrs. Charles F. Helmrich, of LeFevre Road, in heading the Women's Division of the county drive. Robinson Wins Middle Crown With 13th Round TKO

Challenger Batters Jake LaMotta Unmercifully In Bruising Battle

Sugar Ray Loses Welterweight Title With His Win As NBA Rules Against Holding 2 Crowns

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO, Feb. 14 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson stripped groggy blood-smeared Jack LaMotta of his world middleweight title tonight on a technical knockout at 2:04 of the 13th round without ruining Jake's proud boast of never being floored.

Referee Frank Sykora stepped between the fierce battlers as the squat Bronx Bull sagged and grabbed Sugar Ray's trunks to avoid a knock down. LaMotta, game but badly beaten in the last five rounds, clutched the ropes and wandered to his corner under his own power.

The slick Harlem Sugar Dandy automatically yielded up his world welter weight crown under Illinois rules when his hand was raised in victory. But he became the fourth man in boxing history to have held both the welter and middle crowns during their careers.

Robinson speared stout Jake with searing lefts in the early rounds while retreating under LaMotta's body fire. When he opened the floodgates in the ninth the end was in sight.

Still Jake, who had to hump himself to make the 160 pounds, gamely fought on under teeth-rattling fire through the one-side 11th and 12th until he simply could not take any more.

As LaMotta left the ring, the big Chicago Stadium crowd gave him a send-off with "for he's a jolly good fellow" to organ accompaniment.

Robinson, savage and strong at 155½, left no doubt about this sixth renewal of a series starting in 1942 before either won a title. He took his revenge on Jake, the only man who ever beat him in his brilliant 123-bout career. And he took it the only way he knows how. Setting him up with those stabbing jabs, bobbing Jake's red-splotched head with his uppercuts and wobbling his man with looping rights to the head.

Sugar Ray wore a worried look in the first round when stout Jake in his semi-crouch bulled him to the ropes and tried to wrestle him down. Robinson was missing with his right through the early rounds but piled up points and punishment with his stinging jab.

Time after time Jake stormed back from cover, snarling through his bashed lips as he pursued the back-pedaling Ray. In the fourth he rallied strongly in the final 30 seconds to all but overcome Robinson's strong start.

Sugar Ray cut loose in the ninth, the turning point of the contest. In the tenth he bashed Jake's right eye in a furious counter attack after Jake's opening hook.

Jake shot his last dynamite in a dying swan gesture to start the 11th. Robinson covered in a corner and rode out the storm. Then he pulled the switch.

The end came as no surprise in the 13th. Robinson hit him at will. It was only a question of how much could Jake take without going down.

Robinson Wins Middle Crown With 13th Round TKO

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO, Feb. 14 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson stripped groggy blood-smeared Jack LaMotta of his world middleweight title tonight on a technical knockout at 2:04 of the 13th round without ruining Jake's proud boast of never being floored.

Referee Frank Sykora stepped between the fierce battlers as the squat Bronx Bull sagged and grabbed Sugar Ray's trunks to avoid a knock down. LaMotta, game but badly beaten in the last five rounds, clutched the ropes and wandered to his corner under his own power.

The slick Harlem Sugar Dandy automatically yielded up his world welter weight crown under Illinois rules when his hand was raised in victory. But he became the fourth man in boxing history to have held both the welter and middle crowns during their careers.

Robinson speared stout Jake with searing lefts in the early rounds while retreating under LaMotta's body fire. When he opened the floodgates in the ninth the end was in sight.

Still Jake, who had to hump himself to make the 160 pounds, gamely fought on under teeth-rattling fire through the one-side 11th and 12th until he simply could not take any more.

As LaMotta left the ring, the big Chicago Stadium crowd gave him a send-off with "for he's a jolly good fellow" to organ accompaniment.

Robinson, savage and strong at 155½, left no doubt about this sixth renewal of a series starting in 1942 before either won a title. He took his revenge on Jake, the only man who ever beat him in his brilliant 123-bout career. And he took it the only way he knows how. Setting him up with those stabbing jabs, bobbing Jake's red-splotched head with his uppercuts and wobbling his man with looping rights to the head.

Sugar Ray wore a worried look in the first round when stout Jake in his semi-crouch bulled him to the ropes and tried to wrestle him down. Robinson was missing with his right through the early rounds but piled up points and punishment with his stinging jab.

Time after time Jake stormed back from cover, snarling through his bashed lips as he pursued the back-pedaling Ray. In the fourth he rallied strongly in the final 30 seconds to all but overcome Robinson's strong start.

Sugar Ray cut loose in the ninth, the turning point of the contest. In the tenth he bashed Jake's right eye in a furious counter attack after Jake's opening hook.

Jake shot his last dynamite in a dying swan gesture to start the 11th. Robinson covered in a corner and rode out the storm. Then he pulled the switch.

The end came as no surprise in the 13th. Robinson hit him at will. It was only a question of how much could Jake take without going down.

Miss Highbrow Takes Renewal Of Columbiana

Ken Church Rides 4 Hialeah Winners

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP) —Brown Hotel Stable's Miss Highbrow and Jockey Ken Church formed a winning combination in the renewal of the $7,500 Columbia Handicap before a crowd of 199,172 at Hialeah Park today.

But the backers of the daughter of Helipolis had a few anxious minutes before her triumph in this stake for fillies and mares was confirmed by the Stewards.

For Church, it was his fourth winner out of five mounts today, pushing his total for the meeting to 28. He had figured in another claim of foul in the opener, and had the good fortune to escape official censure on both occasions.

Miss Highbrow, a winner of her previous start on Feb. 6, came over on Brookmeade Stable's Ouija in the final sixteenth, and after the finish Joe Culmone lodged the foul against Church. However, it appeared that Culmone had the misfortune to be moving too rapidly and found no room to come through to the inside of the leader.

Ouija probably was best, for she was practically left at the post, and was flying at the end of the race. She was beaten only a length and a quarter by Miss Highbrow, which earned a purse of $6,755, and paid $18.70 straight.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14 (INS)—James Cagney is reading "Angels In The Outfield," the story originally bought for Clark Gable, and you're safe betting that he'll do it.

Jimmy has free time right now and he likes the idea of working for Clarence Brown, and the idea of making his first MGM picture. The only thing that might hold up the deal is the price Cagney gets for each picture—a quarter of a million, if you please. But with his box office popularity and the importance of good pictures today, I don't think money will stand in the way.

He likes the script so it's 80-1 Jimmy Cagney will be moving into a dressing room at the Culver city studio.

The Howard Hawks-Eddie Lasker combination is making a big pitch to get Gregory Peck for "The Left Hand of God." Greg, who played a priest in "Keys To The Kingdom" told me he read the book and likes it but so far the deal has reached only the talking stage.

The story, which William Faulkner is scripting, is about an aviator, raised a Catholic, who pretends he's a priest to get away from a Chinese warlord. It's a strong story and made right would not offend the church. The very fact that his pretense of being a priest brings the deserter from his faith back into the fold, is a good part of the story.

English Producer Dan Angel, who was here to talk to Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., about making a picture in England, is trying to get Bette Davis to star in "Poison Pen."

Bette wants the role only if 20th will loan Gary Merrill to play opposite her. She and Gary have had far too many separations to suit her, and when a gal is in love with her guy she doesn't want to have the ocean between them.

Irving Rapper, who directed Bette on the Warner lot, is directing the picture for Angel and that's another reason she'd like to do it.

Edward Arnold, while touring with the Broadway comedy, "Apple Of His Eye," was a caller at the White House to see President Truman who, incidentally, always calls Eddie "Mr. President."

When he told President Truman that one of the Washington critics panned the show, the President beamed, "He did? Did you write him a letter?"

Eddie's movie pals will be on hand next Monday, Feb. 19, at the Biltmore Theatre to see him in "Apple Of His Eye", his first time on the stage in 18 years.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Valentina Cortesa and Richard Basehart are ardently romantic, and don't let anyone tell you any different. Their favorite dining spot is Mazzarino's in the Valley.

Audie Murphy and his airline sweetheart, Pamela Archer, were at the Saddle and Sirloin, and she is a real beauty.

Just before Tallulah Bankhead planed to Hollywood for her show she and Bill Langford, her favorite boyfriend, had a big blow up. Bets are they'll make up since he has been her one and only for three years.

Just to give you an idea of how time flies, Margaret O'Brien is now getting requests for pinup pictures from the younger servicemen.

After the Photoplay awards dinner Jane Wyman and Greg Bautzer went on to Mocambo. Shelley Winters and Farley Granger, who also went there, were joined by Liz Taylor and Stanley Donen, and the Marshall Thompsons.

Marlene Dietrich and Michael Wilding at a table for two at Ciro's.

From London comes word that Mario Cabre appeared at the premiere of "Pandora" in a black silk cape, white lace shirt and a matador hat, and delighted all the audience by gazing adoringly at the life-size picture of Ava Gardner in the foyer.

Condolences to the Frank Cleavers (he is former head of Paramount story department). Their baby was born dead.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

JOAN OF ARC starring INGRID BERGMAN

A VICTOR FLEMING PRODUCTION

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14 (INS)—James Cagney is reading "Angels In The Outfield," the story originally bought for Clark Gable, and you're safe betting that he'll do it.

Jimmy has free time right now and he likes the idea of working for Clarence Brown, and the idea of making his first MGM picture. The only thing that might hold up the deal is the price Cagney gets for each picture—a quarter of a million, if you please. But with his box office popularity and the importance of good pictures today, I don't think money will stand in the way.

He likes the script so it's 80-1 Jimmy Cagney will be moving into a dressing room at the Culver city studio.

The Howard Hawks-Eddie Lasker combination is making a big pitch to get Gregory Peck for "The Left Hand of God." Greg, who played a priest in "Keys To The Kingdom" told me he read the book and likes it but so far the deal has reached only the talking stage.

The story, which William Faulkner is scripting, is about an aviator, raised a Catholic, who pretends he's a priest to get away from a Chinese warlord. It's a strong story and made right would not offend the church. The very fact that his pretense of being a priest brings the deserter from his faith back into the fold, is a good part of the story.

● — ● — ●

English Producer Dan Angel, who was here to talk to Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., about making a picture in England, is trying to get Bette Davis to star in "Poison Pen."

Bette wants the role only if 20th will loan Gary Merrill to play opposite her. She and Gary have had far too many separations to suit her, and when a gal is in love with her guy she doesn't want to have the ocean between them.

Irving Rapper, who directed Bette on the Warner lot, is directing the picture for Angel and that's another reason she'd like to do it.

● — ● — ●

Edward Arnold, while touring with the Broadway comedy, "Apple Of His Eye," was a caller at the White House to see President Truman who, incidentally, always calls Eddie "Mr. President."

When he told President Truman that one of the Washington critics panned the show, the President beamed, "He did? Did you write him a letter?"

Eddie's movie pals will be on hand next Monday, Feb. 19, at the Biltmore Theatre to see him in "Apple Of His Eye", his first time on the stage in 18 years.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Valentina Cortesa and Richard Basehart are ardently romantic, and don't let anyone tell you any different. Their favorite dining spot is Mazzarino's in the Valley.

Audie Murphy and his airline sweetheart, Pamela Archer, were at the Saddle and Sirloin, and she is a real beauty.

Just before Tallulah Bankhead planed to Hollywood for her show she and Bill Langford, her favorite boyfriend, had a big blow up. Bets are they'll make up since he has been her one and only for three years.

Just to give you an idea of how time flies, Margaret O'Brien is now getting requests for pinup pictures from the younger servicemen.

After the Photoplay awards dinner Jane Wyman and Greg Bautzer went on to Mocambo. Shelley Winters and Farley Granger, who also went there, were joined by Liz Taylor and Stanley Donen, and the Marshall Thompsons.

Marlene Dietrich and Michael Wilding at a table for two at Ciro's.

From London comes word that Mario Cabre appeared at the premiere of "Pandora" in a black silk cape, white lace shirt and a matador hat, and delighted all the audience by gazing adoringly at the life-size picture of Ava Gardner in the foyer.

Condolences to the Frank Cleavers (he is former head of Paramount story department). Their baby was born dead.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Some Small Matters

"LIGHTS OUT" has been trying to scare the living daylights out of the kiddies and the adults, too, for a long time now. Last week, they succeeded in their grim purpose even better than ever with a story about the last two survivors of an atomic bomb explosion. The girl of the pair is living in a well - stocked bomb shelter in Chicago when the boy arrives, apparently having run all the way from California hotly pursued by hordes of rats.

John Crosby

The girl was a little irritated at him for bringing the rats along since she hadn't had any prior rat trouble. Then the rats closed in, squealing, screaming, and trying to gnaw down the front door to get at the two inhabitants who are the only edible things left on earth. As sound effects, go, it was a little masterpiece of the macabre. It was also a little too much for the nerves and stomachs of a great many of us listeners, whose nerves are edgy enough already. If there were any children around, I don't suppose they could get to sleep for a week. This is a notable accomplishment but hardly an admirable one.

Since the horror programs — "Suspense," "Tales of the Black Cat," "Danger" — seem to be doing awfully well on television, I don't suppose there's any possibility of eliminating them. But let's take it a little easy, fellows.

I'm always alert to "firsts" on television, believing that credit should be given where credit is due. Ed Sullivan, you'll recall, was duly commemorated for having been first to discover the entertainment possibilities in the spectacle of a studio audience applauding. Then there was WMAR-TV which was the first to telecast a turtle race. Hail, WMAR-TV.

We should also lift a glass to Robert Montgomery for his production of "The Egg and I." He claimed this was the first television play to employ barnyard fowl. Cheers, Mr. Montgomery. One more distinguished "first" was scored last week by Garry Moore on his afternoon television show. Mr. Moore became the first man to be sawed in half in front of a TV camera. Came out of it fine. One more notable "first" will be written into the record books this Friday on "Date in Manhattan." On that day (11 a. m., NBC-TV), Jack Berch, the singer, will become the first man to give a pint of blood as the cameras record and thousands cheer.

That's all the firsts we have on tap now. I'll keep you informed.

• — • — •

A reader — I have one or two — writes in with a small complaint about a recent Pulitzer Prize Playhouse production of which she saw all but the opening and consequently didn't know what play she was watching. The end of the play brought screen credits for the actors, director, producer and, above all, sponsor — but not the name of the play or the author.

"Because I have a mildly curious nature, I called TV station WJZ and asked them for the name of the play. They gave me the name, "Alison's House," but if I wanted to know the name of the author I could call on Monday and the station would be glad to supply the information. What prize Pulitzer?"

As a matter of belated recognition, it ought to be recorded that "Alison's House" was written by Susan Glaspell and won the Pulitzer for the 1930-31 drama season.

My other reader sends in a different complaint. "My gripe is listening to those incessant riders at the ends of programs telling me to be sure to listen to what is to follow immediately as well as an hour from now. That is being as much overdone as in some of the movie houses. Add to that the commercials of the sponsors, the government propagandists, the pleadings for all the special drives and, dear me, that hardly leaves any time for soap operas and murders."

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Some Small Matters

"LIGHTS OUT" has been trying to scare the living daylights out of the kiddies and the adults, too, for a long time now. Last week, they succeeded in their grim purpose even better than ever with a story about the last two survivors of an atomic bomb explosion. The girl of the pair is living in a well - stocked bomb shelter in Chicago when the boy arrives, apparently having run all the way from California hotly pursued by hordes of rats.

John Crosby

The girl was a little irritated at him for bringing the rats along since she hadn't had any prior rat trouble. Then the rats closed in, squealing, screaming, and trying to gnaw down the front door to get at the two inhabitants who are the only edible things left on earth. As sound effects, go, it was a little masterpiece of the macabre. It was also a little too much for the nerves and stomachs of a great many of us listeners, whose nerves are edgy enough already. If there were any children around, I don't suppose they could get to sleep for a week. This is a notable accomplishment but hardly an admirable one.

Since the horror programs — "Suspense," "Tales of the Black Cat," "Danger" — seem to be doing awfully well on television, I don't suppose there's any possibility of eliminating them. But let's take it a little easy, fellows.

I'm always alert to "firsts" on television, believing that credit should be given where credit is due. Ed Sullivan, you'll recall, was duly commemorated for having been first to discover the entertainment possibilities in the spectacle of a studio audience applauding. Then there was WMAR-TV which was the first to telecast a turtle race. Hail, WMAR-TV.

We should also lift a glass to Robert Montgomery for his production of "The Egg and I." He claimed this was the first television play to employ barnyard fowl. Cheers, Mr. Montgomery. One more distinguished "first" was scored last week by Garry Moore on his afternoon television show. Mr. Moore became the first man to be sawed in half in front of a TV camera. Came out of it fine. One more notable "first" will be written into the record books this Friday on "Date in Manhattan." On that day (11 a. m., NBC-TV), Jack Berch, the singer, will become the first man to give a pint of blood as the cameras record and thousands cheer.

That's all the firsts we have on tap now. I'll keep you informed.

● — ● — ●

A reader — I have one or two — writes in with a small complaint about a recent Pulitzer Prize Playhouse production of which she saw all but the opening and consequently didn't know what play she was watching. The end of the play brought screen credits for the actors, director, producer and, above all, sponsor — but not the name of the play or the author.

"Because I have a mildly curious nature, I called TV station WJZ and asked them for the name of the play. They gave me the name, "Alison's House," but if I wanted to know the name of the author I could call on Monday and the station would be glad to supply the information. What prize Pulitzer?"

As a matter of belated recognition, it ought to be recorded that "Alison's House" was written by Susan Glaspell and won the Pulitzer for the 1930-31 drama season.

My other reader sends in a different complaint. "My gripe is listening to those incessant riders at the ends of programs telling me to be sure to listen to what is to follow immediately as well as an hour from now. That is being as much overdone as in some of the movie houses. Add to that the commercials of the sponsors, the government propagandists, the pleadings for all the special drives and, dear me, that hardly leaves any time for soap operas and murders."

Matter Of Fact

to be introduced into the Administration, other places, at the Treasury and Commerce departments for example, must be found for them. This is precisely what is under consideration.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder is another subordinate whose resignation the President will never ask for. But Snyder is not well. He has at least two offers of major business positions. He is again talking of getting out, as he has done before. If he really leaves—and the "if" is a very big one—his departure would probably be the signal for the President to bring Republicans in. Elliott Bell, the brilliant advisor of Thomas E. Dewey, whom the New York Governor would certainly have made his Secretary of the Treasury if he had won in 1948, is one of those being conditionally discussed for Snyder's place.

"Progress, but not enough progress," is the shortest way to describe this evolution in the President's political thinking. If all the ifs come true, and the Truman Administration is actually strengthened by the addition of one or two Republicans of Bell's stature, the position in Washington will at least be greatly improved. But it will still be highly doubtful whether the American government will possess the essential power to act, and to act quickly, boldly and decisively, in response to the immense challenges which are surely ahead of us.

The White House and State Department have managed to convince themselves that the comparative calm on Capitol Hill means that the Congressional storm against Secretary Acheson has blown itself out. Unfortunately, there are far more reasons to suspect that this calm is merely the lull at the heart of the hurricane.

The most significant political development since the election is Sen. Robert A. Taft's decision to use Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy both as a chief lieutenant in Congress and as the leading propagandist of the Taft presidential campaign. The purpose, obviously, is to let McCarthy outdo, in this session, everything he did in the last session. And as long as the President refuses to take the truly decisive steps which will rally all moderate men to his standard, there is little protection against the Taft-McCarthy strategy.

does not in some manner, if only by rumor, assert itself.

For instance, no matter how great an effort was made in Washington to lower General MacArthur's prestige by calling the evacuation of Hungnam a Dunkirk, it never was that. Although General MacArthur has been criticized by American and British politicians for being too precise about the size of the Soviet Chinese Army, it is true that General Lin Piao had an army of 500,000 men, even if knowledge of the fact did embarrass the appeasers in the United Nations. Such facts do get out.

A student might even make a comparison between the Anzio campaign in World War II and the Korean campaign, and the infantrymen would be very embarrassed.

But rumor and gossip do not serve as an honestly conducted congressional investigation can. The question then is: Shall we have a full hearing or another Pearl Harbor investigation, or worse still, another Tydings Committee?

Market, Despite Last-Minute Rally, Closes On Downside

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—In spite of a last minute show of strength, the stock market today closed lower.

Nickel Plate preferred was down more than $4 at times and closed off $3.25 at $108. It was the day's most active issue with 55,495 shares changing hands. The common came to life in the latter part of the day and closed up $2 at $225. Other leaders in the rails lost upwards of $2 at the most.

Both steels and motors, which shared activity with the rails, were thoroughly mixed. Packard, under stimulation of yesterday's 20-cent dividend declaration, added 25 cents at $5.62. It was the second most active issue with 52,300 shares traded.

There was no pronounced strength or weakness among major groups, but several individuals stood out.

General Tire & Rubber gained $3.75 at $46 after reporting 1950 fiscal year earnings amounting to $13.88 as compared with 94 cents the previous fiscal year.

Bigelow-Sanford gained $1.87 at $34.12. The company reported 1950 earnings equal to $9.16 a share against $4.10 the previous year.

The total trading for the day was 2,060,000 shares as compared with 2,400,000 shares yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 30 cents at $96.50 with the industrial component down 40 cents, rails off 30 cents, and utilities up 10 cents.

Among the biggest losers were Atlantic Coast Line off 1¾ at 76½, Illinois Central 1¼ at 72½, Baltimore & Ohio ½ at 22½, Dow Chemical 1½ at 89, Goodrich ⅞ at 47, Montgomery 1 at 72, J. I. Case 1⅜ at 61¼, Douglas Aircraft 1 at 108, New York Central, Standard Oil (NJ), Eastern Air Lines, Warner Bros., American Smelting, General Electric, Republic Steel, Chrysler and Boeing.

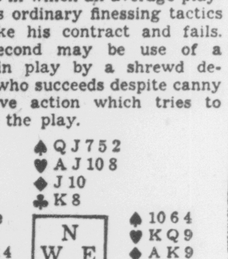
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO CAN BE SHREWD

FOLLOWING an interesting deal around the room in a duplicate tournament can disclose a striking variety of tactics and results. One of the most attractive types of developments to watch is that which involves several stages of skill. The first may be that in which an average player tries ordinary finessing tactics to make his contract and fails. The second may be use of a throw-in play by a shrewd declarer who succeeds despite canny defensive action which tries to thwart the play.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

When the kibitzer picked up this deal at one table, he decided to follow it around the room until he saw somebody make maximum use of the possibilities offered. They were muffed at the first table. West at every occasion opened the club Q. The first declarer won that with the K. Noting that he must lose two tricks in diamonds, he decided to try to limit heart losses to one by finessing twice. On the second, third and fourth tricks he took out trumps, then finessed the heart J to the Q. East scored the diamond K and A, then returned the club 3 to the A. Now the heart 10 was finessed to the K, setting it.

At a later table, South succeeded with a lead-throwing end-play. After winning with the club K and taking out trumps, he scored the club A, then ruffed the club 7 before making his big try. He led the diamond J. East won that with the K. Instead of also scoring his A, on seeing his partner's 8, he led a low diamond to West's Q. The latter led the heart 7, the J finesse losing to the Q. But East was stuck now. He had to pitch back into the remaining heart tenace or lead a diamond which could be ruffed in the North while South discarded a heart.

It was a nice try by East to beat the throw-in play. But it didn't work, as the play that South built was foolproof unless West could win two diamond tricks and lead hearts twice.

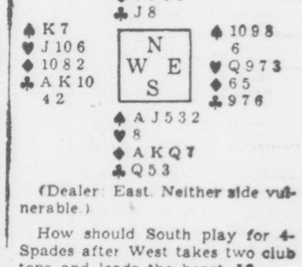
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 4 Spades after West takes two club tops and leads the heart J?

Matter Of Fact

to be introduced into the Administration, other places, at the Treasury and Commerce departments, for example, must be found for them. This is precisely what is under consideration.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder is another subordinate whose resignation the President will never ask for. But Snyder is not well. He has at least two offers of major business positions. He is again talking of getting out, as he has done before. If he really leaves—and the "if" is a very big one—his departure would probably be the signal for the President to bring Republicans in. Elliott Bell, the brilliant advisor of Thomas E. Dewey, whom the New York Governor would certainly have made his Secretary of the Treasury if he had won in 1948, is one of those being conditionally discussed for Snyder's place.

"Progress, but not enough progress," is the shortest way to describe this evolution in the President's political thinking. If all the ifs come true, and the Truman Administration is actually strengthened by the addition of one or two Republicans of Bell's stature, the position in Washington will at least be greatly improved. But it will still be highly doubtful whether the American government will possess the essential power to act, and to act quickly, boldly and decisively, in response to the immense challenges which are surely ahead of us.

The White House and State Department have managed to convince themselves that the comparative calm on Capitol Hill means that the Congressional storm against Secretary Acheson has blown itself out. Unfortunately, there are far more reasons to suspect that this calm is merely the lull at the heart of the hurricane.

The most significant political development since the election is Sen. Robert A. Taft's decision to use Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy both as a chief lieutenant in Congress and as the leading propagandist of the Taft presidential campaign. The purpose, obviously, is to let McCarthy outdo, in this session, everything he did in the last session. And as long as the President refuses to take the truly decisive steps which will rally all moderate men to his standard, there is little protection against the Taft-McCarthy strategy.

does not in some manner, if only by rumor, assert itself.

For instance, no matter how great an effort was made in Washington to lower General MacArthur's prestige by calling the evacuation of Hungnam a Dunkirk, it never was that. Although General MacArthur has been criticized by American and British politicians for being too precise about the size of the Soviet Chinese Army, it is true that General Lin Piao had an army of 500,000 men, even if knowledge of the fact did embarrass the appeasers in the United Nations. Such facts do get out.

A student might even make a comparison between the Anzio campaign in World War II and the Korean campaign, and the infantrymen would be very embarrassed.

But rumor and gossip do not serve as an honestly conducted congressional investigation can. The question then is: Shall we have a full hearing or another Pearl Harbor investigation, or worse still, another Tydings Committee?

Market, Despite Last-Minute Rally, Closes On Downside

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—In spite of a last minute show of strength, the stock market today closed lower.

Nickel Plate preferred was down more than $4 at times and closed off $3.25 at $108. It was the day's most active issue with 55,495 shares changing hands. The common came to life in the latter part of the day and closed up $2 at $225. Other leaders in the rails lost upwards of $2 at the most.

Both steels and motors, which shared activity with the rails, were thoroughly mixed. Packard, under stimulation of yesterday's 20-cent dividend declaration, added 25 cents at $5.62. It was the second most active issue with 52,300 shares traded.

There was no pronounced strength or weakness among major groups, but several individuals stood out.

General Tire & Rubber gained $3.75 at $46 after reporting 1950 fiscal year earnings amounting to $13.88 as compared with 94 cents the previous fiscal year.

Bigelow-Sanford gained $1.87 at $34.12. The company reported 1950 earnings equal to $9.16 a share against $4.10 the previous year.

The total trading for the day was 2,060,000 shares as compared with 2,400,000 shares yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 30 cents at $96.50 with the industrial component down 40 cents, rails off 30 cents, and utilities up 10 cents.

Among the biggest losers were Atlantic Coast Line off 1¾ at 76½, Illinois Central 1¼ at 72½, Baltimore & Ohio ½ at 22½, Dow Chemical 1½ at 89, Goodrich ⅞ at 47, Montgomery 1 at 72, J. I. "The Authority on Authorities"

TWO CAN BE SHREWD

FOLLOWING an interesting deal around the room in a duplicate tournament can disclose a striking variety of tactics and results. One of the most attractive types of developments to watch is that which involves several stages of skill. The first may be that in which an average player tries ordinary finessing tactics to make his contract and fails. The second may be use of a throw-in play by a shrewd declarer who succeeds despite canny defensive action which tries to thwart the play.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East

When the kibitzer picked up this deal at one table, he decided to follow it around the room until he saw somebody make maximum use of the possibilities offered. They were muffed at the first table. West at every occasion opened the club Q. The first declarer won that with the K. Noting that he must lose two tricks in diamonds, he decided to try to limit heart losses to one by finessing twice. On the second, third and fourth tricks he took out trumps, then finessed the heart J to the Q. East scored the diamond K and A, then returned the club 3 to the A. Now the heart 10 was finessed to the K, setting it.

At a later table, South succeeded with a lead-throwing end-play. After winning with the club K and taking out trumps, he scored the club A, then ruffed the club 7 before making his big try. He led the diamond J. East won that with the K. Instead of also scoring his A, on seeing his partner's 8, he led a low diamond to West's Q. The latter led the heart 7, the J finesse losing to the Q. But East was stuck now. He had to pitch back into the remaining heart tenace or lead a diamond which could be ruffed in the North while South discarded a heart.

It was a nice try by East to beat the throw-in play. But it didn't work, as the play that South built was foolproof unless West could win two diamond tricks and lead hearts twice.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 4-Spades after West takes two club tops and leads the heart J?

Investigators Probe WM Passenger Train Wreck

Train Slowup Averts More Serious Mishap

Passenger Coach Plunges 20 Feet Over Embankment

An investigation was started yesterday by Western Maryland Railroad officials into the cause of the wreck of a passenger train shortly before noon.

The wreck occured within the city limits near Virginia Avenue station at a siding switch leading to the Cumberland Box Company. Ten persons were injured and taken to Memorial Hospital for observation.

Officials thought that "foul play" was involved but the real cause has not yet been determined. An eye witness said that the locomotive and baggage car passed over the switch but the passenger car broke away lurched to the left, continued a short distance upright down the siding and then toppled 20-feet over an embankment.

Cedric "Ced" Miller, ticket agent for the Western Maryland saw the accident while attempting to flag the train down for a passenger at the Virginia Avenue Station.

Miller said that Attorney Thomas Barrett Jr., a Rent Control official of Baltimore had purchased a ticket but missed the train. Miller offered to take him to the Virginia Avenue station. Barrett agreed and in the meantime Miller called the MY Tower at the Maryland Junction to have them slow down the passenger train.

Train Slows Down

After arriving at the Virginia Avenue station Miller proceeded to flag down the engineer. The train slowed down and when it crossed the switch Miller said "it looked like the entire train would topple over." Seconds later he said the passenger car lurched and finally toppled over the enbankment.

Immediately Miller summoned ambulances and went to the scene to aid in getting the injured out of the wreckage. A registered nurse, Mrs. Aileen Washinger, Braddock Road, and her husband happened to be nearby and were among the first to arrive. She entered the wrecked car and administered first aid until ambulances arrived. Dr. Alex J. Mozzer, a railroad physician also aided the injured. Barrett assisted until the passengers were removed to the hospital and returned to Baltimore on a later train.

Earl H. Haugh, 23 Virginia Avenue, a brakeman on the train said "it happened so quickly I could hardly describe just what went on." He was taken to Memorial Hospital and received X-rays of the knee and shoulder.

Main Line Undamaged

Rails on the main line were not damaged and only one section of track had to be replaced on the siding according to Elkins Division Superintendent Joseph Miller. He said the rear of the baggage car was lifted onto the track and the locomotive returned to Cumberland station where a new passenger car was put on and the train left for Baltimore about 3:05 p. m. The two trainmen were replaced. Train No. 9 to Elkins from Cumberland usually leaves at 2:45 p. m. but was delayed for twenty minutes yesterday.

A more serious wreck could have occured if the train had been travelling at its usual rate of 30 to 35 miles an hour at the point where the accident happened.

Pictures Of The WM Railway Wreck

Legionnaires To Organize For Civil Defense

Fort Cumberland Post Will Aid Barger

Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion passed a resolution at their meeting Tuesday night to offer their aid to Allegany County Civil Defense Director William Barger in case of emergency. Commander Albert Kerns is to appoint a committee to begin work on the project.

During World War II, American Legion posts in this area provided shelter houses at the various air raid warning points in the county for spotters.

Fort Cumberland Post bought and equipped a station wagon and kept it on 24-hour call for emergency service in this section. It was also used to transport air raid spotters to and from their posts.

In addition to providing a large contingent for the Maryland State Guard the Legion was active in all air raid alarms and went immediately to vital defense industries for protection against simulated air attacks.

Named To Honor Roll

Miss Ruth A. Shaeffer, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Lee Earl Sheaffer, RFD No. 6, Potomac Park has been named to the Dean's List of Lebanon Valley College, Annville, Pa. for the first semester.

WM Official Praises Action At Wreck Scene

Joseph M. Miller, superindent of the Elkins Division of the Western Maryland Railroad yesterday expressed thanks to the quick action of the hospitals and police who assisted at the scene of the passenger train wreck. He also said that Mrs. Aileen Washinger, registered nurse, deserves much credit and is to be highly commended for her assistance in aiding and comforting the injured.

At the scene were Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of the LaVale sub-station of the Maryland State Police, and Chief R. Emmett Flynn, Lt. Edwin R. Lilya and Officers J. H. Stitcher, Frederick O. Daum, Louis D. Downey, W. E. Valentine and Walter P. Crabtree of the Cumberland Police Department.

Ambulances from Stein's and Kight's immediately reported to the scene, Miller added.

Miss Mildred Walker, also of Luke, required several stitches in the back of her head to close a scalp laceration.

The other seven passengers including three trainmen were released from the hospital shortly after examination.

Miss Gertrude Touchton, R. N., nursing consultant for the State Board of Health, will be instructor for the lectures to be held today and tomorrow from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m.

About 20 representatives from the County Health Department, Allegany Hospital, Memorial Hospital, the Metropolitan Insurance Company, industrial plants of the area and the Allegany County Infirmary will be present.

Those who take the course will later serve as instructors for similar courses throughout the area.

Information furnished by the Atomic Energy Commission will form the basis of the instruction.

Civil Service Changes Sought

The Cumberland Civil Service Commission announced yesterday that plans are progressing to consolidate legislation providing protection to city employes.

H. Clifford Spiker, chairman, said plans call for the introduction of a bill incorporating the best features of laws governing the Police and Fire Departments and the merit system for other city employes.

It would call for the repeal of present legislation on the subject.

Spiker said W. Earl Cobey, city attorney is preparing necesary legislation.

Spiker said one of the major changes would be a provision giving the defendent the right to appeal decisions to the courts.

New Section Of Flood Control Work Starts

A new section of the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project got underway yesterday as construction crews began building a temporary coffer dam at the river end of Lehigh Street prior to excavating the street for a pressure conduit.

Excavation of Lehigh will start in a few days after the dam is completed to hold the river out as the conduit is being built, U. S. Army Engineers said yesterday.

The pressure conduit will be four by six feet and will go the length of Lehigh Street across Avirett Avenue to Walnut Avenue thence to Greene Street, crossing Beall and Paca Streets.

The conduit will be continued across Green Street to Washington, tunnelled under Washington street and will meet an existing conduit at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks.

A part of the conduit will branch up Greene Street to Paw Paw alley where it will meet an existing conduit there, engineers said.

Present work on Smallwood Street is progressing satisfactorily. As pleasant weather continues the construction crew lays 42 and 36 inch pipe. The 60-inch pipe line from Riverside Park will meet the 42-inch pipeline at the Moose Home on Beall Street.

The Smallwood Street pipeline will continue up Avirett Avenue to Long Avenue thence to Water Street and from there to Lehigh. The pressure conduit at Lehigh will empty into Potomac River at that point.

Garrett County Senatorial Vote Hearing Opens

Election Committee Hears Attorneys

ANNAPOLIS, —(AP)— The Senate Election Committee heard arguments yesterday for a recount of votes for Senator of Garrett County, but announced no decision after adjourning an executive session.

Senator Turnbull (D-Balto) said the committee, of which he is chairman, will meet today to reach a decision.

Lawyers for Bernard I. Gonder, Democrat, who lost the Garrett County senatorship last November by one vote, asked the committee for a recount.

Ryan Represents Gonder

Counsel declared there had been widespread irregularities in the election which put into office Republican Neil C. Fraley. However, no charges of fraud or intentional wrong were made.

Fraley, seeking election to a second term, received 3,080 votes to 3,079 for Gonder.

"A measure of one vote does not at all indicate what the will of the people will be," declared Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Gonder.

"A voting place was open to the general public after the polls had closed. Five or six spectators were sitting around. No one knows what went on there.

"The top of a ballot box was off —a man and woman were in the booth together—people were milling around a booth when a judge was absent—some improperly marked ballots were not thrown out as a whole.

Melvin Attorney For Fraley

"The manner in which the election was conducted has left in the minds of the people of Garrett County a doubt as to whether Gonder or Fraley was elected."

Norman C. Melvin, Jr., attorney for Fraley, said the "burden of proof" that a recount was necessary was up to Gonder.

"It was a close vote and what they want is a fishing expedition," Melvin contended. "They have not satisfied the burden of proof. There is no evidence of any misdoing or fraud.

"Whether the margin of difference is one or one hundred votes, public opinion has it that when the votes have been certified by the proper officials, the election should not be reopened."

Ort's Drivers Join Local At Uniontown, Pa.

Puts All Company's Men In Same Union

In order to eliminate the controversy which developed over attempts to organize driver-salesmen at Ort Bros. Bakery here, more than a score of men, comprising all the affected driver-salesmen, this week joined Local No. 491, Teamsters and Chauffers Union, AFL, at Uniontown, Pa.

The local driver-salesmen voted Tuesday to affiliate with the Uniontown local, since nine drivers at Ort's Uniontown branch are already members of that local. This action, according to Paul Fisher, spokesman for the local group, will keep the collective bargaining between a single union and the company, rather than separate organizations in both Cumberland and Uniontown.

The controversy here developed several weeks ago when a picket line was established at Ort's Bakery, Franklin Street, in an attempt to halt operations at the bakery. Union bakers and other organized personnel at the plant, as well as the company's driver's, failed to recognize the picket line.

Voted Against Affiliation

A vote was taken among local drivers and 22 voted against affiliation with the local teamsters. No votes were cast in favor of affiliation, however, one man who has been on strike, failed to attend the meeting.

According to Fisher no strike vote had ever been taken and the men persistently refused to join in any walkout or to join the local teamsters union.

"To settle a situation which has received much publicity, and which has reflected upon the splendid employe-management relations enjoyed at Ort's for 30 years," Fisher said, "the men agreed to join the Uniontown local and end the controversy which had developed."

Ort's drivers, according to Fisher, are not hourly employes. "We work as commission salesman, delivering and selling Ort's products to retail outlets in the Cumberland eara. Individual incomes averages from $3,000 to $6,000 per man.

Cites Management's Fairness

"In fairness to management, and to the drivers themselves," Fisher continued, "it has not been necessary for us to join a union to enjoy the income, working conditions, hours and other factors which many people have found obtainable only by individual affiliation with some union or other.

"The men themselves are certainly not anti-union. Ort's record of splendid labor relations, and its long-time recognition of other unions certainly indicates that management in this case is not anti-union," Fisher added.

"We have taken this action of affiliation with the Uniontown local to end the controversy here, to put all our drivers in the same collective bargaining agency and to continue, as far as possible, the happy 'family' relations which has always existed bewteen Ort's and their employes," he concluded.

Lewis Ort, a spokesman for the company, said he had been advised of the action taken by the driver-salesmen, and his company will of course recognize the Uniontown local as the drivers' bargaining agency. He expressed his appreciation for the cooperation and understanding of all Ort's employes, "During this period, which developed through no fault of ours or our drivers, we have exerted every possible effort to settle the situation to the satisfaction and mutual agreement of all concerned. The drivers' action seems to be the answer. We hope, and sincerely believe, the happy relationship which has existed with our employes through a couple of generations will continue."

Mullenax Will Renew Contract To Manage Port

City Will Share If Profits Rise

The Municipal Airport Commission last night voted to renew the contract of Warren G. Mullenax for the operation of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

W. Earle Cobey, city solicitor, was instructed to draw up a one-year contract, effective March 1, for the operation of the airport.

The contract would require Mullenax to pay $1,500 for the use of the field, with the city assuming costs of insurance.

Cobey was also instructed to work out a clause which would allow the city to share in any gross profits for the coming year which exceeded the income in the year ending February 28.

Mullenax will also be allowed six months to repay the city for $1,247 in insurance payments for which Mullenax was obligated in last year's contract.

Last year, Mullenax secured exclusive rights to the field upon the payment of $1,025. The city was obligated to furnish water, electricity and maintenance but not insurance.

The board, headed by Adolf Blunk, also asked that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson and Mullenax work out a simple accounting system for the operation of the port, to be audited quarterly, so the Board may get a clear picture of the financial aspects of the port's operation.

Members axpressed satisfaction of the manner in which Mullenax has operated the port since he took over its operation last year.

Suit Against A&P Stores Discussed

A precedent dangerous to almost all business enterprises is at stake in the government's anti-trust suit against the A and P stores, Edmund S. Fish, Pittsburgh, told members of the Tri-State Traffic Club last night.

Fish, in charge of public relations for A and P's central division, told the approximately 75 traffic men, meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, how repeated anti-trust atacks against his company had been rejected by federal courts.

Pointing out that the current legal attack against A and P is based on the 1890 Sherman Act which touches on monoply and "undue restraint of trade," Fish said formal documents in the lawsuit reveal that, by the anti-trust lawyers' own calculations, A and P does only 6.4 per cent of the nation's retail food business. "Hardly a monopoly," he added.

George Bowman, A and P coffee expert, presented a color film showing A and P operations from South America to U. S. dinner tables.

Bill Would Halt Closing Of Barton Schools

Delegation Backs Floor On Wages

A bill was introduced in the General Assembly yesterday which would forbid the Allegany County Board of Education from moving the public schools in Barton from that community.

The measure, HB275, introduced by Delegates See, Reed and Driscoll, would also forbid the Board from requiring Barton students to attend out-of-town schools. It was referred to the Committee on Education.

In effect, the Delegation said, the measure would make it mandatory for the Board to retain the present elementary, junior and senior high school at Barton and halt the incorporation of Barton students in the school consolidation program.

Town Backs Bill

The proposal has the backing of a Citizens Committee and the Barton High School Alumni Association as well as a large number of citizens, a Delegation spokesman said.

The same bill was introduced in the 1948 Assembly but lost by a few votes, according to Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation.

The Delegation yesterday gave favorable reports to several bills of local interest.

Passed to its third reading was HB 220, with amendments. It would increase the salary of deputy sheriffs in Allegany County from $2,400 a year to $3,009.

The bill also authorizes the Board of County Commissioners to approve the addition of a fifth deputy when, in their discretion, the business of the county warrants an additional deputy.

Asked By Grand Jury

Chairman See said the salary increase portion of the bill is mandatory but that the bill provides only the enabling legislation for the appointment of an additional deputy.

He said the action is being taken to empower the county to comply with recommendations of the January, 1951, Grand Jury.

Also passed to its third reading was HB 221, introduced by the Delegation, which sets the minimum pay of city employes at January 1, 1951 levels.

Chairman See stressed that the bill does not involve the payment of any money. It means that the city can raise wages but cannot lower them below levels prevailing at the first of the year.

Also approved was a bill allowing the Allegany County Rheumatic and Heart Association to share in the $5,000 charity money the county is allowed to donate. No additional money is involved.

Would Clarify Law

Delegate Reed yesterday introduced HB 284, to amend the constitution to make it clear that a referendum on the calling of a constitutional convention shall not be a mandate for such a convention unless a majority of all the voters voting for candidates for governor shall declare themselves in favor of a convention (Judiciary).

In effect, Delegate Reed said, the bill would clarify the constitution on that point which has been in dispute since the recent referendum.

He said the bill will go to the Judiciary committee, which will be asked to ignore the original bill on the matter.

In dispute is whether the constitution requires such a referendum measure to pass by a majority of those voting on that measure or by some other criterion, such as the number of votes cast in the election.

Bills passed by the House included HB 170—by Garrett delegation—to specify that primary elections for county commissioners in Garrett County shall be by commissioners districts.

Allegany County motor vehicle owners will be able to get their 1951-52 tags this spring at the Court House here.

The bill setting up a branch office of the commissioner of motor vehicles in Cumberland has passed both the House of Delegates and Senate and has been signed by Governor McKeldin.

The Allegany county delegation is joining in a drive to remove "deadwood and waste" from the state budget, Delegate Horace F. Whitworth, Jr., (R-Allegany) said yesterday.

Investigators Probe WM Passenger Train Wreck

Train Slowup Averts More Serious Mishap

Passenger Coach Plunges 20 Feet Over Embankment

An investigation was started yesterday by Western Maryland Railroad officials into the cause of the wreck of a passenger train shortly before noon.

The wreck occured within the city limits near Virginia Avenue station at a siding switch leading to the Cumberland Box Company. Ten persons were injured and taken to Memorial Hospital for observation.

Officials thought that "foul play" was involved but the real cause has not yet been determined. An eye witness said that the locomotive and baggage car passed over the switch but the passenger car broke away lurched to the left, continued a short distance upright down the siding and then toppled 20-feet over an embankment.

Cedric "Ced" Miller, ticket agent for the Western Maryland saw the accident while attempting to flag the train down for a passenger at the Virginia Avenue Station.

Miller said that Attorney Thomas Barrett Jr., a Rent Control official of Baltimore had purchased a ticket but missed the train. Miller offered to take him to the Virginia Avenue station. Barrett agreed and in the meantime Miller called the MY Tower at the Maryland Junction to have them slow down the passenger train.

Train Slows Down

After arriving at the Virginia Avenue station Miller proceeded to flag down the engineer. The train slowed down and when it crossed the switch Miller said "it looked like the entire train would topple over." Seconds later he said the passenger car lurched and finally toppled over the enbankment.

Immediately Miller summoned ambulances and went to the scene to aid in getting the injured out of the wreckage. A registered nurse, Mrs. Aileen Washinger, Braddock Road, and her husband happened to be nearby and were among the first to arrive. She entered the wrecked car and administered first aid until ambulances arrived. Dr. Alex J. Mozzer, a railroad physician also aided the injured. Barrett assisted until the passengers were removed to the hospital and returned to Baltimore on a later train.

Earl H. Haugh, 23 Virginia Avenue, a brakeman on the train said "it happened so quickly I could hardly describe just what went on." He was taken to Memorial Hospital and received X-rays of the knee and shoulder.

Main Line Undamaged

Rails on the main line were not damaged and only one section of track had to be replaced on the siding according to Elkins Division Superintendent Joseph Miller. He said the rear of the baggage car was lifted onto the track and the locomotive returned to Cumberland station where a new passenger car was put on and the train left for Baltimore about 3:05 p. m. The two trainmen were replaced. Train No. 9 to Elkins from Cumberland usually leaves at 2:45 p. m. but was delayed for twenty minutes yesterday.

A more serious wreck could have occured if the train had been travelling at its usual rate of 30 to 35 miles an hour at the point where the accident happened.

The pressure conduit will be four by six feet and will go the length of Lehigh Street across Avirett Avenue to Walnut Avenue thence to Greene Street, crossing Beall and Paca Streets.

The conduit will be continued across Green Street to Washington, tunnelled under Washington street and will meet an existing conduit at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks.

R. D. Smalley Gets Promotion With Celanese

His Successor Is John F. Vocke

The Celanese Corporation of America announced yesterday that Russell D. Smalley, 827 Mt. Royal Avenue, cost accountant at Amcelle, has been promoted to the Controller's Office of the Corporation at 180 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Smalley is a graduate of the Wharton School of Finance and Accounting, University of Pennsylvania. He joined the Amcelle staff in November, 1947, as cost accountant. Prior to that date, he had been employed by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company and by the Equitable Life Insurance Society, Inc.

The promotion is to take effect on March 1, 1951.

Smalley will be succeeded as cost accountant by John F. Vocke, 603 Shriver Avenue, his assistant. Vocke joined the Amcelle staff in August, 1925, as a member of the Dyehouse staff. He was transferred to the Accounting Department in February, 1929.

Mullenax Will Renew Contract To Manage Port

City Will Share If Profits Rise

The Municipal Airport Commission last night voted to renew the contract of Warren G. Mullenax for the operation of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

W. Earle Cobey, city solicitor, was instructed to draw up a one-year contract, effective March 1, for the operation of the airport.

The contract would require Mullenax to pay $1,500 for the use of the field, with the city assuming costs of insurance.

Cobey was also instructed to work out a clause which would allow the city to share in any gross profits for the coming year which exceeded the income in the year ending February 28.

Mullenax will also be allowed six months to repay the city for $1,247 in insurance payments for which Mullenax was obligated in last year's contract.

Last year, Mullenax secured exclusive rights to the field upon the payment of $1,025. The city was obligated to furnish water, electricity and maintenance but not insurance.

The board, headed by Adolf Blunk, also asked that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson and Mullenax work out a simple accounting system for the operation of the port, to be audited quarterly, so the Board may get a clear picture of the financial aspects of the port's operation.

Members axpressed satisfaction of the manner in which Mullenax has operated the port since he took over its operation last year.

Suit Against A&P Stores Discussed

A precedent dangerous to almost all business enterprises is at stake in the government's anti-trust suit against the A and P stores, Edmund S. Fish, Pittsburgh, told members of the Tri-State Traffic Club last night.

Fish, in charge of public relations for A and P's central division, told the approximately 75 traffic men, meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, how repeated anti-trust atacks against his company had been rejected by federal courts.

Pointing out that the current legal attack against A and P is based on the 1890 Sherman Act which touches on monoply and "undue restraint of trade," Fish said formal documents in the lawsuit reveal that, by the anti-trust lawyers' own calculations, A and P does only 6.4 per cent of the nation's retail food business. "Hardly a monopoly," he added.

George Bowman, A and P coffee expert, presented a color film showing A and P operations from South America to U. S. dinner tables.

Delegation Backs Floor On Wages

A bill was introduced in the General Assembly yesterday which would forbid the Allegany County Board of Education from moving the public schools in Barton from that community.

The measure, HB275, introduced by Delegates See, Reed and Driscoll, would also forbid the Board from requiring Barton students to attend out-of-town schools. It was referred to the Committee on Education.

In effect, the Delegation said, the measure would make it mandatory for the Board to retain the present elementary, junior and senior high school at Barton and halt the incorporation of Barton students in the school consolidation program.

Town Backs Bill

The proposal has the backing of a Citizens Committee and the Barton High School Alumni Association as well as a large number of citizens, a Delegation spokesman said.

The same bill was introduced in the 1948 Assembly but lost by a few votes, according to Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation.

The Delegation yesterday gave favorable reports to several bills of local interest.

Passed to its third reading was HB 220, with amendments. It would increase the salary of deputy sheriffs in Allegany County from $2,400 a year to $3,000.

The bill also authorizes the Board of County Commissioners to approve the addition of a fifth deputy when, in their discretion, the business of the county warrants an additional deputy.

Asked By Grand Jury

Chairman See said the salary increase portion of the bill is mandatory but that the bill provides only the enabling legislation for the appointment of an additional deputy.

He said the action is being taken to empower the county to comply with recommendations of the January, 1951, Grand Jury.

Also passed to its third reading was HB 221, introduced by the Delegation, which sets the minimum pay of city employes at January 1, 1951 levels.

Chairman See stressed that the bill does not involve the payment of any money. It means that the city can raise wages but cannot lower them below levels prevailing at the first of the year.

Also approved was a bill allowing the Allegany County Rheumatic and Heart Association to share in the $5,000 charity money the county is allowed to donate. No additional money is involved.

Would Clarify Law

Delegate Reed yesterday introduced HB 284, to amend the constitution to make it clear that a referendum on the calling of a constitutional convention shall not be a mandate for such a convention unless a majority of all the voters voting for candidates for governor shall declare themselves in favor of a convention (Judiciary).

In effect, Delegate Reed said, the bill would clarify the constitution on that point which has been in dispute since the recent referendum.

He said the bill will go to the Judiciary committee, which will be asked to ignore the original bill on the matter.

In dispute is whether the constitution requires such a referendum measure to pass by a majority of those voting on that measure or by some other criterion, such as the number of votes cast in the election.

Bills passed by the House included HB 170—by Garrett delegation—to specify that primary elections for county commissioners in Garrett County shall be by commissioners districts.

Allegany County motor vehicle owners will be able to get their 1951-52 tags this spring at the Court House here.

The bill setting up a branch office of the commissioner of motor vehicles in Cumberland has passed both the House of Delegates and Senate and has been signed by Governor McKeldin.

The Allegany county delegation is joining in a drive to remove "deadwood and waste" from the state budget, Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., (R-Allegany) said yesterday.

Motor Is Damaged On Flood Control Job

Central Fire Company was called to the rear of the Footer Building off Wineow Street, last night at 8:51 o'clock after a pump being used in the flood control project caught fire.

Firemen said the motor ignited shortly after a George and Lynch worker had filled the gas tank and started the pump. The blaze damaged the motor and a section of suction hose.

UN FORCES CLAIM TWO VICTORIES

26-Month Service Terms Approved

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—A draft of 18-year-olds plus extension of all service terms to 26 months was approved unanimously by the Senate Armed Services Committee today.

Those are the immediately controversial sections of a long-term program of universal military training and service which the committee recommended to the Senate 13 to 0.

The measure is essentially the same as the plan rewritten from Defense Department proposals by a Preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex).

Fighting Not Over Yet

When the Senate will act was not immediately sure. Present plans are to hold it up until the troops for—Europe controversy is out of the way. The most optomistic guess on when that may come up for action is a week from today.

The fighting is by no means over yet, even in the Senate, and the House Armed Services Committee is showing signs of presentin~ its own differeht version of the plan to meet immediate manpower needs and provide guards for the country's future.

The central feature of the Senate committee's plan, as it concerns the lowering of draft age limit from the present 19 years, is a priority schedule for inductions. It puts the 18-year-olds at the bottom of the list, to be taken only if needed after all non-veteran men without children—including those qualified only for limited service—have been taken from the present 19 through 25 age bracket.

"No Major Changes" Made

When the draft cuts below 19 those nearest that birthday must go first.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.), in announcing the committee's action, said "no major changes" were made in two lengthy closed-door sessions today.

Sen. Morse (R-Ore.), who voted alone against the plan in the subcommittee, continued his fight for changes today but lost. He said he will try again in the Senate itself but went along on the vote to report the measure out for Senate action.

The battling in the committee today was over the lowering of the draft age and the extension of service beyond the presently required 21 months.

Committee OKs Naval Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee stamped approval on the Navy's multi-billion dollar construction program today and sent it swiftly along toward final passage.

Calling for a $2,740,092,000 build-up in the Navy's fighting power, the bill provides for a large fleet of submarines and surface ships, including a new type of aircraft carrier big enough to handle atomic bombers.

While the Armed Services Committee gave unanimous support to the program, the Senate-House Atomic Committee met secretly to learn about the Navy's progress toward an atomic powered submarine.

The committee's chairman, Sen. McMahon (D-Conn) did not disclose details of the report, but he was obviously pleased with it. He told reporters the atomic submarine would be the main forerunner of peacetime uses of atomic energy.

Bill Lawrence Inducted

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 14 (AP)—Bill Lawrence, radio and television singer, was inducted into the Army here today. He was among 118 registrants who left for Fort Dix, N. J.

House Unit To Review Tax Problem; Republicans Say "Quickie" Boost Ruled Out

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee decided today to review the entire tax problem before voting any increases—a move which Republicans said rules out any "quickie" tax boost.

The committee action was an apparent rebuff to the administration. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder had urged a fast $10,000,000,000 boost, followed by "second bite" increase of perhaps $6,500,000,000 later in the year.

In addition, Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance Committee had advocated a single tax increase, instead of the two-phase revenue-raising approach asked by Snyder. It was known that the House committee believed the Senate committee might turn any bill approved by the House into a "single package" tax raiser.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House committee said Secretary Snyder will be welcomed back any time he desires to outline his views on additional tax sources. Snyder has suggested only means of raising his suggested $10,000,000,000 first bill tax boost.

"It is the intention of the committee," Doughton said, "to complete the hearings on all suggestions for raising additional revenue before reaching any decision whether to proceed with a one-package or two-package tax program."

The committee acted after hearing Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston and Price Administrator Michael DiSalle testify that higher taxes are needed to help the government curb the rising cost of living.

Johnston particularly stressed that "tough and steep" new taxes are needed fast. He expressed preference for the two-package tax raising method suggested by Secretary Snyder, saying that a quick tax bill would help drain off excess purchasing power.

The new taxes, he said, should be retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Warning that delay would hinder the government's effort to curb inflation, Johnston told the lawmakers:

"There's no mistaking that the days ahead are going to be tough and rough for all of us. We're all going to take a cut."

But Johnston said he believes the present controls on wages, prices and production can be lifted in two or three years, "barring a full-scale attack."

Army Completes Its Preparations To Hang 7 Nazis

Awaiting Outcome Of 11th-Hour Plea

LANDSBERG, Germany, Thursday, Feb. 115 (AP)—American officials said early today they are awaiting the outcome of a last-minute legal action in Washington before they give the signal for sending seven condemned German war criminals to the gallows.

If the U. S. Solicitor General confirms that the seven have lost their last legal chance for life, American officials said, the hangings will take place probably late tonight or early Friday.

In Washington, Attorney Warren Magree, acting upon a request of the West German consul-general, sought late yesterday to delay the executions by an appeal to the Federal District Court. His appeal was from a decision denying a writ of habeas corpus.

The Army has completed preparations to execute the condemned men. Last night U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy rejected an eleventh-hour appeal by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer for postponement of the executions.

Wives of the doomed seven came away from tearful and tense "final visits" in death row and said carpenters were preparing the gallows. A warrant officer from the Augsburg military post arrived to direct the executions.

Mattresses and shoes of the condemned men had been removed to prevent suicide attempts.

The seven were convicted by U. S. war crimes courts of slaughtering thousands of civilians in concentration camps and conquered territories.

Expenditures For Vets Reach $65.6 Billions

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—Federal expenditures for veterans of all U. S. wars have reached a total of $65,670,000,000, the Veterans Administration reported today.

That is the total sum laid out through June 30, 1950 by VA and its predecessors—the former Veterans Bureau, the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers and the Pension Bureau.

House Enters Policy Debate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The House jumped into the debate on foreign policy today, with Rep. Laurence H. Smith (R-Wis) accusing the Truman administration of "conjuring up another war."

From Democratic Leader McCormack (Mass) came the assertion that much of the criticism of the President's policy was caused by political jealousy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The exchange was touched off by the introduction of a "declaration of policy" backed by a large group of House Republicans. It demanded full partnership for Congress in a complete overhaul of U. S. foreign policy. Present policy, it claimed, "in large part has been a costly failure."

And in the Senate, the combined Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees squared off for a battle starting tomorrow on the question of committing more American ground forces to the Western European defense army to be set up under Gen. Eisenhower.

The main features of the policy substitute proposed in the House would be concentration of home and hemisphere defense, and withholding of any aid to Western Europe until America is convinced the nations there are doing their full share in raising barriers against Communist aggression.

Strikebound Schools Reopen In Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 14 (AP) — Students trooped back to Minneapolis' 94 public schools today as doors swung open after a three-week strike of teachers and janitors. There were doubts, however, that underlying causes of the walkout had been resolved.

A compromise wage offer, hammered out after two days of conferences conducted by Gov. Luther W. Youngdahl, brought resumption of classes. A further effort to brighten the troubled school picture will be made at a meeting Monday.

Arrow Kills Cyclist

MOMBASA, Kenya Colony, Africa, Feb. 14 (AP)—An African was sentenced today to five years hard labor on charges of manslaughter.

He objected so strongly to cyclists passing his house that he shot arrows at them. One arrow caught a cyclist in the stomach and the man died.

Commercial Building Loan Terms Curbed

50 Per Cent Down Payments Ordered

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — The government today ordered 50 per cent cash down payments on a vast range of non-residential construction in a new credit-tightening move to combat inflation.

Simultaneously, the administration threw out a broad hint that it will soon attempt to stabilize food prices.

Eric Johnston, economic stabilization director, told the House Ways and Means Committee that legislation will be submitted to Congress to "equalize and stabilize" farm prices and industrial wages.

Johnston's disclosure capped a series of protests from labor leaders, housewives and others against soaring food prices.

Applies To Repair Jobs

The stiff new credit terms for construction were set forth in an order issued by the Federal Reserve Board, effective tomorrow.

It calls for half cash down payments on construction of new stores, offices, hotels, banks, warehouses, garages, auto service stations, restaurants, theaters, clubs and "other new structures used for non-residential purposes."

The same requirement applies to repair jobs, enlargement, alteration and reconstruction on existing commercial buildings if the cost of the improvement exceeds 15 per cent of the building's appraised value.

The order also requires that loans must be paid up in 25 years, with the principal paid off in installments rather than left for a lump sum payment at the end of 25 years.

Exemptions are provided in the case of schools, hospitals, churches, public utilities and "property constructed for use by the government or any political subdivision."

"Tough" Tax Program Urged

On Capitol Hill, Stabilization Director Johnston withheld details of the Administration's proposals for "equalizing" farm prices, but said they will be "equitable and fair."

Johnston made the comment whilte testifying in favor of higher taxes to curb inflation. He urged a "tough" taxation program to help him stabilize the economy by midsummer.

Asked by Rep. Granger (D-Utah) whether the proposed legislation would involve any change in the farm "parity" program, Johnston replied:

"I didn't say that. The farmer is certainly entitled to his parity. The laboring man is entitled to his parity, too, for as the cost of food goes up, the cost of living goes up."

Reapportionment Bill Introduced In House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—A reappointment bill with teeth in it was introduced today to guarantee the "fairest practical" representation of all citizens in the House of Representatives.

Sponsored by the administration, the bill was offered in the house by Rep. Celler (D-NY).

If it becomes law, not only will the 435 House seats be reapportioned among the states every 10 years, but each state will be required to redistrict according to its population changes. Present laws do not make such redistricting mandatory.

Valentines Pour In For Jacquelyn

Jacquelyn Marre, cancer-stricken little girl who wanted to be your Valentine, is bewildered by the mountain of mail at her Atlanta home. In the last three days, the little 12-year-old girl has received 216,000 pieces of mail after her plea for Valentines was made through the press. Doctors say the cancer is incurable.

Acheson Calls For Red Revolt Against Moscow

Warns Soviet Bloc Not To Attack Tito

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson called today for an international revolt of Communist parties against the domination of Moscow.

He advised all foreign Communists who have the interest of their country at heart to follow the example of Italians and break away from the Kremlin's control.

At his news conference, the Secretary of State also renewed a warning that any Communist attack on Yugoslavia might strain the fabric of world peace to the breaking point. Yugoslavia already has declared its independence of the Soviet Union.

Acheson said recent developments in Italy, where a number of Communist leaders have decided to put their country ahead of their party, are a matter of great interest to the United States. He observed it is encouraging when the fact finally dawns on Communists outside Russia that they are agents of a foreign power.

In telling aggressors to keep their hands off Yugoslavia, the Secretary of State said this country already has demonstrated its attitude toward aggression in Korea and in the United Nations. He added that it was this government's broad policy, as stated by President Truman, that "new recourse to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

Mr. Truman said that in his message to Congress last July 19 after fighting in Korea had begun.

Valentine For Valentines

Reindeer Offered Meat-Shy London With Few Takers

LONDON, Feb. 14 (AP) — Unrationed reindeer went on sale for the first time in meat-shy London today, but housewives were doubtful about its taste and shocked at its price.

A small consignment of Swedish reindeer carcasses reached distributors during the past few days.

Said one butcher: "Women are suspicious obout it and I think the price is too high for them. Possibly their prejudice will be overcome when they try it."

Retail prices ranged from one shilling sixpence (21 cents) for the cheapest cuts to four shillings sixpence (63 cents) a pound.

Lie Calls On U. N. To Keep Working For A-Bomb Ban

LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie called on the United Nations today to keep on working for prohibition of atomic weapons and regulation of armaments in spite of world tension. He said efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments should go hand in hand.

"In the present state of tension in the world, with rearmament proceeding at a rapid pace on all sides, it may seem academic and even utopian to proceed with serious discussion and planning on the regulation and reduction of armaments," Lie said. "I do not agree with this view. I believe the work of this committee should be looked upon as one of the vital undertakings of the United Nations."

"I have expressed the belief," Lie continued, "that progress of any kind toward agreement on the regulation and reduction of armaments would help to reduce political tensions and that efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments should go hand in hand. x x x Clearly today member governments must provide for adequate defense, but we should not for one moment lose sight of the ultimate goal."

Lie spoke at the opening meeting of a 12-member United Nations committee set up by the General Assembly last Dec. 13 to study ways of merging the work of the Atomic Energy Committee and the Commission for Conventional Armaments.

'Operation Waterlift' Bogs Down In Mud

COLUMBIA, Pa., Feb. 14 (AP)—The water shortage in this river town of 12,000, flooded by an ice jam nearly a week ago, remained so critical today that officials hunted for new sources of supply.

The flood waters were backed up by a huge ice jam on the Susquehanna River. The inundation paralyzed the municipal waterworks and residents were left without sufficient supplies of water.

For a while Columbia's "Operation Waterlift" relieved the situation. The lift had been delivering some 1,250,000 gallons via tank trucks between Columbia and nearby towns.

But today the operation bogged down in mud on the soft road leading to the unloading station.

Troops-For-Europe Hearings Open Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee said tonight that Russia is estimated to have an armed force of more than 4,000,000 men organized into about 175 divisions.

With all its European satellites, the committee reported, Moscow could boast another 1,000,000 men under arms, making the total more than 5,000,000. This does not include Communist China's armed forces.

Against this strength, the Atlantic pact nations, including the United States and Canada, had about 4,500,000 men under arms as of December, 1950, the committee said.

Comparisons Difficult

But comparisons were difficult.

The figure for the 11 Atlantic pact countries included the army, navy and air forces. It did not include the estimated 2,700,000 men in organized reserves.

It was not clear from the committee's report whether Communist air and naval forces were included in the iron curtain figures, but it was believed they were not. Geographical distribution of the strength was another factor which made comparisons uncertain.

The figures were issued in advance of hearings starting tomorrow on the controversial troops-for-Europe issue. Defense Secretary Marshall will be the first witness

"Basic Facts" For Committee

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations group said the report was issued so committeemen would have "certain basic facts" before them in considering the question of sending American soldiers across the Atlantic.

The committee has befor it a resolution by Senate Republican Leader Wherry of Nebraska which would forbid the deployment of any U. S. ground forces to Western Europe under the North Atlantic treaty until Congress has determined the nation's policy.

Connally has announced that he intends to offer a substitute for the Wherry resolution. He wants to let the administration go ahead with a troops program with no strings attached.

Allies Wreck 4 Red Divisions In Holding Line

Critical Moment Of Battle Is Past

TOKYO, Thursday, Feb. 15 (AP)—A hard-fighting Allied division today claimed victory "as of this moment" over elements of nine Chinese divisions which tried to break through the Central Korean front.

The Allies, after shattering four enemy shock divisions, still held firmly to Chipyong and Wonju and the 20 miles of mountain line between them, a field dispatch reported.

Another Allied victory—on a smaller scale—was claimed on the western front against a North Korean division which had hoped to smash the Han River line around Seoul.

Ground action along the entire Korean front Wednesday inflicted 10,593 Red casualties, a U. S. Eighth Army officer said today. This brought the total to 96,894 since Allied forces jumped off Jan. 25 in a limited offensive. Wednesday's bag of dead, wounded and captured was the biggest for one day since that drive started.

Critical Moment Past

A high staff officer of the U. S. division on the central front told AP Correspondent John Randolph this morning:

"As of this moment, we have a victory. It remains now to consolidate it and we hope to do it today."

"We are still holding our main positions and we have our freedom of movement," said the division's commander.

"If the enemy makes another try, he will have to raise the stakes."

Randolph said the critical moment of the three-day-old central front battle was safely passed Wednesday when two Chinese divisions were knocked out by Allied artillery while trying to slip past the left flank of the Wonju perimeter.

At the same time South Korean marines Wednesday staged a spectacular commando-type raid on Wonsan, east coast port 90 air miles north of the 38th parallel.

Occupy Two Islands

The Republic of Korean (ROK) marines occupied two islands off the Communist supply port and drove to the Wonsan city limits under the protective fire of Allied cruisers and destroyers.

On the western front, U. S. infantrymen, including Puerto Ricans, killed 1,152 North Korean Reds who infiltrated United Nations lines south of Seoul. Some 250 more Reds were captured in a wild melee that brought cooks and colonels alike into action.

AP Correspondent William J. Waugh on the central front reported that fighting was still in progress at midnight Wednesday.

Waugh said the Chinese launched a big new attack late Wednesday toward Wonju, key to vital road networks to South Korea. A U. N. counterattack lashed back at the Reds, inflicting heavy losses.

In the Chipyong sector, 20 miles northwest of Wonju, a Communist probing night attack was followed within an hour by another Chinese assault on surrounded American and French forces.

Puerto Rican Revolt Leader Is Convicted

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Feb. 14 (AP) — Pedro Albizu Campos, a Harvard-educated revolutionary with a fanatical hatred of the United States, was convicted today of attempted murder. The charge stemmed from an abortive revolt here that claimed 33 lives and involved an attempt on the life of President Truman.

The conviction came at the end of a week-long trial of the 63-year-old leader of the Nationalist Party. He is liable to a sentence of one to 15 years, to be pronounced Friday.

Senate Joins House In Overriding Gov. McKeldin's First Two Vetoes

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 14 (AP) — Republican Gov. McKeldin's first vetoes got no defense today from his party senators and five even joined the majority Democrats to override them.

Sen. Kimble of Allegany, the GOP floor leader, was among the five voting with 17 Democrats to enact the two vetoed measures, nine Republicans voted to sustain the Governor.

The bills, which will take away the Chief Executive's choice in filling vacancies on county commissions, will become law June 1 without his signatures. The House of Delegates passed them over the vetoes on Monday night by an 86-17 vote.

In another action marked by complete absence of oratory, the Senate moved to final reading the hitherto controversial and unsuccessful repealer of the state's "Jim Crow" law.

The only voice raised in praise of Gov. McKeldin's vetoes came from a Democrat, Sen. Melnicove of Baltimore's Fourth District.

While not agreeing with his action and voting to override, Sen. Melnicove commended Gov. McKeldin "for his forthright, honest and courageous stand" in doing so while the General Assembly adjournment, forestalling legislative action.

The "Jim Crow" repealer passed second reading in the Senate on a deathlike silent "voice" vote. Sen. Shehan (D-Talbot) later moved for reconsideration so the votes could be recorded, but lost his motion 20 to 9.

In the House, the delegates resoundingly rejected a favorable committee report to establish a Maryland youth commission. The bill was killed after Delegate Whitworth (R-Allegany) said that while it makes no appropriation it could cost the state $30,000 a year.

The commissioners would get no salaries but the bill provided for hiring other employes and expenses. The same arguments were raised by Sen. Kimble on the bill introduced by Senate President Della (D-Balto 6th), before it passed in that chamber.

Police Silence Barricaded Prowler After 5-Hour Fight

WALLACE, Idaho, Feb. 14 (AP) — A frenzied prowler, apparently a stranger in town, terrorized Main Street for almost five hours today with rifle fire from a hardware store that killed one man and wounded two others.

Police machine gun bullets and tear gas bombs from a building across the street finally silenced him.

Then officers crept inside and found him lying on the floor, overcome but not hurt. When he made a sudden move, the police fired and he died an hour later without giving a motive.

Papers on his body carried the name John Stoddard, 48, and indicated he once lived in Oakland, Calif. Aside from that, nobody seemed to know anything about him.

The shooting stopped business in this mining town of 3,200, about 85 miles east of Spokane. Spectators—some 250 of them—stood behind barricades on both ends of the street for a look.

Bronx Couple Held In Plot To Assassinate President

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secret Service agents today arrested a Bronx couple in whose home the government charges the abortive plot to assassinate President Truman last Nov. 1 was hatched.

The couple, John Correa, 43, and his wife, Mary, were charged with obstruction of justice.

A sealed indictment naming them was opened by Federal Judge Edward Weinfeld, who was told by Assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick Block that two weeks before the attempted assassination a dinner meeting was held in the Correa home.

Among those at that meeting, Weinfeld said, was Oscar Collazo, one of the two men involved in the Blair House assassination attempt and who is under indictment for murder in Washington, D. C., for the killing of one of the White House guards.

Others at the dinner, Block said, were Julio Pinto Gandia, president of the New York branch of the Nationalist Party of Puerto Rico; Juan Bernardo Lebrun, past president; Juan Francisco Medina, secretary, and Antonio S. Blanco, described by the government as active in the Nationalist Party movement.

$42,550 Involved In Recent Sales

Deeds recording the sale of five properties for a total of approximately $42,550 were recorded Tuesday in the office of the clerk of circuit court.

Included was the sale twice of one parcel in Westernport.

Edward C. Hansrote and Juanita Hansrote transferred ownership of property on Weires Avenue in La-Vale to Dorsey C. Mangus and M. Winona Mangus for approximately $13,000, according to one of the deeds.

One deed revealed that Frank B. McMillen had purchased property on the east side of Main Street, Westernport, at Georges Creek from Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., court-appointed trustee, for $8,050. A second deed showed that Frank B. McMillen and Mary Ellen McMillen in turn resold the same property for the identical amount to William L. Jenkins, Irene T. Jenkins, Mary Elizabeth Woy and Earl Richard Woy.

Two other parcels were sold for approximately $8,000, according to deeds. Joseph Helker, Bertha V. Helker and Henry T. Helker sold property on the northwest side of Valley Street to Charles B. Miller and Amelia Miller for about $8,000. Alma S. Willison transferred ownership of a parcel on the south side of Harrison Street to Carrie B. Poling for about $8,000.

Charles M. Clark and Dorothy M. Clark sold property near Westernport to Richard N. Symons and Mary Symons for about $5,500.

Civil War Vet, 104, Can't Get Used To Electricity

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—Joseph P. Robles, one of Florida's two surviving Confederate veterans, spent his 104th birthday today trying to get accustomed to this "new fangled electricity."

Since his last birthday, Robles has thrown out his kerosene lamps and had his modest little home wired with electricity.

This little item of eleectricity is the biggest thing that has happened to Robles since his 100th birthday when he received a battery radio set.

Government Acquires British Steel Industry

LONDON, Thursday, Feb. 15 (AP)—The British steel industry became government property today. It was the last and most elusive piece in a pattern of socialism for the nation's basic industries. A prompt boost in steel prices is in prospect.

Private owenrship of the British plants ended at midnight.

It was a triumphant moment for Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government. With the acquisition of steel, the government owns all the nation's basic industrial production. Twenty per cent of the country's economic life now is socialized.

Income Tax Primer

Don't Let 1040 Throw You! Take One Step At A Time

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14 (AP) — If you make your tax return on long form 1040, fill it in very carefully one step at a time.

Two classes of taxpayers must file their returns on the long form:

1. Persons with income in 1950 of $5,000 or more.

2. Persons, who regardless of income, want to itemize non-business deductions instead of taking the standard allowance of 10 per cent of income.

Before starting to make out your return, write the following information on work sheets in this order:

1. Income in 1950 — Amount of wages and other income received.

2. Deductible expenses—Expenses necessary to your work or business. In case of expenses of your job, divide them into two groups. In the first group put "out-of-town" travel expenses and "reimbursed expenses" if latter are reported as part of your income. In the second group put all other job expenses.

3. Deductions — Certain kinds of taxes, interest payments, losses (not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise from theft, storm, fire and other casualties, contributions and medical expenses. You can deduct medical expenses which exceed five per cent of your income.

These deductions are listed on page 3, form 1040. If you decide to take the standard 10 per cent allowance for non-business deductions you don't list them.

4. Income tax already paid — Amount of tax withheld from your 1950 wages and amount paid in accordance with tax estimates made during the past year.

Read carefully the government's pamphlet of instructions on "How To Prepare Your Income Tax Return." If you didn't receive this pamphlet and form 1040, you can obtain them at a collector's office or at a post office or bank, or possibly from your employer.

With your work sheets as a guide, fill out your return.

Remember, one step at a time is the easiest way.

Follow the numbered directions on the return.

Don't worry about the next step until you get to it.

If the direction doesn't apply to you, don't pay any attention to it. But be sure to follow the directions very carefully in the tax computing section on page 3.

If you are making a joint return, don't pay any attention to lines 6, 7 and 8 under tax computation. Those lines are for persons making a separate return.

When you do the joint return figuring in lines 9 to 13, be sure that you are following the directions exactly.

Triple check all your figures. If you are poor at arithmetic, have someone check them for you.

For most married couples using long form 1040 the tax on a joint return will be small or as small as on a separate return. A one-income couple can't lose by using the joint return.

Ifyou are a two-income couple and have exceptional investment losses or deductions for medical expenses or large contributions, figure both joint and separate returns to see which is cheaper. If it seems complicated get advice of a collector's office or other reputable tax authority.

Save a copy of your return. You may need it for future reference.

Land Reform In Asia

Poverty and low living standards among the peasant masses of Asia, resulting in large part from prevailing land tenure systems, have provided a fertile field for Communist exploitation and, by the same token, have turned the attention of American officials to the formidable problem of land reform in the Far and Middle East. It is recognized that progress toward solving that problem is essential to the success of efforts to stem the spread of Communist influence in this great area of the world.

Under the Point Four program, the United States stands ready to assist non-Communist countries in expanding their food production. But the issue of land tenure stands directly between Point Four and the attainment of its basic objective—"sound agricultural production on a democratic basis for the benefit of the people." A prospect of some direct material gain is necessary to induce those who work the land to improve present methods of land use. To provide that incentive, millions who are now tenants and hopelessly in debt to their landlords must be assisted to attain ownership of the land and instructed how to put it to the best use.

Promises to distribute land to the people and free them from the exactions of landlords are one of the most effective weapons in the arsenal of Communist propaganda in a region such as Asia, where eight out of ten persons are peasants and a high proportion do not own the land they cultivate. Twenty years ago, when Chinese Communists first came into position to fulfill such promises, they confiscated and redistributed all of the holdings of large landowners and nullified contracts of indebtedness in areas under their control. In succeeding years their land measures were alternately modified and tightened to suit changing political conditions. Now exercising power over all of China, the Communists are applying a complicated scheme of reform designed to reduce but not eliminate inequalities of land ownership while at the same time maintaining the volume of agricultural production. Similar reforms were carried out under Russian auspices in North Korea soon after the war ended.

In Communist strategy and theory land reform is a device for gaining peasant support in the struggle for power. But individual peasant ownership and management of land is considered acceptable only in backward countries and only while a Communist regime is consolidating its power. The ultimate goal is collectivization of agriculture. Already in China model state farms are being established and formation of farm cooperatives is being encouraged. Hence peasant gains under Communist agrarian reforms may be relatively short-lived, despite current disclaimers of any intention to socialize agriculture.

Some progress toward land reform on an enduring basis has been made since the war in non-Communist countries. Legislation to abolish traditional landlordism and redistribute land has been enacted in a number of the states of India. Drastic reforms carried out under American auspices in occupied Japan involved government purchase of more than nine million acres and their resale to tenants in such a way as to make 90 per cent of all cultivators the owners of land. Reform measures were instituted also in South Korea but were not completed before the Communist invasion.

Accomplishment elsewhere in non-Communist Asia has been limited. An extensive program of ECA aid to the Philippines is being used to prod the Manila government into taking action to redistribute land and assure minimum wages to farm workers, but the Philippine Congress has so far shown reluctance to fulfill such stipulations in the ECA agreement. Attaching conditions to American aid is nevertheless advocated as a means of applying effective pressure to bring about land reform in other countries seeking economic assistance from the United States.

The importance of land reform in non-Communist Asia was recently emphasized by Supreme Court Justice Douglas, who said in a magazine article last month: "Land reform would not only deprive the Soviets of their most powerful propaganda; it would make each peasant a capitalist. No greater political barrier to communism could be designed."

Where Lenin Was Right

Reports of outbreaks of "titoism" behind the Iron Curtain are in the category of rumors rather than of facts. If they turn out to be true, they may add up to one of the big news stories of 1951.

The disappearance of former Foreign Minister Clementis and the house arrest of President Gootwald of Czechoslovakia, the desertion of the party by important Communist officials of France and Italy, together with persistent indications of similar difficulties farther east, may be signs of an outbreak of "bourgeois deviationism" that could shake the bolshevik monolith to its foundations.

Lenin would have understood such a development. He warned the comrades: "We Russians have never been able to make anything but serfs of conquered people." And he once wrote a letter saying that Stalin, though a useful tool, was too ruthless and bloody a man to unite the cause of world communism.

Communist leaders like to be able to tell themselves that their tactics and principles will make their own countries better. Stalin clashes headon with such ingrained patriotic sentiments when he forces his lieutenants in other lands to put Russia first and the homeland second. This policy has already lost Yugoslavia to bolshevism, and Tito's example has inspired widespread envy in those lands where the Communists are strongest.

The United States probably cannot lend much direct aid to Communist deviationists. But time is on this country's side in this category, and may produce inside the Communist world splits such as few today dare hope for.

Another Hootenanny

Nobody seems to be sure what the flying saucers, if there really were any, were doing. And recently they don't seem to have been doing even that. Maybe they gave up because they couldn't find any flying cups.

Instead of flying saucers, people are now seeing flying telephone poles—and red for good measure. Plenty of folks said they saw one over Galena, Ill., the other night. It was about 10 times the length of an ordinary pole, though, and a brilliant red to boot. They said it moved silently and slowly. Many of these folks were "very reputable and responsible persons," too.

There were also reports from Wisconsin of a brilliant blue flash. But that was probably just an ordinary meteor.

Bursitis Of The Elbow

YOU NEED NOT be a tennis player to acquire tennis elbow. This painful condition is seen in individuals from all walks of life. It occurs more commonly, however, in certain athletes and in carpenters, street car motormen, press operators, pipefitters, leather workers, painters, butchers, and typists. In these occupations the arm and elbow are in constant use. Knitters develop the disorder occasionally.

The basic cause is mild but continuous injury to the joint on the outer side of the elbow. This often is produced by grasping or twisting the hand, especially when the elbow is extended. When this is done day after day over a period of years, the area about the joint is forced to undergo unusual strain. This may be the penalty we pay for using as many tools as we do today.

Pain is more noticeable over the outer aspect of the elbow opposite the "crazy bone" and over the joint formed by the larger bone of the upper arm (humerus) and the radium of the forearm. Distress may be so mild that it is noted only when performing certain maneuvers, or so severe that the victim has no choice but to carry the arm in a sling. The best test is a simple one in which the individual picks up a large telephone directory or Bible. He is able to do so in comfort with the palm up and the fingers below but winces when the palm is downward, above the book and the thumb bears the weight. Occasionally the physician also is able to elicit a tenderness over the protruding bony prominences along the outer aspect of the elbow.

Discomfort usually is so acute that the sufferer is positive he must have struck his elbow against a table or work bench. When asked for more details he is unable to recall the exact accident nor is he able to show a bruise, abrasion, or discoloration. X-ray generally is negative. It is believed that pain stems from a tear in the tendons in this area or from inflammation of the bursa that surrounds the joint.

Bursae are small sacs, or sheaths, placed by nature between moving parts. There are 26 in the body and the radiohumeral bursa in the elbow is one of the few that leads to trouble. When a tendon or muscle, for example, goes around a bend such as the shoulder it needs some cushioning to work efficiently. This is the bursa. The majority are filled with a small amount of lubricating fluid and when irritated the liquid increases in amount to such an extent that swelling is perceptible. This is most noticeable when the busa about the knee is involved (housemaid's knee) or the tip of the elbow (miner's elbow). In tennis elbow, however, there is not much enlargement even when inflammation is acute.

• — • — •

Treatment is the same, regardless of cause. Mild cases often are helped by keeping the arm inactive, or at least avoiding movements that produce pain. Distress may be eased by soaking the elbow in hot water or using a heat lamp or an electric pad for half an hour two or three times daily. English physicians rely on deep massage and manipulation. "Needling" is advocated by many surgeons; in this procedure the area is anesthetized and the fluid withdrawn from the bursa via a sharp needle. One or more such treatments may be needed before the condition subsides. X-ray therapy also has been recommended and now and then it is necessary to remove the bursa to give relief.

TOMORROW: Cross-eye should be treated early for best results.

General Ridgway Profited By Past Korean Mistakes; Deserves Credit For Recent Victory; Acheson Should Be Two Men Instead Of One

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Some senators seem to believe that it is a criminal matter for a newspaper to criticize military mistakes. This is a view also shared by many brass hats—though not all.

However, mistakes are sometimes rectified chiefly through knowing about them, and a case in point is the magnificent manner in which Gen. Matthew Ridgeway has profited from the mistakes of General MacArthur in turning a tragic defeat into Korean victory.

While the very loyal MacArthur clique may argue that he is still supreme commander in Tokyo, and therefore deserves credit for the current victory, the indisputable facts are that General Ridgway was sent to Korea direct from Washington where he had been deputy chief of staff and as such was in close contact with the Pentagon's views of warfare. It also is an indisputable fact that Ridgway won his victory with no new fresh troops and facing a somewhat stronger enemy than MacArthur.

According to military observers who read the battle dispatches here is how Ridgway profited by mistakes and accomplished his remarkable feat:

CAREFUL INTELLIGENCE — MacArthur conducted only limited patrolling for three or four days before launching his attack. Then, after the attack boomeranged, the Eighth Army retreated so fast that it lost all contact with the enemy and for several weeks didn't know where the Communists were.

In contrast, Ridgway conducted aggressive patrolling for eight to ten days before kicking off his offensive. He sent heavy patrols deep into enemy territory in so-called "reconnaissance in force." His orders were to disrupt any Communist build-up, to inflict as many casualties as possible and to survey enemy position. The lack of patrolling by MacArthur failed to detect the Chinese Communist build-up that swept our armies back to the 38th parallel. However, Ridgway's troops knew exactly what to expect.

PUBLIC RELATIONS—MacArthur announced his offensive the same morning it was launched, predicting his troops would be "home by Christmas." Ridgway waited until his offensive had been rolling over 24 hours before announcing it.

POOR BATTLE LIAISON—MacArthur struck in all directions at once. His troops were fanned out from one end of North Korea to the other, in no position to head off a surprise counterattack. The Eighth Army and Tenth Corps also had no battle liaison, had to coordinate their actions through Tokyo.

In contrast, Ridgway opened his attack on the Western front, but didn't order his Eastern front to move until nine days later—after he was sure all was going well. He had the added advantage of being in full command in the field, and wasn't forced to direct two fronts by remote control from Tokyo.

CONTRAST IN CASUALTIES—MacArthur suffered devastating casualties after the Chinese hit, lost more than 15,000 casualties in two weeks. Later, the Marines, who broke out of the Chosin Reservoir trap, mowed down the Chinese at a ratio of 20 to one. However, Ridgway's losses during the first two weks of his offensive were the lightest of the Korean War. He suffered less than 1,500 casualties, at the same time taking a toll of 52,000 Communist casualties.

In fairness to MacArthur and in tribute to the Air Force, Ridgway has been meeting more scattered opposition. This is largely because the Air Force has raked enemy positions with devastating fire bombs and rocket fire. Ridgway's aggressive, armored patrols also killed and rooted out Communists along the path of the offensive. As a result, the main Chinese Communist force is reported to be digging in north of the 38th Parallel.

It should also be pointed out that MacArthur's supply lines in North Korea were stretched, whereas the Chinese Communists were then only a few miles from their supply bases. This situation has now been reversed.

Ridgway's advance patrolling and careful preparation, however, made the big difference between defeat and victory.

Both Hands And Feet

Sgt. Rolland McDonald of Fort Bliss, Texas, read in this column about a Marine colonel who endorsed his state pension check over to Pfc. Robert L. Smith, who lost both arms and both legs in Korea, then had his teeth kicked out by a Chinese Communist. Sergeant McDonald was so touched that he wrote a check for $25 and asked Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas to forward it to the quadruple amputee.

"It was impressed upon me," wrote Sergeant McDonald, "that the Pfc. maybe has a little something coming from most of us who haven't yet been sent to Korea. At any rate, here is my attempt to pay a little of the debt that the citizens of the country owe him."

Fame Is Fleeting

Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan, wartime boss of the cloak-and-dagger Office of Strategic Services, learned the other day how fleeting is fame.

The General returned to his old offices, now occupied by the successor outfit, Central Intelligence Agency, and was stopped by a conscientious guard. Then a receptionist politely asked him to fill out a card giving his full name, address and who he wanted to see.

Dutifully the man who once ruled supreme over this important office obeyed.

Explaining Foreign Policy

Secretary of State Dean Acheson got an education on the headaches of senators at a private luncheon for new members of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Over the coffee cups, Sen. Guy Gillette, the white-haired solon from Iowa, turned to Acheson.

"Every congressman has been swamped with mail on foreign policy," he said. "I've had 6,000 letters on this topic since Christmas. People are confused and bewildered. They want to know what our policy is and why. The hostility toward the State Department can be traced right back to the bewilderment of the people."

"Well, what should we do about it?" Acheson inquired.

"Tell the story over and over again," was Gillette's advice. "Why are our boys fighting in Korea? Why do we need an army for the defense of Western Europe? Why must we raise taxes and impose controls and rationing for defense? Tell the story simply."

"We are doing all we can, Senator," said the Secretary of State. "Members of the department are speaking as never before."

"I made 22 speeches in the last 10 days," volunteered one of Acheson's aides.

Senator Gillette shook his head. "There are only two people who carry the weight to be listened to—the President and you, Mr. Secretary. You must stump the country, if need be, to explain and sell our foreign policy."

NOTE—Real fact is that a Secretary of State almost has to be two people—a politician, in order to sell foreign policy to the public and the Senate; and a student of foreign affairs, in order to decide what that policy should be. It is hard to find a man who can do both.

MATTER OF FACT

Truman's Evolution

WASHINGTON

ONE OF THE most encouraging developments in a discouraging period is a marked change in President Truman's approach to the problem of his Cabinet. Two months ago, even a month ago, the President responded with hostility and ridicule to all suggestions that a coalition Administration, including leading Republicans, would help to secure national unity for the perilous times ahead.

Within the past fortnight, in contrast, the President has discussed the coalition idea calmly and sympathetically with a number of the men who are closest to him. Nothing definite has been decided, and it would be very foolish to predict that eminent Republicans will be brought into the cabinet in the near future. But this has at least become a distinct possibility—which in itself is a considerable accomplishment for the numerous leading Democrats and White House advisors who have been urging coalition upon the President ever since the November election.

The President has not been shaken, on the other hand, in his determination not to touch the State Department. Some of those best qualified to judge are now inclined to think that the President would accept the resignation of Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson if it were spontaneously offered — which is also a change from the former Presidential attitude.

But the President none the less continues to repeat that Secretary Acheson is the very best man for his job; that any successor would run into the same trouble with Congress; and that the attacks upon Acheson are really attacks upon him, Truman.

Truman in fact seems to have acquired a rooted conviction that all criticism, however just, of any member of the White House circle, however high or low, is merely motivated by a desire to "get the President." Hence anyone who is publicly criticized, from the Secretary of State to the shabbiest little peddler of White House influence at the RFC, can be pretty sure of an angry defense from Truman. A cynic has remarked that the best way to keep a job, nowadays, is to get in a mess or to do wrong, and then get the fact in the papers.

In these circumstances, obviously, it is foolishly optimistic to look for the kind of immensely fruitful and effective coalition Administration that would be made possible if Secretary Acheson bowed out. Although he might conceivably accept his resignation, the President will not ask Acheson to resign. The Secretary shows no wish to do so. And thus he must be regarded, for a while longer at least, as a fixed star in the official firmament.

Hence if leading Republicans are

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14. — The railroads and the labor unions are getting closer toward a peace treaty. But there are some mysterious circumstances being revealed which show why the task of mediation at the White House has been made doubly difficult.

A controversy has developed over the part played by John R. Steelman, special assistant to the President. For several days now efforts have been made from labor sources to discredit Mr. Steelman's role, and this has been done partly by the dissemination of a report that he had set himself up as a sort of "czar" or "three-year arbitrator."

This report is wholly untrue but the reason for spreading it would appear to be to try to weaken Mr. Steelman's influence at the President's side. Actually John Steelman is one of the ace mediators in the country. For seven years he was the head of the U.S. Conciliation Service, and was involved in the handling of more than 10,000 strikes or threatened strikes and more than 80,000 labor disputes of all types. Mr. Steelman is not assigned exclusively to labor matters at the White House but assists in general administrative tasks and gets into labor problems only when they are sufficiently acute to require the attention of the President himself.

Steelman's Record Good

In the face of the long and efficient record of Mr. Steelman as a mediator, it came as a surprise to find the unions charging that he had set himself up as a "three-year arbitrator." The facts with reference to Mr. Steelman's part in the recent negotiations are these:

1. Mr. Steelman was not assigned to the railroad dispute by the White House but became involved in it at the special request of the four union presidents. He agreed to call meetings but with the understanding that the Railway Mediation Board would participate in the discussions.

2. When, on December 21, a memorandum agreement was signed in full by the four presidents of the railroad unions as well as by the representatives of the railroads, the document set forth the understanding of both parties. It was not in legal language but it recited unequivocally the basic points of agreement in the form of a summary.

3. It was fully understood by both sides that the points in this memorandum would be put into legal language later. There was a provision which said that if the parties could not agree on the "details" before writing the actual agreement itself, John Steelman was to make the final decision.

4. This service to be rendered by Mr. Steelman was to end as soon as the agreement was drawn up in legal language and hence his part was to be temporary—probably for a few days.

5. There was an understanding at the time that a blank space was to be left on one of the points dealing with the price for coupling or uncoupling hose but, once the final agreement on this rule was reached, Mr. Steelman was no longer to arbitrate anything.

6. An understanding was reached also that after July 1, 1952, the parties would go to Mr. Steelman again in connection with wage stabilization but only to set in motion machinery whereby the President of the United States would appoint a referee to determine whether further wage increases were justified under government policy.

Attack Viewed As Unfair

The foregoing sets forth the actual connection of Mr. Steelman with the entire affair, and yet for some odd reason there has been an effort to make it appear that somehow the President's assistant was setting himself up for some special job of a permanent nature out of which presumably he was to derive a benefit.

This type of unfair attack could only have been started as a reprisal against Mr. Steelman because he stood his ground—and so did the President—in insisting that the original memorandum of points signed on December 21 was binding and that the four union presidents who signed it should in good faith have recommended it to their organization instead of backing down on it.

Mr. Steelman has been the center of controversy before when he settled the coal miner's dispute in 1941 as a special arbitrator appointed by the late President Roosevelt but he was attacked then as too friendly to the unions. Plainly the lot of a mediator is a hard, hard lot, but John Steelman's record for fairness isn't going to be tarnished by insidious propaganda from rail unions which played "sick" and recently caused hundreds of millions of dollars in losses to the American people.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Infantry In Front

THE Great Debate is to result in hearings before the Senate. A terrific array of brass is to be called—in uniform, bedecked and emblazoned. The principal witnesses will be doughboys—infantrymen, ground troops. Generals Marshall, Eisenhower and Bradley. The Navy had a tough time when Louis Johnson was Secretary of Defense; now it is the Navy and the Air Force who are silenced.

But infantry alone will not win a war. There are many effective, if not more effective functional groups: the Air Force, the Navy, artillery, cavalry (tanks), to say nothing of all the new scientific and psychological agencies.

Have you noticed how silent these branches have been? Have you noted that during the whole of the Great Debate General Hoyt Vandenberg of the Air Force, who used to be quite vocal, has been silent as though he did not exist? And what has become of Admiral Forrest Sherman? Have these services no views to pass on to the Congress and to the American people?

Well, I have been asking these questions and I was told that effective December 12, 1950, "no speeches or public announcements will be made by armed forces personnel until clearance has been obtained. Copies of future speeches, statements, or press releases concerning foreign or military policy must be submitted to this headquarters (Pentagon) for proper clearance.

"All personnel, particularly those overseas, will refrain from making public statements or communicating with news media on military or foreign policy without prior clearance with this headquarters. The purpose is not to curtail the flow of information to the American people but to insure that the information is accurate and in accord with the policies of the United States Government."

Such instructions have not been unusual in recent years, but that last sentence is political nonsense. The head of the Air Force or the Navy is accurate when he responsibly testifies before a congressional committee. Why should one assume that General Hoyt Vandenberg or Admiral Forrest Sherman, so testifying under oath, is less responsible and accurate than Generals George Marshall, Dwight Eisenhower or Omar Bradley? Does the infantry have a monopoly of the truth? There was a time when all military men sang together as perfectly as a Fred Waring glee club, but apparently those days are gone.

It has come to me, in an indirect manner, perhaps irresponsibly, that the following instructions were added to those of December 12:

"Officers may, upon their own responsibility and at their own discretion, make remarks concerning unclassified matters of foreign or military policies to selected groups for background purposes only and not for publication, without obtaining prior clearance, provided that their remarks are confined to the bounds of policies which have been publicly announced by the White House, State or Defense Departments."

In other words, what is permissible is that which has been politically cleared. While Congress gropes for the facts so that it may pass the legislation required to defend this country, high-ranking officers of our armed services have been gagged, by orders, requiring them to watch their politics.

Until these orders are withdrawn, these men may not speak truthfully if the truth contradicts policy. They are soldiers and are required by their profession to obey their superiors in a chain of command reaching upward to the President who, while a politician, is Commander-in-Chief.

Therefore, the Congress may never have the whole truth in open hearings. That does not mean that human nature, being what it is,

Fellowship Of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotional

SEEING THE CROWD WITH HIM

He had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd.

Mark 6:34 (R. S. V.).
Read Isaiah 40:1—11

There can be no abiding fellowship with Jesus if we are going to part company with him at the point where the crowd needs shepherding.

When Jesus stood there in the desert and looked about, "he saw a great throng." He had eyes for them, a heart of compassion towards them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd.

A shepherd is not a hireling. He risks his life for the sheep. He carries the lambs in his bosom and tenderly leads those that are with young. The sheep do not reason themselves into the thicket. They nibble at this little tuft of grass and that, slake their thirst at this little running stream, and so get way from the fold. A sheep is stupid.

Is the crowd anything but stupid? It blunders into sin. It makes a sorry spectacle of itself. Someone must always be going after it and bringing it back. Only those who abide in the fellowship of Jesus will see both the good and the evil, and will labor to make the good triumph.

Let Us Pray: May we never forget, our Father, that it is the multitude that needs our compassion. Give to those who follow thee minds that think thy thoughts after thee, and hearts that are filled with the compassionate love of Jesus. In his name we pray. Amen.

ALONG THE POTOMAC TO WASHINGTON

(By Representative J. Glenn Beall, Sixth Maryland District)

THE HOUSE last week approved a three-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act only after accepting amendments aimed at protecting American industry and barring future trade concessions to Russia and its satellites. Forty-six Democrats joined with Republicans in voting these amendments. The peril-point system, voted into the act by the 80th Congress and rescinded by the 81st Congress, was included in the amendments. This peril-point proviso requires the President to give Congress a full explanation any time he agrees to cut United States tariff rates below a "peril-point" established for a commodity by the tariff commission.

In addition to prohibiting tariff concessions in the future to Russia or any of her satellites, there is a completely new "escape clause" procedure, under which the Tariff Commission could investigate any tariff concession to another nation and determine whether it seriously injured an American industry and could recommend withdrawal or modification of such concession or creation of import quotas. All this is a step in the right direction to protect American industry against slave labor wages which has been flooding the American markets with imports below the cost of manufacturing the same products in this country. The bill now goes to the Senate for consideration.

In order to induce the holders of savings of "E" war bonds, the House approved a bill which will permit holders of these bonds to continue to draw 2.9 per cent interest over a second 10-year period as well as for the first 10 years. Thus it is to the interest of holders of these bonds not to cash them. The Senate is expected to approve this bill.

Following the report of the Senate Banking Committee which asserted that members of the White House staff and the Democrat National Committee exerted undue influence in RFC loans, Senator Schoeppel of Kansas has urged a Federal grand jury investigation on political fixing and favoritism in granting millions of dollars of loans. Many members of Congress have been insisting upon such an investigation for some time after reports of unsound loans have come to their attention and have been in favor of the appointing of a competent director instead of the five-man board to direct the activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The House Committee on Foreign Affairs has introduced a change in its procedure for consideration of bills before that committee. It has decided to call in the authors of all bills referred to the committee and give them an opportunity to speak for 15 minutes on behalf of their proposals. This revised procedure should serve to give the committee a better understanding of the proposals and House members a better chance to participate effectively in the framing of legislation on foreign affairs.

UNDER THE DOME

I have requested the Postmaster General to consider the issuance of a stamp commemorating the one hundredth anniversary o. the ice-cream industry in America. The first operation of this kind was in Baltimore in 1851. The Maryland State Historial Society is sponsoring some of the centennial year program and all of the ice-cream industry—nation-wide—is very much interested in having such a stamp struck

Numerous letters are being received relative to the proposed closing of the Veterans Administration office in Hagerstown. I have protested the closing of this office because I feel that it is needed in that area and has served a good purpose.

The Surgeon General advised me the Outpatient Annex of the Marine Hospital in Baltimore will continue until June 30, 1951, at which time it is hoped that provisions will be made to further continue its operation.

It was my honor to act as master of ceremonies at the exercises held at the Lincoln Memorial on February 5. I introduced the various speakers and Governor McKeldin placed a wreath at the memorial.

Warehouse To Get Street Complaints

Public complaints on streets, alleys or other projects under the Street Department should be called to the warehouse and not the administrative office in City Hall, Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, said today.

Mrs. Roeder, in a move to speed up action on complaints received, urged the public to cooperate in making requests by telephoning 1134 instead of to the downtown office.

By channeling complaints to the warehouse, Mrs. Roeder said, better use may be made of the department's facilities.

Time is lost when administrative employes at the City Hall must stop their work, take the complaint and then re-call the complaint to the warehouse.

Chamber Luncheon Set For Today

Unusual interest in a luncheon meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Friday at 12:15 p. m. at Central YMCA has prompted a deadline for reservations today at noon, H. W. Smith, manager, announced.

The subject for discussion will be city finances and importance has been added by the city's proposals to find new sources of revenue.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz and City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson will speak.

Major American race tracks close down all pay telephones while races are in progress.

Don't be HALF-SAFE
by VALDA SHERMAN

Many mysterious changes take place in your body as you mature. Now, the glands under your arms begin to secrete daily a new type of perspiration containing substances which will—if they reach your dress—cause ugly stains and clinging odor.
You'll face this problem throughout womanhood. It's not enough merely to stop the odor of this perspiration. You must now use a deodorant that stops the perspiration itself before it reaches—and ruins—your clothes.
As doctors know, not all deodorants stop both perspiration and odor. But Arrid does! It's been proved that the new cream deodorant Arrid stops underarm perspiration 1 to 3 days safely—keeps underarms dry and sweet.
Remember this, too. Arrid's antiseptic action kills odor on contact—prevents formation of odor up to 48 hours and keeps you "shower-bath" fresh. And it's safe for skin—safe for fabrics.
So, don't be half-safe. Don't risk your happiness with half-safe deodorants. Be Arrid-safe! Use Arrid to be sure. Arrid with Creamogen will not dry out, and it's so pleasant and easy to apply. Get Arrid today—only 39¢ plus tax.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

WASHINGTON

WORD'S around that the President must take a rest . . . The unparalleled Administration propaganda machine has gone to work . . . Word leaks out on the radio, in the press services, in columns and at cocktail parties that the President looks tired, that he's working too long and too hard . . . The only needed touch is a remark on recuperation from his personal physician, which may be expected at any time, when it appears that Truman can safely absent himself from Washington. So, like other unmistakable signs of spring, the President will take off early in March for Key West, or Guantanamo, Cuba, where the Atlantic Fleet bases in winter maneuvers . . . He has, of course, already declined all invitations to dinners and to-do's during the emergency . . . But a man needs some relaxation and, as a matter of fact, thanks to modern communications, he's almost as close to work on his train, plane or yacht as he would be in the Blair House . . . He has phones, radios, telegraph and not only gets reports but can talk to his officials frequently . . . Could get back by plane in a few hours.

AUSTINE

Hearts and Flowers—and Cupids shooting arrows—all the St. Valentine sentiment in the air started me asking some of the nationally-known couples who swim in this Fish Bowl, "How did you meet each other?" . . . The public often reads their speeches, and their press statements, or about their feuds, finances and social life, their new appointments, resignations or indignations . . . But you seldom read much about their big romances . . . Still, most of them are not too busy enjoying pleasant and successful lives together to stop and remember "how I met my mate:"

One couple whose name you read in the newspapers every day met in the U. S. Rubber Company—of all places . . . She was a secretary for the company and Mr. Cyrus Ching, now U. S. Wage Stabilizer, was director of public relations.

"When Cy's secretary left to get married he telephoned the man for whom I worked. Took him out to lunch, persuaded him to let me take over the job," says Mrs. Ching, a soft-eyed, intelligent brunette. "Cy didn't propose for a long time. One day after he had come to Washington he met me at the Pennsylvania Station. That's where it happened. I accepted, later on, of course," she laughed. "And he fired me. We've been married for eight years."

• — • — •

Another romance began when a fine soldier was invited to a dinner in Columbus, Georgia . . . The hostess had set the stage to introduce him to a former college chum of hers . . . The college chum turned out to be an attractive widow from Baltimore . . . The widow naturally was charmed by the eligible lieutenant colonel, then assistant commandant of the Infantry Training School at Fort Benning . . . But she let him take two years to win her, and make her Mrs. George Marshall, now Mrs. Secretary of Defense.

• — • — •

Mrs. Harry P. Cain met the man who would be her husband and the Senator from Washington State while he was directing a Little Theatre group in Takoma . . . "Harry came in with the man who was designing our sets. He was my leading man from the beginning. We were married ten days later."

Representative Eugene Cox from Georgia was invited to be an "extra man" at the house of a friend in Sylvester, Georgia . . . Two years later his dinner partner for that night became his wife, who says, "I fell in love with him when I first met him. And it keeps getting better and better as the years go by. He's such a sweet thing."

Sen. Langer of N. Dak. stood up on the floor of the Senate to tell about his heart throb . . . I quote from the Congressional Record:

"I met her while I was attending a philharmonic concert at Earle Hall (he was studying law at Columbia University). While I was at the concert a friend of mine, Robert Erskine, walked in with a very, very beautiful young lady. They took their seats in the sixth row, four seats in from the aisle (what a memory!). I arranged to send a fake telephone call to the rear of the hall and had Mr. Erskine paged. When Mr. Erskine left his seat, I went down and sat in his place. The young lady said, 'I beg your pardon, but there must be some mistake.' I liked the tone of her voice. I liked the way she acted. When she said 'This seat belongs to Mr. Erskine' I said she was mistaken and that the seat belonged to me. I kept possession of the seat. So I met the young lady and I made up my mind immediately the first time I saw her that if she would have me I would marry her."

• — • — •

President Truman's Air Force Aide, Gen. Bob Landry and his wife both come from New Orleans. "We've been married eighteen years. I can't remember any time when I did not know Bob. But I do remember he went to the same school with my brother and I used to go over to see my brother, supposedly. I went to see Bob some more after he went to West Point. And I'll never forget the time when I got there and he had already chosen a 'miniature.'"

Mrs. Landry still wears the tiny replica of her husband's West Point ring.

Even while you are shopping, you can give yourself the finest beauty treatment for your hands! Try it!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

Did you ever count the number of times a day that your hands are subjected to soap and water? Each time they are robbed of some of their surface oils, inviting the roughness and redness that steal their beauty.

Do you take every precaution to acoid this pilferage of your hands' loveliness? Even with myriad household chores, you can keep them soft and fair just by doing five things.

Protecting Hand Beauty

One, avoid excessive exposure of your hands by wearing waterproof gloves to perform as many soap-and-water or grimy tasks as possible. Or use one of the amazing new rub-on products that actually coat your hands against harm of all kinds and rinse off easily when the job is done.

Two, avoid washing your hands with soap and water more often than is necessary. Instead, "wash" them with a liquid hand lotion. All the good ones contain cleansing agents as well as beauty-restoring oils. Work lavishly with your hand lotion, just as you do with a lather of soap; then rince with cool water and pat dry. Apply a second but very sparing film of lotion to protect and smooth the skin.

Three, whenever possible, rub a little facial oil on the backs of your hands. You will be surprised at how many jobs you can do, (dusting for example) without smearing the oil on any object.

Hand Beauty Treatment

Four, give your hands a weekly treatment with a little facial oil and a smooth-fitting pair of old cotton gloves. Warm a corked bottle of facial oil in a bowl of hot water. Using a tablespoon of warmed oil, massage both hands gently, paying particular attention to the nail cuticle and the knuckles. Then pull on your gloves and go about your business for the next hour. You can shop, drive or even walk the dog while giving your hands this beauty-making treatment.

Five, never use the granulated soap found in public powder rooms. Carry soap leaves or a thin sliver of your own face soap wrapped in foil.

Six, investigate the new hand-cosmetics which beautify your hands the way a foundation does your face.

Fairgo Inn Gets Beer License

A remonstrance against the issuing of a beer and wine license to the Fairgo Inn owned by Henry Schoenadel, Route 5, was ordered dismissed by the Allegany County Liquor Control Board after a hearing in theCourt House. A license was granted.

The board, however, warned Schoenadel that the rules must be followed or he may have his license revoked.

At the same time, the board ordered Joseph F. Carnell, Class B beer and wine license holder at Fred's Friendly Tavern, 33 Front Street, to appear on February 27 at 10 a. m. in the Court House before the Board to show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Carnell was convicted on January 18, in Police Court on a charge of allowing a minor to loaf in his place. Trial Magistrate Frank A. Perdew fined him $100.

Carnell was arrested by City Police after a 17-year-old boy was picked up with a Wellersburg, Pa., man in a drunken condition. They had been in the Friendly Tavern, they informed police. The youth denied drinking whisky offered him by the man in the tavern, however.

The remonstrance against Schoenadel was signed by 58 residents of the Fairgo section who said the granting of the license would be detrimental to the area.

Mrs. Cessna Will Head Fund Group

Appointment of Mrs. Holmes Cessna as co-chairman of the Women's Division of the 1951 Allegany County Red Cross campaign was announced yesterday by William C. Walsh, general chairman of the drive that will begin here Monday, March 5, with a goal of $26,796.

Mrs. Cessna, who lives with her husband on Union Grove Road, will work with Mrs. Charles F. Helmrich, of LeFevre Road, in heading the Women's Division of the county drive. Mrs. Cessna has been active in the Allegany County Red Cross Chapter since 1941, serving as a staff assistant at the local office, and since 1946 has been production chairman.

In this capacity, Mrs. Cessna has had the responsibility of sorting and distributing all articles of clothing received here for victims of disasters. In addition, Mrs. Cessna took charge of the distribution of all knitted goods received for members of the armed forces during World War II.

This is Mrs. Cessna's fourth year as co-chairman of the Women's Division and it will be the third year she has had the additional duty of supply chairman for the county drive. Robinson Wins Middle Crown With 13th Round TKO

By JACK HAND

CHICAGO, Feb. 14 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson stripped groggy blood-smeared Jack LaMotta of his world middleweight title tonight on a technical knockout at 2:04 of the 13th round without ruining Jake's proud boast of never being floored.

Referee Frank Sykora stepped between the fierce battlers as the squat Bronx Bull sagged and grabbed Sugar Ray's trunks to avoid a knock down. LaMotta, game but badly beaten in the last five rounds, clutched the ropes and wandered to his corner under his own power.

The slick Harlem Sugar Dandy automatically yielded up his world welter weight crown under Illinois rules when his hand was raised in victory. But he became the fourth man in boxing history to have held both the welter and middle crowns during their careers.

Robinson speared stout Jake with searing lefts in the early rounds while retreating under LaMotta's body fire. When he opened the floodgates in the ninth the end was in sight.

Still Jake, who had to hump himself to make the 160 pounds, gamely fought on under teeth-rattling fire through the one-side 11th and 12th until he simply could not take any more.

As LaMotta left the ring, the big Chicago Stadium crowd gave him a send-off with "for he's a jolly good fellow" to organ accompaniment.

Robinson, savage and strong at 155½, left no doubt about this sixth renewal of a series starting in 1942 before either won a title. He took his revenge on Jake, the only man who ever beat him in his brilliant 123-bout career. And he took it the only way he knows how. Setting him up with those stabbing jabs, bobbing Jake's red-splotched head with his uppercuts and wobbling his man with looping rights to the head.

Sugar Ray wore a worried look in the first round when stout Jake in his semi-crouch bulled him to the ropes and tried to wrestle him down. Robinson was missing with his right through the early rounds but piled up points and punishment with his stinging jab.

Time after time Jake stormed back from cover, snarling through his bashed lips as he pursued the back-pedaling Ray. In the fourth he rallied strongly in the final 30 seconds to all but overcome Robinson's strong start.

Sugar Ray cut loose in the ninth, the turning point of the contest. In the tenth he bashed Jake's right eye in a furious counter attack after Jake's opening hook.

Jake shot his last dynamite in a dying swan gesture to start the 11th. Robinson covered in a corner and rode out the storm. Then he pulled the switch.

The end came as no surprise in the 13th. Robinson hit him at will. It was only a question of how much could Jake take without going down.

Mounties Stave Off Terp Spurt, Win 70-64

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Feb. 14 (AP)—The West Virginia University basketball team staved off a late threat by Maryland tonight to win 70-64 before 3,750 fans in Ritchie Coliseum.

Lee Brawley led the scorers with a total of 24 points, and Ken Alessi topped the winners with 19 counters.

Mark Workman, the nation's third leading scorer, was held to 13 points, but saw only sixteen minutes of action before he was waved out of the game via the personal foul route.

Miss Highbrow Takes Renewal Of Columbiana

Ken Church Rides 4 Hialeah Winners

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP) —Brown Hotel Stable's Miss Highbrow and Jockey Ken Church formed a winning combination in the renewal of the $7,500 Columbia Handicap before a crowd of 199,172 at Hialeah Park today.

But the backers of the daughter of Helipolis had a few anxious minutes before her triumph in this stake for fillies and mares was confirmed by the Stewards.

For Church, it was his fourth winner out of five mounts today, pushing his total for the meeting to 28. He had figured in another claim of foul in the opener, and had the good fortune to escape official censure on both occasions.

Miss Highbrow, a winner of her previous start on Feb. 6, came over on Brookmeade Stable's Ouija in the final sixteenth, and after the finish Joe Culmone lodged the foul against Church. However, it appeared that Culmone had the misfortune to be moving too rapidly and found no room to come through to the inside of the leader.

Ouija probably was best, for she was practically left at the post, and was flying at the end of the race. She was beaten only a length and a quarter by Miss Highbrow, which earned a purse of $6,755, and paid $18.70 straight.

LONACONING —A grey rubber weather balloon attached to an orange wax-covered paper parachute burst and landed in a tree a mile from the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Fazenbaker, Dan's Mountain, Lonaconing, last Sunday.

Two of the Fazenbaker brothers, Lee and Grover, saw the odd looking thing in the sky coming down and retrieved it.

This is the first such weather balloon found in the Lonaconing area. A note attached to the parachute asked that word be sent to Illinois Weather station the exact whereabouts of its landing.

It was sent up by the Pittsburgh Weather station and it is believed that a balloon reaches an altitude of twelve miles before bursting.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 14 (INS)—James Cagney is reading "Angels In The Outfield," the story originally bought for Clark Gable, and you're safe betting that he'll do it.

Jimmy has free time right now and he likes the idea of working for Clarence Brown, and the idea of making his first MGM picture. The only thing that might hold up the deal is the price Cagney gets for each picture—a quarter of a million, if you please. But with his box office popularity and the importance of good pictures today, I don't think money will stand in the way.

He likes the script so it's 80-1 Jimmy Cagney will be moving into a dressing room at the Culver city studio.

The Howard Hawks-Eddie Lasker combination is making a big pitch to get Gregory Peck for "The Left Hand of God." Greg, who played a priest in "Keys To The Kingdom" told me he read the book and likes it but so far the deal has reached only the talking stage.

The story, which William Faulkner is scripting, is about an aviator, raised a Catholic, who pretends he's a priest to get away from a Chinese warlord. It's a strong story and made right would not offend the church. The very fact that his pretense of being a priest brings the deserter from his faith back into the fold, is a good part of the story.

English Producer Dan Angel, who was here to talk to Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., about making a picture in England, is trying to get Bette Davis to star in "Poison Pen."

Bette wants the role only if 20th will loan Gary Merrill to play opposite her. She and Gary have had far too many separations to suit her, and when a gal is in love with her guy she doesn't want to have the ocean between them.

Irving Rapper, who directed Bette on the Warner lot, is directing the picture for Angel and that's another reason she'd like to do it.

Edward Arnold, while touring with the Broadway comedy, "Apple Of His Eye," was a caller at the White House to see President Truman who, incidentally, always calls Eddie "Mr. President."

When he told President Truman that one of the Washington critics panned the show, the President beamed, "He did? Did you write him a letter?"

Eddie's movie pals will be on hand next Monday, Feb. 19, at the Biltmore Theatre to see him in "Apple Of His Eye", his first time on the stage in 18 years.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Valentina Cortesa and Richard Basehart are ardently romantic, and don't let anyone tell you any different. Their favorite dining spot is Mazzarino's in the Valley.

Audie Murphy and his airline sweetheart, Pamela Archer, were at the Saddle and Sirloin, and she is a real beauty.

Just before Tallulah Bankhead planed to Hollywood for her show she and Bill Langford, her favorite boyfriend, had a big blow up. Bets are they'll make up since he has been her one and only for three years.

Just to give you an idea of how time flies, Margaret O'Brien is now getting requests for pinup pictures from the younger servicemen.

After the Photoplay awards dinner Jane Wyman and Greg Bautzer went on to Mocambo. Shelley Winters and Farley Granger, who also went there, were joined by Liz Taylor and Stanley Donen, and the Marshall Thompsons.

Marlene Dietrich and Michael Wilding at a table for two at Ciro's.

From London comes word that Mario Cabre appeared at the premiere of "Pandora" in a black silk cape, white lace shirt and a matador hat, and delighted all the audience by gazing adoringly at the life-size picture of Ava Gardner in the foyer.

Condolences to the Frank Cleavers (he is former head of Paramount story department). Their baby was born dead.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Some Small Matters

"LIGHTS OUT" has been trying to scare the living daylights out of the kiddies and the adults, too, for a long time now. Last week, they succeeded in their grim purpose even better than ever with a story about the last two survivors of an atomic bomb explosion. The girl of the pair is living in a well-stocked bomb shelter in Chicago when the boy arrives, apparently having run all the way from California hotly pursued by hordes of rats.

John Crosby

The girl was a little irritated at him for bringing the rats along since she hadn't had any prior rat trouble. Then the rats closed in, squealing, screaming, and trying to gnaw down the front door to get at the two inhabitants who are the only edible things left on earth. As sound effects, go, it was a little masterpiece of the macabre. It was also a little too much for the nerves and stomachs of a great many of us listeners, whose nerves are edgy enough already. If there were any children around, I don't suppose they could get to sleep for a week. This is a notable accomplishment but hardly an admirable one.

Since the horror programs — "Suspense," "Tales of the Black Cat," "Danger" — seem to be doing awfully well on television, I don't suppose there's any possibility of eliminating them. But let's take it a little easy, fellows.

I'm always alert to "firsts" on television, believing that credit should be given where credit is due. Ed Sullivan, you'll recall, was duly commemorated for having been first to discover the entertainment possibilities in the spectacle of a studio audience applauding. Then there was WMAR-TV which was the first to telecast a turtle race. Hail, WMAR-TV.

We should also lift a glass to Robert Montgomery for his production of "The Egg and I." He claimed this was the first television play to employ barnyard fowl. Cheers, Mr. Montgomery. One more distinguished "first" was scored last week by Garry Moore on his afternoon television show. Mr. Moore became the first man to be sawed in half in front of a TV camera. Came out of it fine. One more notable "first" will be written into the record books this Friday on "Date in Manhattan." On that day (11 a. m., NBC-TV), Jack Berch, the singer, will become the first man to give a pint of blood as the cameras record and thousands cheer. That's all the firsts we have on tap now. I'll keep you informed.

• — • — •

A reader — I have one or two — writes in with a small complaint about a recent Pulitzer Prize Playhouse production of which she saw all but the opening and consequently didn't know what play she was watching. The end of the play brought screen credits for the actors, director, producer and, above all, sponsor — but not the name of the play or the author.

"Because I have a mildly curious nature, I called TV station WJZ and asked them for the name of the play. They gave me the name, "Alison's House," but if I wanted to know the name of the author I could call on Monday and the station would be glad to supply the information. What prize Pulitzer?"

As a matter of belated recognition, it ought to be recorded that "Alison's House" was written by Susan Glaspell and won the Pulitzer for the 1930-31 drama season.

My other reader sends in a different complaint. "My gripe is listening to those incessant riders at the ends of programs telling me to be sure to listen to what is to follow immediately as well as an hour from now. That is being as much overdone as in some of the movie houses. Add to that the commercials of the sponsors, the government propagandists, the pleadings for all the special drives and, dear me, that hardly leaves any time for soap operas and murders."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

R B M J T F R J O R Q K G M V K Q V N K-
U B V C M V. S K L F I V S J V J V F G V G R
L K G V M K C M V G C V X S J F C J V S J F S

Matter Of Fact

to be introduced into the Administration, other places, at the Treasury and Commerce departments for example, must be found for them. This is precisely what is under consideration.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder is another subordinate whose resignation the President will never ask for. But Snyder is not well. He has at least two offers of major business positions. He is again talking of getting out, as he has done before. If he really leaves —and the "if" is a very big one— his departure would probably be the signal for the President to bring Republicans in. Elliott Bell, the brilliant advisor of Thomas E. Dewey, whom the New York Governor would certainly have made his Secretary of the Treasury if he had won in 1948, is one of those being conditionally discussed for Snyder's place.

"Progress, but not enough progress," is the shortest way to describe this evolution in the President's political thinking. If all the ifs come true, and the Truman Administration is actually strengthened by the addition of one or two Republicans of Bell's stature, the position in Washington will at least be greatly improved. But it will still be highly doubtful whether the American government will possess the essential power to act, and to act quickly, boldly and decisively, in response to the immense challenges which are surely ahead of us.

The White House and State Department have managed to convince themselves that the comparative calm on Capitol Hill means that the Congressional storm against Secretary Acheson has blown itself out. Unfortunately, there are far more reasons to suspect that this calm is merely the lull at the heart of the hurricane.

The most significant political development since the election is Sen. Robert A. Taft's decision to use Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy both as a chief lieutenant in Congress and as the leading propagandist of the Taft presidential campaign. The purpose, obviously, is to let McCarthy outdo, in this session, everything he did in the last session. And as long as the President refuses to take the truly decisive steps which will rally all moderate men to his standard, there is little protection against the Taft-McCarthy strategy.

does not in some manner, if only by rumor, assert itself.

For instance, no matter how great an effort was made in Washington to lower General MacArthur's prestige by calling the evacuation of Hungnam a Dunkirk, it never was that. Although General MacArthur has been criticized by American and British politicians for being too precise about the size of the Soviet Chinese Army, it is true that General Lin Piao had an army of 500,000 men, even if knowledge of the fact did embarrass the appeasers in the United Nations. Such facts do get out.

A student might even make a comparison between the Anzio campaign in World War II and the Korean campaign, and the infantrymen would be very embarrassed.

But rumor and gossip do not serve as an honestly conducted congressional investigation can. The question then is: Shall we have a full hearing or another Pearl Harbor investigation, or worse still, another Tydings Committee?

Market, Despite Last-Minute Rally, Closes On Downside

NEW YORK, Feb. 14 (AP)—In spite of a last minute show of strength, the stock market today closed lower.

Nickel Plate preferred was down more than $4 at times and closed off $3.25 at $108. It was the day's most active issue with 33,405 shares changing hands. The common came to life in the latter part of the day and closed up $2 at $225. Other leaders in the rails lost upwards of $2 at the most.

There was no pronounced strength or weakness among major groups, but several individuals stood out.

General Tire & Rubber gained $3.75 at $46 after reporting 1950 fiscal year earnings amounting to $13.58 as compared with 94 cents the previous fiscal year.

Bigelow-Sanford gained $1.87 at $34.12. The company reported 1950 earnings equal to $9.16 a share against $4.10 the previous year.

The total trading for the day was 2,060,000 shares as compared with 2,400,000 shares yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks lost 30 cents at $96.50 with the industrial component down 40 cents, rails off 30 cents, and utilities up 10 cents.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

TWO CAN BE SHREWD

FOLLOWING an interesting deal around the room in a duplicate tournament can disclose a striking variety of tactics and results. One of the most attractive types of developments to watch is that which involves several stages of skill. The first may be that in which an average player tries ordinary finessing tactics to make his contract and fails. The second may be use of a throw-in play by a shrewd declarer who succeeds despite canny defensive action which tries to thwart the play.

	♠ Q J 7 5 2 ♥ A J 10 8 ♦ J 10 ♣ K 8
♠ None ♥ 7 5 3 ♦ Q 8 7 4 ♣ Q J 10 6 5 2	N W E S	♠ 10 6 4 ♥ K Q 9 ♦ A K 9 6 2 ♣ 9 3
	♠ A K 9 8 3 ♥ 6 4 2 ♦ 5 3 ♣ A 7 4

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East

When the kibitzer picked up this deal at one table, he decided to follow it around the room until he saw somebody make maximum use of the possibilities offered. They were muffed at the first table. West at every occasion opened the club Q. The first declarer won that with the K. Noting that he must lose two tricks in diamonds, he decided to try to limit heart losses to one by finessing twice. On the second, third and fourth tricks he took out trumps, then finessed the heart J to the Q. East scored the diamond K and A, then returned the club 3 to the A. Now the heart 10 was finessed to the K, setting it.

At a later table, South succeeded with a lead-throwing end-play. After winning with the club K and taking out trumps, he scored the club A, then ruffed the club 7 before making his big try. He led the diamond J. East won that with the K. Instead of also scoring his A, on seeing his partner's 8, he led a low diamond to West's Q. The latter led the heart 7, the J finesse losing to the Q. But East was stuck now. He had to pitch back into the remaining heart tenace or lead a diamond which could be ruffed in the North while South discarded a heart.

It was a nice try by East to beat the throw-in play. But it didn't work, as the play that South built was foolproof unless West could win two diamond tricks and lead hearts twice.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ Q 4 ♥ A K 5 4 2 ♦ J 9 4 3 ♣ J 8
♠ K 7 ♥ J 10 6 ♦ 10 8 2 ♣ A K 10 4 2	N W E S	♠ 10 9 8 6 ♥ Q 9 7 3 ♦ 6 5 ♣ 9 7 6
	♠ A J 5 3 2 ♥ 8 ♦ A K Q 7 ♣ Q 5 3

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

How should South play for 4-Spades after West takes two club tops and leads the heart J?

Investigators Probe WM Passenger Train Wreck

Train Slowup Averts More Serious Mishap

Passenger Coach Plunges 20 Feet Over Embankment

An investigation was started yesterday by Western Maryland Railroad officials into the cause of the wreck of a passenger train shortly before noon.

The wreck occured within the city limits near Virginia Avenue station at a siding switch leading to the Cumberland Box Company. Ten persons were injured and taken to Memorial Hospital for observation.

Officials thought that "foul play" was involved but the real cause has not yet been determined. An eye witness said that the locomotive and baggage car passed over the switch but the passenger car broke away lurched to the left, continued a short distance upright down the siding and then toppled 20-feet over an embankment.

Cedric "Ced" Miller, ticket agent for the Western Maryland saw the accident while attempting to flag the train down for a passenger at the Virginia Avenue Station.

Miller said that Attorney Thomas Barrett Jr., a Rent Control official of Baltimore had purchased a ticket but missed the train. Miller offered to take him to the Virginia Avenue station. Barrett agreed and in the meantime Miller called the MY Tower at the Maryland Junction to have them slow down the passenger train.

Train Slows Down

After arriving at the Virginia Avenue station Miller proceeded to flag down the engineer. The train slowed down and when it crossed the switch Miller said "it looked like the entire train would topple over." Seconds later he said the passenger car lurched and finally toppled over the enbankment.

Immediately Miller summoned ambulances and went to the scene to aid in getting the injured out of the wreckage. A registered nurse, Mrs. Aileen Washinger, Braddock Road, and her husband happened to be nearby and were among the first to arrive. She entered the wrecked car and administered first aid until ambulances arrived. Dr. Alex J. Mozzer, a railroad physician also aided the injured. Barrett assisted until the passengers were removed to the hospital and returned to Baltimore on a later train.

Earl H. Haugh, 23 Virginia Avenue, a brakeman on the train said "it happened so quickly I could hardly describe just what went on." He was taken to Memorial Hospital and received X-rays of the knee and shoulder.

Main Line Undamaged

Rails on the main line were not damaged and only one section of track had to be replaced on the siding according to Elkins Division Superintendent Joseph Miller. He said the rear of the baggage car was lifted onto the track and the locomotive returned to Cumberland station where a new passenger car was put on and the train left for Baltimore about 3:05 p. m. The two trainmen were replaced. Train No. 9 to Elkins from Cumberland usually leaves at 2:45 p. m. but was delayed for twenty minutes yesterday.

A more serious wreck could have occured if the train had been travelling at its usual rate of 30 to 35 miles an hour at the point where the accident happened.

WM Official Praises Action At Wreck Scene

Joseph M. Miller, superindent of the Elkins Division of the Western Maryland Railroad yesterday expressed thanks to the quick action of the hospitals and police who assisted at the scene of the passenger train wreck. He also said that Mrs. Aileen Washinger, registered nurse, deserves much credit and is to be highly commended for her assistance in aiding and comforting the injured.

At the scene were Lt. W. E. O'Hara, commander of the La-Vale sub-station of the Maryland State Police, and Chief R. Emmett Flynn, Lt. Edwin R. Lilya and Officers J. H. Stitcher, Frederick O. Daum, Louis D. Downey, W. E. Valentine and Walter P. Crabtree of the Cumberland Police Department.

Ambulances from Stein's and Kight's immediately reported to the scene, Miller added.

Three Hospitalized By Wreck Reported In Fair Condition

Three of the ten injured in the Western Maryland Passenger train wreck yesterday who were admitted to Memorial Hospital were reported to be in satisfactory condition last night.

Carlton G. Leonard, Uniontown had head lacerations and right hip and elbow injuries. He will be X-rayed today.

Miss Peggy Friend, Luke, complained of injuries in her right shoulder and hip.

Miss Mildred Walker, also of Luke, required several stitches in the back of her head to close a scalp laceration.

The other seven passengers including three trainmen were released from the hospital shortly after examination.

Trainman Earl M. Haugh, Cumberland, had X-rays taken of his knee and shoulder.

Mrs. Frances De Michael, Luke, who had several stitches put in her scalp left the hospital and has gone on to Hagerstown where she is employed by the Fairchild Aircraft Division.

Mrs. Agnes Galliher, Little Orleans, Md. was treated for injuries to her left arm.

New Section Of Flood Control Work Starts

A new section of the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood control project got underway yesterday as construction crews began building a temporary coffer dam at the river end of Lehigh Street prior to excavating the street for a pressure conduit.

Excavation of Lehigh will start in a few days after the dam is completed to hold the river out as the conduit is being built, U. S. Army Engineers said yesterday.

The pressure conduit will be four by six feet and will go the length of Lehigh Street across Avirett Avenue to Walnut Avenue thence to Greene Street, crossing Beall and Paca Streets.

The conduit will be continued across Green Street to Washington, tunnelled under Washington street and will meet an existing conduit at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks.

A part of the conduit will branch up Greene Street to Paw Paw alley where it will meet an existing conduit there, engineers said.

Present work on Smallwood Street is progressing satisfactorily. As pleasant weather continues the construction crew lays 42 and 36 inch pipe. The 60-inch pipe line from Riverside Park will meet the 42-inch pipeline at the Moose Home on Beall Street.

The Smallwood Street pipeline will continue up Avirett Avenue to Long Avenue thence to Water Street and from there to Lehigh. The pressure conduit at Lehigh will empty into Potomac River at that point.

Garrett County Senatorial Vote Hearing Opens

Election Committee Hears Attorneys

ANNAPOLIS, —(AP)— The Senate Election Committee heard arguments yesterday for a recount of votes for Senator of Garrett County, but announced no decision after adjourning an executive session.

Senator Turnbull (D-Balto) said the committee, of which he is chairman, will meet today to reach a decision.

Lawyers for Bernard I. Gonder, Democrat, who lost the Garrett County senatorship last November by one vote, asked the committee for a recount.

Ryan Represents Gonder

Counsel declared there had been widespread irregularities in the election which put into office Republican Neil C. Fraley. However, no charges of fraud or intentional wrong were made.

Fraley, seeking election to a second term, received 3,080 votes to 3,079 for Gonder.

"A measure of one vote does not at all indicate what the will of the people will be," declared Edward J. Ryan, attorney for Gonder.

"A voting place was open to the general public after the polls had closed. Five or six spectators were sitting around. No one knows what went on there.

"The top of a ballot box was off—a man and woman were in the booth together—people were milling around a booth when a judge was absent—some improperly marked ballots were not thrown out as a whole.

Melvin Attorney For Fraley

"The manner in which the election was conducted has left in the minds of the people of Garrett County a doubt as to whether Gonder or Fraley was elected."

Norman C. Melvin, Jr., attorney for Fraley, said the "burden of proof" that a recount was necessary was up to Gonder.

"It was a close vote and what they want is a fishing expedition," Melvin contended. "They have not satisfied the burden of proof. There is no evidence of any misdoing or fraud.

"Whether the margin of difference is one or one hundred votes, public opinion has it that when the votes have been certified by the proper officials, the election should not be reopened."

Jury Decides Both Drivers Negligent

A jury in Allegany County Circuit Court decided yesterday after only a few minutes deliberation that both drivers in a collision on Route 40, in Garrett county, a few miles west of Frostburg, were negligent and said that neither was entitled to a verdict.

Samuel Petryszak, Morgantown, W. Va., had filed suit for $1,000, through Attorney Thomas N. Berry, against Howard Plummer, 39 East Main Street, Frostburg. Through Attorney W. Earle Cobey, Plummer later filed a cross-claim for $500. The accident occurred October 9, 1949.

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Richard Oates, Sr., Petersburg, W. Va. a son yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Knierlem, 20½ Ridgeway Terrace, a son yesterday afternoon.

Ort's Drivers Join Local At Uniontown, Pa.

Puts All Company's Men In Same Union

In order to eliminate the controversy which developed over attempts to organize driver-salesmen at Ort Bros. Bakery here, more than a score of men, comprising all the affected driver-salesmen, this week joined Local No. 491, Teamsters and Chauffers Union, AFL, at Uniontown, Pa.

The local driver-salesmen voted Tuesday to affiliate with the Uniontown local, since nine drivers at Ort's Uniontown branch are already members of that local. This action, according to Paul Fisher, spokesman for the local group, will keep the collective bargaining between a single union and the company, rather than separate organizations in both Cumberland and Uniontown.

The controversy here developed several weeks ago when a picket line was established at Ort's Bakery, Franklin Street, in an attempt to halt operations at the bakery. Union bakers and other organized personnel at the plant, as well as the company's driver's, failed to recognize the picket line.

Voted Against Affiliation

A vote was taken among local drivers and 22 voted against affiliation with the local teamsters. No votes were cast in favor of affiliation, however, one man who has been on strike, failed to attend the meeting.

According to Fisher no strike vote had ever been taken and the men persistently refused to join in any walkout or to join the local teamsters union.

"To settle a situation which has received much publicity, and which has reflected upon the splendid employe-management relations enjoyed at Ort's for 30 years," Fisher said, "the men agreed to join the Uniontown local and end the controversy which had developed."

Ort's drivers, according to Fisher, are not hourly employes. "We work as commission salesman, delivering and selling Ort's products to retail outlets in the Cumberland eara. Individual incomes averages from $3,000 to $6,000 per man.

Cites Management's Fairness

"In fairness to management, and to the drivers themselves," Fisher continued, "it has not been necessary for us to join a union to enjoy the income, working conditions, hours and other factors which many people have found obtainable only by individual affiliation with some union or other.

"The men themselves are certainly not anti-union. Ort's record of splendid labor relations, and its long-time recognition of other unions certainly indicates that management in this case is not anti-union," Fisher added.

"We have taken this action of affiliation with the Uniontown local to end the controversy here, to put all our drivers in the same collective bargaining agency and to continue, as far as possible, the happy 'family' relations which has always existed bewteen Ort's and their employes," he concluded.

Lewis Ort, a spokesman for the company, said he had been advised of the action taken by the driver-salesmen, and his company will of course recognize the Uniontown local as the drivers' bargaining agency. He expressed his appreciation for the cooperation and understanding of all Ort's employes. "During this period, which developed through no fault of ours or our drivers, we have exerted every possible effort to settle the situation to the satisfaction and mutual agreement of all concerned. The drivers' action seems to be the answer. We hope, and sincerely believe, the happy relationship which has existed with our employes through a couple of generations will continue."

Mullenax Will Renew Contract To Manage Port

City Will Share If Profits Rise

The Municipal Airport Commission last night voted to renew the contract of Warren G. Mullenax for the operation of the Cumberland Municipal Airport.

W. Earle Cobey, city solicitor, was instructed to draw up a one-year contract, effective March 1, for the operation of the airport.

The contract would require Mullenax to pay $1,500 for the use of the field, with the city assuming costs of insurance.

Cobey was also instructed to work out a clause which would allow the city to share in any gross profits for the coming year which exceeded the income in the year ending February 28.

Mullenax will also be allowed six months to repay the city for $1,247 in insurance payments for which Mullenax was obligated in last year's contract.

Last year, Mullenax secured exclusive rights to the field upon the payment of $1,025. The city was obligated to furnish water, electricity and maintenance but not insurance.

The board, headed by Adolf Blunk, also asked that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson and Mullenax work out a simple accounting system for the operation of the port, to be audited quarterly, so the Board may get a clear picture of the financial aspects of the port's operation.

Members axpressed satisfaction of the manner in which Mullenax has operated the port since he took over its operation last year.

Suit Against A&P Stores Discussed

A precedent dangerous to almost all business enterprises is at stake in the government's anti-trust suit against the A and P stores, Edmund S. Fish, Pittsburgh, told members of the Tri-State Traffic Club last night.

Fish, in charge of public relations for A and P's central division, told the approximately 75 traffic men, meeting at Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club, how repeated anti-trust atacks against his company had been rejected by federal courts.

Pointing out that the current legal attack against A and P is based on the 1890 Sherman Act which touches on monoply and "undue restraint of trade," Fish said formal documents in the lawsuit reveal that, by the anti-trust lawyers' own calculations, A and P does only 6.4 per cent of the nation's retail food business. "Hardly a monopoly," he added.

George Bowman, A and P coffee expert, presented a color film showing A and P operations from South America to U. S. dinner tables.

Bill Would Halt Closing Of Barton Schools

Delegation Backs Floor On Wages

A bill was introduced in the General Assembly yesterday which would forbid the Allegany County Board of Education from moving the public schools in Barton from that community.

The measure, HB275, introduced by Delegates See, Reed and Driscoll, would also forbid the Board from requiring Barton students to attend out-of-town schools. It was referred to the Committee on Education.

In effect, the Delegation said, the measure would make it mandatory for the Board to retain the present elementary, junior and senior high school at Barton and halt the incorporation of Barton students in the school consolidation program.

Town Backs Bill

The proposal has the backing of a Citizens Committee and the Barton High School Alumni Association as well as a large number of citizens, a Delegation spokesman said.

The same bill was introduced in the 1948 Assembly but lost by a few votes, according to Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation.

The Delegation yesterday gave favorable reports to several bills of local interest.

Passed to its third reading was HB 220, with amendments. It would increase the salary of deputy sheriffs in Allegany County from $2,400 a year to $3,000.

The bill also authorizes the Board of County Commissioners to approve the addition of a fifth deputy when, in their discretion, the business of the county warrants an additional deputy.

Asked By Grand Jury

Chairman See said the salary increase portion of the bill is mandatory but that the bill provides only the enabling legislation for the appointment of an additional deputy.

He said the action is being taken to empower the county to comply with recommendations of the January, 1951, Grand Jury.

Also passed to its third reading was HB 221, introduced by the Delegation, which sets the minimum pay of city employes at January 1, 1951 levels.

Chairman See stressed that the bill does not involve the payment of any money. It means that the city can raise wages but cannot lower them below levels prevailing at the first of the year.

Also approved was a bill allowing the Allegany County Rheumatic and Heart Association to share in the $5,000 charity money the county is allowed to donate. No additional money is involved.

Would Clarify Law

Delegate Reed yesterday introduced HB 284, to amend the constitution to make it clear that a referendum on the calling of a constitutional convention shall not be a mandate for such a convention unless a majority of all the voters voting for candidates for governor shall declare themselves in favor of a convention (Judiciary).

In effect, Delegate Reed said, the bill would clarify the constitution on that point which has been in dispute since the recent referendum.

He said the bill will go to the Judiciary committee, which will be asked to ignore the original bill on the matter.

In dispute is whether the constitution requires such a referendum measure to pass by a majority of those voting on that measure or by some other criterion, such as the number of votes cast in the election.

Bills passed by the House included HB 170—by Garrett delegation—to specify that primary elections for county commissioners in Garrett County shall be by commissioners districts.

Allegany County motor vehicle owners will be able to get their 1951-52 tags this spring at the Court House here.

The bill setting up a branch office of the commissioner of motor vehicles in Cumberland has passed both the House of Delegates and Senate and has been signed by Governor McKeldin.

The Allegany county delegation is joining in a drive to remove "deadwood and waste" from the state budget, Delegate Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., (R-Allegany) said yesterday.
